COURT UPHOLDS FREE SPEECH IN TIME OF WAR

U. S. Prosecutors Are Rebuked.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 12.—Freedom of speech and of the press in the United States must be preserved in war as well as in peace, the Supreme court ruled today.

Elmer Hartzel.

In two strong opinions, the tribunal set aside lower court penalties imposed upon two citizens who had inveighed in the strongest terms against President Roosevelt and the war program.

The decisions were regarded as rebukes to the government for conducting the prosecutions and may have a decided effect, lawyers said, upon the sedition trial now in progress in Washington.

Find Proof Inadequate.

In reversing the conviction, accompanied by a five year sentence to prison, of Elmer Hartzel, 52, an auditor and statistician of Chicago, for violation of the espionage act, the first such case to be presented in the present war, the court found insufficient proof that Hartzel "willfully" attempted to cause insubordination and disloyalty in the army and navy.

The 5-4 decision noted that Hartzel had written and distributed three pamphlets which "depict the war as a gross betrayal of America, denounce our English allies and the Jews, and assail in reckless terms the integrity and patriotism of the President of the United States."

Ideas Considered Odious.

While the three articles contained "odious ideas," "gross libels of the President" and "flagrant appeals to false and sinister racial theories," there was nothing on their face to indicate, the court stated, that Hartzel intended specifically to cause mutiny in the military forces.

"We are not unmindful of the fact that the United States is now engaged in a total war for national survival," Justice Murphy declared for the majority which also included Justices Stone, Roberts, Black, and Rutledge.

Views of Dissenters.

"But the mere fact that such ideas are enunciated by a citizen is not enough by itself to warrant a finding of a criminal intent to violate the espionage act," the majority added. "An American citizen has the right to discuss these matters, either by temperate reasoning or by immoderate and vicious invective without running afoul of the espionage act."

WIDOW, 37, MARRIED TO BOY, 16; HE TINTS FINGERNAILS GREEN

Vancouver, Wash., June 12 (AP).—Ronald Smith, 16, and Mrs. Mary Ellen Breon, 37, were married here today.

The bridegroom, who came to the ceremony with bright green-painted fingernails "to match Mary's—we wanted everything alike," said they had known each other for nine years.

The bride, a widow who has two children, one and three years old, said "it was love at first sight."

"We were attracted to each other because of our mutual liking for hunting and fishing," said the tall, curly headed and blue-eyed boy.

His mother, Mrs. Fannie L. Smith, Siletz, witnessed the ceremony.

Lightning Kills 2 and Injures 3 School Girls

A high school girl and a street car supervisor were killed and three school girls were injured by lightning yesterday in a thunderstorm which deluged the Chicago area with more than one inch of rain. The storm flooded many railroad underpasses and basements, brought almost night time darkness to the city, and sent the temperature down 20 degrees.

The lightning victims were Miss Patricia Tierney, 17, of 7736 Calumet av., a student at Mercy High school, and John H. Jones, 62, of 7350 South Park av., for 27 years a Surface Lines employe.

On Way Home from School.

Miss Tierney, daughter of Edward Tierney, a mathematics teacher at Harper High school, was on her way home from school when she was caught in the storm. With her were three schoolmates, Miss Rita Glassner, 17, of 7231 Wabash av., Miss Betty Leslie, 17, of 7239 South Park av., and Miss Joyce Cure, 17, of 10212 Racine av.

All four girls sought shelter under a tree in front of 7942 Prairie av. A moment later the lightning struck with a blinding flash. Miss Tierney was killed instantly, her clothing ripped from her. Miss Glassner suffered burns on the right side and leg, and a puncture of an ear drum. The soles of her shoes were torn off. Miss Leslie and Miss Cure suffered minor shock.

At about the same time Supervisor Jones was killed. He had been standing in a street car shanty at 93d st. and Cottage Grove, but at the height of the storm stepped out. Immediately he was felled by a bolt. He leaves his widow and a daughter.

Heavy Rain for 30 Minutes.

The rainfall was unusually heavy for 30 minutes. Forecaster George L. Canaday said that .93 inches fell in half an hour. The afternoon rain totaled 1.10 inches.

Street car traffic was virtually uninterrupted, altho some underpasses were flooded. Motor transport found travel difficult at times. Overcast skies darkened most of the city during the storm, increasing the use of electricity 8 per cent over normal. Temperatures dropped from 88.4 at 1:40 p. m. to 68 at 4:30 p. m.

VOTE IN HOUSE TO END SECRET OPA HEARINGS

Leftist Influences in Agency Charged.

BY LAURENCE BURD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 12.—The house tentatively voted today to outlaw "star chamber" sessions by the office of price administration in proceedings against persons charged with price and rationing violations.

Rep. Scrivner.

The restriction, adopted by voice vote, was contained in an amendment to the price control extension bill, and was offered by Rep. Scrivner [R., Kas.].

Scrivner charged OPA enforcement officials have made a practice of subpenaing defendants and witnesses for closed hearings in OPA violation cases and then preventing them from having counsel or stenographers accompany them.

Permits Public Hearings.

The amendment provides that defendants and witnesses may have counsel and their own stenographers and may request that the hearings be public. Rep. Wolcott [R., Mich.], declaring that this is "simple justice," told the house that star chamber proceedings such as OPA has conducted are "repulsive."

Scrivner's amendment was one of the few adopted out of more than 20 proposed today to curb alleged OPA abuses. Another, barring OPA from placing ceilings on watermelons, was tentatively adopted. Other amendments will be offered tomorrow.

Following adoption of the watermelon proviso, Wolcott took the floor to warn both Republicans and Democrats against voting further amendments favoring restricted groups in our economy.

Rep. Busbey [R., Ill.] charged during today's debate that key positions in OPA are being held by persons of Communist front sympathies.

In this connection Busbey named Thomas I. Emerson, chief of OPA enforcement, at $8,000 a year; Shad Polier, head of gasoline rationing enforcement, at $6,500; and Tom Tippett, field secretary of the OPA rent division, at $6,500.

Names Three Officials.

Emerson, Busbey charged, has been a "leader" in "three of the most influential Communist front organizations" in the capital. These, he said, are the International Juridical association, National Lawyers' guild, and the Washington Committee for Democratic Action, the latter of which has been characterized as "subversive" by Atty. Gen. Biddle.

Polier, the congressman told the house, was a member of the national committee of the International Juridical association. The association, Busbey said, was an affiliate of International Labor Defense, which, he reminded, was cited by the attorney general as the "legal arm of the Communist party."

Busbey said Tippett formerly wrote for the Daily Worker, official Communist organ, and that he was a principal speaker in 1923 at an International Youth day meeting in Chicago. The meeting, he added, was "organized on specific instructions from Moscow."

THE HARPOON STICKS

F. D. R. Opens 5th Bond Drive Hinting Earlier Japan Doom

Washington, D. C., June 12 [Special].—President Roosevelt told the nation tonight in a radio talk opening the 16 billion dollar 5th war loan drive that "we can force the Japanese to unconditional surrender or national suicide much more rapidly than has been thought possible."

The President said "we still have a long way to Tokyo," but said our smashes in the Pacific have deprived the Japs of the power to check the momentum of "our ever growing and ever advancing military forces."

Reiterating that Germany is still first on the list for destruction, he said the original strategy of eliminating our European enemy first and then turning all our strength to the Pacific is hastening the victory on all fronts.

Lists Accomplishments.

The President listed accomplishments in the war against Japan as including the reduction of Japanese shipping by more than three million tons, the overcoming of Japan's original advantage in the air, the cutting off from their homeland of tens of thousands of beleaguered Japanese troops, and the cutting down of Jap naval strength "so that for many months they have avoided all risk of encounter with our naval forces."

Germany now has her back against the wall—in fact, three walls at once, Mr. Roosevelt said.

"On the south—we have broken the German hold on central Italy," he related. "On June 4 the city of Rome fell to the allied armies. Allowing the enemy no respite, the allies now are pressing hard on the heels of the Germans as they retreat northwards in ever growing confusion.

On the East and Overhead.

"On the east—Our gallant soviet allies have driven the enemy back from the lands which were invaded three years ago. Great soviet armies are now initiating crushing blows.

"Overhead—Vast allied air fleets of bombers and fighters have been waging a bitter air war over Germany and western Europe."

The President said the air war has whittled down German production continuously and has reduced the German fighter force to a fraction of its former power.

Hammer Blow on France.

He described the invasion of western Europe as "the hammer blow which struck the coast of France last Tuesday morning," and said that millions of tons of weapons and supplies and hundreds of thousands of men assembled in England are now being poured "into the great battle for Europe."

"From the standpoint of the enemy, we have achieved the impossible," he said in asserting that a firm foothold has been established. He emphasized that the men invading France are carrying with them thousands of items needed for the undertaking and that so far "there is a shortage of nothing—nothing." This, he stated, must continue.

The President recalled the dark days early in the war and said he had been called crazy for asking for United States production of 50,000 planes a year, adding that we are now producing planes at the rate of 100,000 a year.

81 Million Bond Buyers.

The President warned against any relaxation in the nation's war production effort, asserting, "This is the very worst time for any war worker to think of leaving his machine for a peacetime job."

Reviewing previous war loan drives, he said 81 million persons have already bought war bonds and that the purchases of individual men, women and children have totaled 32 billion dollars.

"Whatever else any of us may be doing, the purchase of war bonds and stamps is something all of us can do and should do to help win the war," he said.

"All of the things which we use in this war, everything we send to our fighting allies, costs money—a lot of money. One sure way every man, woman, and child can keep faith with those who have given, and are giving, their lives, is to provide the money which is needed to win the final victory."

'FORGOTTEN,' BUT PILOTS FIGHT ON

'Public Not Interested in Us,' Pacific Cry.

BY FRANK L. KLUCKHOHN.
[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

ADVANCED UNITED STATES AIR BASE, Southwest Pacific, June 12.—Last night I sat in on a harrowing situation. The "Jolly Rogers"—the best known army heavy bomber group in the Pacific—had hit Palau, and the reports were that five of their planes were lost.

One crew was reported to have been forced down after an attack by 40 Zeros. Another Liberator, piloted by one of the best squadron commanders, reported that its controls had been shot away, and then radio contact was lost. Other planes were believed to be missing on the long run.

"Forgotten Men."

"Hell!" said one of the pilots, "we are sticking out our necks all the time against the Japanese, but the American public is interested only in Europe. Let's agree the Normandy battle is the most important fight now. But the Japs started this war. Why should we be forgotten men?"

This morning it developed that all of the Liberator crews had made the 1,000 miles back. Nevertheless, last night's interlude served to show what these crews go thru. They do it, they feel, without glory, since this is "the forgotten war." But the miracle is that they would do it just the same.

Suicide Run Fatal.

"When we got thru the last storm heads," said Lt. George Anderson of Brooklyn, N. Y., "we were all out of formation. We joined up as best we could and went over the target. We had to go in over flak from a cruiser, a destroyer, and flak boats to make our run on the Jap air fields.

"Up ahead Japanese planes were dropping phosphorous air bombs which looked like white octopi. There Nipponese planes flew in formation right under our planes. A moment later four Zeros and Bettys came in on us.

"One of the Japs made a suicide run toward the nose of our ship and Sgt. Tom Ousley of Georgia, our nose gunner, got him. He was smoking as he passed our cockpit and fell into the sea."

BRITISH AND GERMANS IN FIERCE BATTLE FOR CAEN

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 12 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill set foot on French soil for the first time since 1940 today and Gen. Eisenhower, commander in chief of the allied invasion forces, led a party of top United States military and naval commanders on a five hour tour of the American held section of the Normandy battlefront.

Britain's prime minister was accompanied by Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts, premier of South Africa, and Gen. Alan Brooke, chief of the imperial general staff.

In Gen. Eisenhower's party were Gen. George C. Marshall, United States army chief of staff; Gen. Henry H. Arnold, American air chief, and Adm. Ernest King, commander in chief of the United States fleet.

Talks with Bradley.

A dispatch from an American front line sector said Eisenhower talked to Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commanding American field forces; Rear Adm. Alan G. Kirk, and Rear Adm. John Leslie Hall, commanding American naval forces, and other American military and naval leaders.

Eisenhower's destroyer, cutting thru a quiet sea at close to 30 knots, arrived off the invasion coast at 10:25 a. m. The general and his party then toured the shore area for 45 minutes in a submarine chaser.

Adm. Kirk joined them aboard the subchaser and hailed an amphibious duck driven by a flabbergasted G. I., Corp. Grady E. Godfrey, La Grange, Ga. In this craft Eisenhower and his party went ashore near St. Laurent.

To Headquarters in Convoy.

At 11:30 a. m. a command car convoy was formed to take Eisenhower and his party to a United States headquarters. Arnold enthusiastically bounded into the front seat of the first car and then, turning laughingly to Eisenhower, apologized.

After beans and biscuits for luncheon, Gen. Bradley conducted the party thru some captured German positions. Eisenhower criticized the placement of a big gun. He didn't notice a small paper sign that had partially fallen off the gun. It said, "Booby trap."

The party later motored to Isigny passing several smashed tanks.

Navy P. T. pilots bounced the group of high officers thru the congested invasion waters at a fast pace on a trip to the Cherbourg peninsula sector. They landed on a sandy beach with low dunes. Behind the beach was a low, flat plain that had been inundated.

Churchill and his companions crossed the channel on the destroyer H. M. S. Kelvin and while they were aboard the ship joined in bombarding a German position on the Northwestern Normandy flank.

Prisoners Taken by Allied Soldiers Rise to 10,000.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 13 (Tuesday).—Smashing blows by American troops fighting in Normandy under Gen. Montgomery have expanded the allied beachhead in two directions. This has resulted in the first clear-cut threat to the German forces in the port of Cherbourg.

Principal developments up to early today were:

1. Americans smashed north toward Cherbourg and south toward the communications hub of St. Lo.

2. The allied bridgehead was extended by yesterday's fighting until it is now 60 miles wide and from 10 to 18 miles deep. The extension added nine miles to the allied anchorage.

3. Carentan was captured by United States troops.

4. Thousands of allied planes launched the greatest cross-channel assault since D-day at German communications and air fields.

5. The Germans are now known to have accumulated 14 or 15 divisions, totaling 250,000 men, against the beachhead. Ten thousand Germans have been taken prisoner.

Reported 10 Miles Away.

The Americans driving northward swept past Montebourg, 14 miles from Cherbourg, and were only 10 miles from Cherbourg, according to one unconfirmed report. A Vichy broadcast said the Americans had taken the coastal town of Quineville, on the sea east of Montebourg and connected with it by a road.

Below Montebourg, Americans were striking westward thru a seven mile gap blasted in the German lines in the Ste. Mere Eglise sector. The doughboys were within 12 miles of western coastal roads.

Carentan's fall put the Americans a third of the way across the Cherbourg peninsula at its narrowest point, but fighting on the peninsula has been stiffening.

Overrun Whole Forest.

In the St. Lo drive the Yanks had overrun the whole forest of Cerisy in an eight mile advance and were 10 miles from St. Lo. That town is the key to the whole network of roads along which Marshal Rommel has been supplying Marshal Von Rundstedt's entire peninsula garrison.

On the east flank of the bridgehead, British and Nazi armored units were still in flaming battle, with no great progress on either side. The midnight official bulletin characterized the fighting as "fierce" all the way from Tilly-sur-Seulles to Caen.

The position at Tilly-sur-Seulles, 12 miles west of Caen,

Here's Digest of Invasion Facts

AERIAL—Thousands of bombers and fighters in action.

PROGRESS—Yanks capture Carentan and Cerisy forest; advance on highway hub of St. Lo; fight nearer, to Cherbourg and drive westward across peninsula. Tank battle continues in British Tilly-sur-Seulles area.

LANDINGS—Germans report new air borne landings south of Caen and sea borne landings 15 miles east of Cherbourg, and in Vire river estuary.

is obscure. The town itself changed hands several times during yesterday's battles. All the time, however, the allies have held the high ground to the southwest and southeast.

Peninsula in a Sack.

The day's developments transformed the Cherbourg peninsula into a sack, with Cherbourg at the top and St. Lo at the bottom. The fall of St. Lo would force the Germans either to pull out of the peninsula along the only road and railroad left open, along the west coast to Coutances, make a last stand battle before Cherbourg, or surrender. Apparently the Nazis are preparing for a bitter battle.

The terrain over which the Americans are fighting toward Cherbourg is wooded and rising from 60 to 200 feet before sloping to the coast From Montebourg to Valognes and thence to Cherbourg runs a broad well paved motor road. The port of Cherbourg is protected by several ports which surround its harbor. One of the forts is on the island of Pelee.

The progress of the Americans beyond Carentan brought the sluice gates regulating the inundation of this region into their hands. Water can be drained out and soon supplies can be brought inland over dry land. By overcoming the inundation barriers around Carentan American air borne divisions can proceed up both sides of rivers and creeks southwards across the peninsula.

Forest a Munitions Dump.

The Germans said there was fighting at St. Lo. That is not true, it was stated here, and the German report was regarded as propaganda to prepare either for a claim they drove the invaders out or to give the impression that their defense of this position is more prolonged than the facts justify.

The capture of the Cerisy forest by the Americans was regarded as a great feat. It was an important gasoline and ammunition dump. It is on high ground and very thick, and was used by the Germans for cover. It may take some time to clear it up. The forest extends east to Balleroy and troops there are across the St. Lo-Caen road.

The forest of Cerisy thrust marks the deepest penetration on the battle line. The Americans there have driven a wedge into the enemy defense lines more than 18 miles from the coast. The wedge has a breadth of more than 10 miles.

On Both Sides of Orne.

The ability of the allies to hold the bridgehead on both sides of the Orne canal at the east end of the Normandy front is regarded here with particular satisfaction as are the enemy's so far futile attempts to seal the allies behind this water crossing.

The same thing is said to be true of the inability of Rommel's panzers to make any progress in the Caen area. It is considered a gratifying sign that Rommel has been unable to maintain his reserves but has been drawing on them piecemeal.

Good expectations were encouraged due to the discovery that the German defenders are so short of infantry that they no longer can extract their panzers from the battle ground to reform and reorganize for new counter-attacks.

Slowed by Broken Traffic.

The effectiveness of the destruction of lines of communication extending as far back as Belgium to the battle area seemingly is demonstrated by the time it is taking the Germans to bring substantial reinforcements to the battle area. Those so far used all have come from the west instead of from the east where the bulk of reserves is stationed.

Stress also is laid on the weakness of German equipment in the fact that they are using French tanks. A discrepancy in weapons always tends to create confusion in battle. The French tanks use different ammunition and need different mechanical treatment and spare parts.

These are among the facts cited to explain the lack of cohesion and coördination in the German counter-attacks so far.

Allied Supply Flow Steady.

Good weather and a calm sea have greatly increased the rapidity of unloading allied men and equipment at all the beaches, it was stated here.

The American battleships, the Nevada and the Texas, thruout the day supported American divisions, including the 82d air borne, in their thrust north to Cherbourg. The targets of the battleships were enemy batteries six to 10 miles inland. British warships meanwhile continued to hammer German positions in the Tilly-sur-Seulles and Orne sectors.

The total territory won from the Germans in less than a week of fighting was estimated at from 400 to 500 square miles.

Report High Battle Loss.

Hundreds of American assault troops, according to a report from correspondents at the front, were killed in the fight for a mile and a half beach sector near Vierville, about midway on the present allied front. Bodies recovered on the sands were estimated to be some 750 and an equal number was believed to have been washed away by the high tide.

At Caen on the east end of the invasion line, a Berlin broadcast said: "A new major battle is imminent. Both sides have concentrated powerful tank and motorized artillery formations. Gen. Montgomery has tried in the last 24 hours to surround Caen but the town still is in German hands."

Other German accounts said the British had infiltrated German lines on both sides of Caen and had dropped parachutists at the rear of the town, to the south. The allies said small advances had been dug out east of Caen.

German radio broadcasts also said that new sea borne American troops had been put ashore near St. Vaast la Hougue, 15 miles east of Cherbourg.

[Berlin radio, in a broadcast recorded by NBC, said two new allied divisions had landed northeast of Cherbourg, presumably in the 15 mile area between the port and Pointe de Barfleur at the northeast tip of the peninsula.]

In addition to the reported new American landings at St. Vaast la Houge, the Germans also told of allied reënforcements streaming ashore in the Vire estuary to the southeast, and air borne landings south of the rail junction of Valognes, four miles northwest of Montebourg.

The axis controled Paris radio said Gen. Montgomery had 30 of 45 available divisions now in Normandy. "The remaining 15 are waiting in England under the command of American Lt. Gen. George C. Patton Jr." the broadcast added. Berlin broadcasts on Sunday said the allies had from 350,000 to 400,000 troops in France, and said that figure was only a third of the allied amphibious power which had been based in Britain.

OFFICIAL BULLETINS

LAND.

"The fusion of our beachheads is now complete and a coastal strip some 60 miles long is firmly in our hands. Its depth is being increased steadily.

"Slight advances were made east of Caen.

"American troops in the Cherbourg peninsula have made further penetrations to the north and west. Additional road crossings over the coastal inundations are in our hands.

"Farther east the enemy was driven from the whole of the forest of Cerisy. Fierce fighting between British and enemy armored units continued between Tilly-sur-Seulles and Caen.

NAVAL.

AERIAL.

"Striking in very great strength, our aircraft today hammered enemy air fields and communications over a 400 mile arc from St. Nazaire to Lille. Armed reconnaissance and medium level bombing missions were flown from the tip of the Cherbourg peninsula over the battle area and southeastward to Juvisy.

"The largest single striking force of heavy day bombers ever dispatched from England struck this morning at a broad belt of 16 air fields from Dreux to Lille, and at six rail bridges in the St. Nazaire and Paris areas. Strong forces of fighters which escorted the bombers scored against a variety of rail targets on their return flight.

"The rail system focusing at Rennes was a major target for the day, with fighter-bombers severing in numerous places the railway lines leading to the city. Meanwhile medium and light bombers carried out a succession of attacks on the railway installations there and highway junctions south of the battle area.

"Rocket firing aircraft attacked the military ferry installation at Berville-sur-Mer. A ferry boat and a pier were left burning. Other rocket firing planes on armed reconnaissance struck at a variety of armored targets and motor transport.

"In the combat zone batteries at La Parnelle and at Joulime, near the tip of the Cherbourg peninsula, were attacked shortly before noon.

GERMAN WAR REPORT

LONDON, June 12 (AP).—Today's German high command war bulletin, as broadcast from Berlin and recorded here by the Associated Press, said:

"In the landing head of Normandy the situation remained unchanged in general. Gaps in our own front were closed. All enemy attempts to gain ground toward the south between Caen and Bayeux and in the direction of Cherbourg north of the Vire river estuary were frustrated.

"Only Carentan was lost after heavy fighting. On the coast on both sides of St. Vasst, east of Cherbourg, an artillery duel with parts of the enemy fleet continued.

"Heavy losses are continuously being inflicted on enemy supplies by our motor torpedo boats in attacks at night. The air force and navy sank three freighters and transport vessels totaling 37,000 tons despite the enemy defense which was considerably reinforced. Another three large vessels totaling 27,000 tons and one destroyer were heavily damaged.

"While weather coriditions were unfavorable, German motor torpedo boat groups made another surprise attack on an enemy cruiser formation and its escort and scored two torpedo hits.

SUPREME HDQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE [Tuesday].—June 13 (AP).—Cologne was reported today by DNB, German news agency, to have been bombed just before midnight in a sequel to daylight invasion attacks in which allied air fleets flew up to 10,000 sorties yesterday against German holdings in France. A brief allied announcement said only that targets for Germany as well as in France had been raided.

[The German radio network left the air abruptly at 7:55 a. m. London time today, indicating that American daylight bombers might be striking at Europe. One Nazi station later reported single enemy raiders over southwestern, western, middle, and north Germany.]

DNB, reporting the raid on Cologne, Rhineland industrial city of 750,000 which had been bombed 130 times previously, said British planes "flying in several batches" attacked targets in west Germany and bombed residential areas of Cologne.

A record 1,400 United States heavy bombers took part in the daylight attacks.

German fighters offered their fiercest aerial resistance since the invasion began but still failed to throw great numbers into the battle, possibly because of the terrific beating the allies have given their bases immediately behind the front lines.

Incomplete reports on today's operations showed 53 German planes destroyed in the air and 17 on the ground. Allied losses were placed at seven bombers, one medium bomber, and 31 fighters.

The American Fortresses and Liberators loosed the greater part of their bomb loads on 16 air fields. Among those attacked were those at Lille-Nord, Montdidier, Evreux-Fauville, Dreux, 45 miles west of Paris; Vitry-en-Artois, and Beauvois-Tille.

U. S. SUB CHASER LOST AFTER TWO NAZI SUBS SINK

Washington, D. C., June 12 (AP).—A United States sub chaser has been lost in the Mediterranean, the navy announced today, but before being sunk by enemy action the PC558 apparently destroyed two German one-man submarines.

The 173 foot subchaser went down on May 9, the navy said. There was no immediate announcement regarding crew losses except a statement that next of kin of casualties had been notified. The skipper, Lt. [j. g.] Edward C. Leber of Blauvelt, N. Y., was wounded but was listed among the survivors.

The sub chaser sank the two enemy submarines while on patrol off the Italian coast. Both had what appeared to be a two foot glass dome, extending eight or ten inches above the surface of the water, the navy said.

YANK DOUGHBOYS HANG ON BY THEIR EYELIDS: MONTY

WITH ALLIED TROOPS IN FRANCE, June 11 [Delayed] (AP).—Gen. Montgomery announced tonight that approximately 7,000 prisoners have been captured in the battle in France, including some Japanese. "A great many of the enemy have been killed," the allied ground force chief added.

[Headquarters later said 10,000 prisoners had been taken thru June 12.]

The Japanese—regular soldiers, not merely observers—were fighting alongside their axis partners, Montgomery said.

Pleased with the feats of American troops, Montgomery said the "beach where the landing of the Americans took place east of the Carentan estuary was found defended by a German division which was not a coastal division. It was a very good division and fought very well.

Swaying Battle All Day.

"German prisoners said the division had just been brought up from behind to thicken the crust of the coastal defenses and it actually was in the process of carrying out exercises when the Americans attacked.

"There was fighting on that American beach all D-day, swaying back and forth, and by the end of the day the Americans were not more than 100 yards inland and were hanging on by their eyelids.

"You can imagine Americans doing that. It was very unpleasant, very tricky. There is no doubt about it that the American troops did absolutely magnificiently in recovering from that very unpleasant situation, and today these same troops are miles inland—very good, very good, indeed.

"Our soldiers, American and British, are in tremendous form," he declared. "Their tails are very high up in the air. They are full of beans. And they have already got the measure of the enemy."

3 Factors Saved Situation.

Montgomery said the situation was retrieved by three things:

"1—The gallantry of the American soldier who is a very brave man.

"2—The grand supporting fire given from the sea, and

"3—The support given from the air by the fighter-bombers who knew the situation and came down low to shoot up Germans at close range.

"The retrieving of that situation is probably one of the finest things done in this operation.

"The beaches are now behind us," he said. "The violence, power, and speed of our initial assault carried us over the beaches and inland very quickly.

"That was my initial instruction to the senior officers. I said that every man must be imbued with one idea—to penetrate quickly and deeply into enemy country and peg out claims inland. And that was done.

"The conception that you land on the beaches and get a little bridgehead and then dig in—that is no good.

"We have suffered losses because the Germans in pillboxes remained behind our lines. Also there were a considerable number of German snipers. All that had to be cleaned up."

Montgomery said the sharpshooters included women—who had been killed in the act of shooting at allied troops.

3 GET $191 IN TAVERN HOLDUP.

Three armed men early yesterday obtained $191 in a robbery of a tavern at 2643 W. 71st st., in which Mrs. Antoinette Tubis, the owner, and three customers were forced to line up against a wall, she told police.

GERMANS TAKEN CAPTIVE EAGER TO SEE AMERICA

Spend Time Combing Blond Locks.

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. TROOPS IN NORMANDY, June 12.—Many German prisoners have been found to be in possession of maps of the United States, as well as printed information about American towns and cities.

"They say they want to go to America after the war," Corp. Ernest G. Streich, South Bend, Ind., told me. Streich, German born, searched and questioned prisoners as they were brought in to the barbed wire bordered stockade on the beach.

Streich said queries from the Germans about Toledo, O., and Providence, R. I. were particularly frequent.

Curry Their Locks.

The prisoners lounged in a shallow trench six feet wide, scooped out of the sand to protect them from their own shelling and strafing. They seemed calm and relaxed, and an astonishing number passed the time combing their long, blond locks and gazing fixedly into hand mirrors.

Of the 60 live prisoners in the stockade when I arrivesd at least a dozen were currying their locks all the time. What they were doling up for it is hard to say. It may be because they were going to take a little trip abroad—to England.

The Germans waved cheery greeting to their friends as 80 other prisoners marched in. Most of them waved with the left hand, doubtless because they were afraid of raising the right hand, which might have betrayed them into giving the Hitler salute, an unpopular form of address on some sections of the French coastline these days. They smoked cigarets, chatted, assisted with the wounded and in general conducted themselves with a curious nonchalance. It would be inaccurate to say that they were depressed or arrogant—they just didn't seem to register anything.

Officers Seem Punch Drunk.

The newcomers included a number of officers who seemed punch drunk. Capture just seemed to be another episode in their lives.

Death had overtaken some of the prisoners. Rain poured in bucketfuls on the beachhead, beating down on the dead under blankets, the wounded and unwounded alike. Those with wounds had received medical care. There were legs and arms in splints, bandaged heads and torn clothing.

These supermen of Hitler's master race were guarded by American Negro soldiers, members of a transportation corps who had gone ashore early to help unload the ships. The Germans, with their indoctrination about the complete superiority of what they chose to call Aryans, took a rather poor view of being guarded by Negroes. The Negroes bore gleaming grins which did not improve Nazi tempers any.

Frenchmen Held, Too.

Down the beach was another stockade enclosing some unfortunate misfits of war—French men, women, and boys suspected of trafficking with the enemy. Some of the women had worked in German officers' clubs; others had known German officers not wisely but too well. Some were even accused of sharpshooting at American soldiers.

Chances are that most of them will be released after quizzing. The same goes for the men, unless it is proved that they have definitely swung over to the German side. One man with 6,000 American occupation francs in his pockets is certainly going to have a lot of explaining to do. An officer told me it is believed the Germans took this money from American prisoners and used it to bribe the Frenchmen to act as agents of various kinds for them. Six thousand francs is $120, which is a lot of money for a Frenchman.

Near the French men and women was a large pile of bicycles, canteens, suitcases and effects taken from the internees. The French men apparently had kissed their possessions good-by, but the women circled warily around the pile of junk, keeping a possessive eye on their trinkets.

Corp. Streich said that the 15, 16 and 17 year old prisoners were full of Hitler spirit but that the older men felt in a resigned sort of way that the jig was up and they were glad of it.

Oh, Yeah?

2,000 WOUNDED BACK WITH NONE SORRY FOR SELF

'Thumbs Up' Signaled as Litters Go Ashore.

BY HOWARD WHITMAN.
[Correspondent of the New York News and The Chicago Tribune.]

AN INVASION PORT, June 12.—It wasn't a pretty sight. But then the sight of wounded is never pretty, and, as we stood on a concrete ramp from dawn to dusk and saw one boat after another disgorge its cargo of battered men, we knew, more than ever before, how personal and important is the price some men are paying for victory.

I have seen 2,000 wounded men unloaded here. Some came back on the landing ship tanks that took them across the channel to smash fortress Europe.

One can't talk to the seriously wounded, but questions weren't necessary. These men had all the answers in their faces. They looked up smiling as Negro litter-bearers carried them off the boats, up the ramp and slid them into ambulances. A few, whose arms weren't hurt, gave us the thumbs-up gesture as they passed. Of the 2,000 I didn't see one who was feeling sorry for himself, altho we who watched were moved almost to tears.

A Word for War Bonds.

An MP corporal grabbed my arm and said, "If the people back home could see what we're seeing they wouldn't gripe so much about the sacrifices they're making. Some people think you just press a button and win a war. If I were boss I'd bring them over here to watch for just one hour. Then you'd never have to plead with them to buy war bonds."

Maj. Gen. Paul Hawley, chief surgeon of the European theater of operations, came down to the pier and I chatted with him.

Many of these wounded men are going to become good as new despite wounds that in World War I would have sent them home armless or legless. In the last war surgeons reached for the knife to save men from death by infection. In this war, Gen. Hawley said, "Amputation is the last thing we want to do."

Wonder Drugs Save Limbs.

Sulfa drugs and penicillin are doing what used to be done with surgeons' knives. "We've saved thousands and thousands of limbs so far in this war," Gen. Hawley said.

In this war a soldier has his own sulfa tablets which he swallows when wounded, thus heading off infection. Infusion of plasma or fresh blood and refrigeration of damaged limbs mitigate the peril of gangrene and other dangers from loss of blood. Landing ships used as hospital vessels are equipped to refrigerate limbs.

Wounded German prisoners get the same medical care as our own boys. But apparently German field treatment of their own wounded is inadequate. A medical attendant said more than 50 per cent of the German wounded were suffering from infection when he found them, while in the case of allied soldiers infection is less than 1 per cent.

FIRE POWER DOES IT

BY ROGER GREENE.

WITH THE ALLIED ARMIES IN FRANCE, June 10 [Delayed]—(AP).—Battle diary:

In Normandy the poppies grow—millions upon millions of them, blood red and dancing like fireflies in the tall green wheat—but unlike the flowers of Flanders fields immortalized by John McCrae's poem, the poppies here in Normandy conceal mercifully few allied dead.

We are pushing inland by weight of massed fire power, and the hand to hand fighting that marked the 1914-'18 conflict is comparatively rare.

Signs of the hasty German departure are evident. Bureau drawers are ripped out and left half full. Food and supplies are on the kitchen shelves, and half empty wine glasses are on the dining table of this former headquarters of a German commandant in a cathedral town.

There was a French girl about 17. I came across her in a storeroom, lying against a crumpled up mattress, staring at a photograph, with tears streaming down her cheeks. I glimpsed the photograph, that of a bullet headed German officer with cold eyes and a sword slash across the mouth. I saw his body an hour later, half tumbled out of a shell wrecked car on a road.

YANKS IN OWN CEMETERY

BY JOHN A. MOROSO III.

AN AMERICAN BEACHHEAD CEMETERY, France, June 9 [Delayed]—(AP).—Stretched out on their backs on this blasted bit of Normandy beach lie the American dead who paid the supreme price for wresting this strong position from the Nazis.

This is America's first cemetery in France in this war. It is not a pretentious place. A few days ago it was a German minefield.

When the Americans swarmed onto the beaches through murderous surf, German guns mowed them down. The battle was so fierce that our grave registration officers, who bury the dead, had to spend most of their time in foxholes. When the enemy retreated into the hills these officers gathered their weary men and began bringing bodies to this place, where the green grass is turned black from the fury of high explosives.

Another cemetery is being prepared nearby. More space is needed.

The cemetery details first identify the fallen. Some of the dead had no identification discs, so fingerprints were taken.

TOUGH NAZI TAMED

BY MARCEL WALLENSTEIN.
[Kansas City Star correspondent.]
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE ALLIED FORCES ON THE CHERBOURG PENINSULA, June 11.—On this beach, paratroops, wounded enemy prisoners, French civilians, Poles and Russians were brought to a field hospital for early treatment before removal by amphibious ducks.

Here paratroops on stretchers lifted their heads, cursing the enemy for his methods in the vicinity of Ste. Mere Eglise, where the ferocity of the German infantry was described in terms formerly used only to characterize the Japanese. Among the few unwounded near this dressing station were two American glider pilots with a captured German major.

"We were his prisoners," said one. "When he had us he was the toughest guy you ever saw. He threatened every kind of bad treatment and finally locked us in a barn. When our boys rescued us, the major began to whine, begging us to take him back thru the lines to where the American tanks were and away from the paratroops. He offered us 3,000 francs and his watch. We gave him a cigaret and he almost crawled on his belly when he saw we had no intention of hurting him."

HE'S NO SUPERMAN

BY HAL BOYLE.

TWENTY-FIRST ARMY GROUP HDQ., June 6 [Delayed].—A German soldier who caught a piece of shrapnel in his lung while working on a Nazi gun was abandoned by his comrades as the Americans advanced. The last thing they did was to strip him of all identification. Brought here, the 21 year old soldier expressed gratitude for American treatment and told the story of his military service to Tech. 4th Meliburn Finke, 34, Milwaukee, in charge of enlisted men's surgical service.

"His morale was high," said Finke, "but he got indignant when I asked him if he was one of Hitler's SS. troops. He was insulted to think that any one would believe he belonged to such an organization."

2 NAZI ARMIES CUT TO PIECES IN ITALY BY ALLIES

'Dispersed to the Four Winds'—Clark.

ROME, June 12 (AP).—The German 10th and 14th armies have been destroyed, allied headquarters said today as Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's American and British forces, pursuing the disorganized Germans up the Italian west coast, approached Orbetello, 71 miles northwest of Rome.

As depleted enemy units fell back toward the Florence area, with the greater part of their equipment lost, the Nazi high command faced the immediate necessity of sending heavy reënforcements from France or elsewhere if any real attempt was to be made to hold northern Italy.

"It is now quite clear," the allied announcement said, "that the original 14th army has been dispersed to the four winds. All that remains is a few scattered remnants who mainly are engaged in stealing one another's transport to get away as fast as possible. Prisoners describe the situation as wholly chaotic."

Brings in Three Divisions.

The German commander, Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, not only has been forced to throw all except one of the 24 divisions he had in Italy into a desperate effort to slow the allied steamroller, but has brought in three fresh infantry divisions.

What is left of the Nazi 10th army, which once struck hammer blows at allied troops clinging to the Anzio beachhead, appears to have been put on an every-man-for-himself basis in the flight toward Florence.

"The most striking evidence of the degree of disintegration was provided by the fact that captured stragglers were provided with passes saying the bearer was authorized to proceed either alone or in small groups to an assembly place near Florence," the allies announced.

Across Italy the allied 5th and 8th armies pressed forward, meeting organized resistance only where the Nazis needed time to extricate their troops.

Overrun Avezzano.

Fifth army troops pushed thru the important road junction of Montefiascone near the shores of Lake Bolsena and fought on toward the town of Bolsena, eight miles beyond. Eighth army columns moving up both sides of the Tiber river north of Rome neared Bagno Regio and Rieti.

In the central sector the 8th army overran Avezzano and nearby Lake Fucino, which was drained some years ago and now is a 45,000 acre farm development. In the Adriatic sector all Germans had been cleared from the lower side of the Pescara river.

RUSSIANS DRIVE 8 MILES MORE TOWARD VIIPURI

LONDON, June 13 [Tuesday]—(AP).—Russian tanks and picked troops poured thru breaches in the Mannerheim line yesterday and seized Raivola in an eight mile advance that carried them to a point about 40 miles from the port of Viipuri, Finnish city second only to Helsinki itself.

Fighting thru woods laced with lakes, the Russians also overran Kivennapa [Kivinebb] about 10 miles northeast of Raivola, in their new offensive, which has Helsinki, the capital, as a goal.

Raivola lies eight miles beyond the coastal strong point of Terijoki, whose capture was announced Sunday. More than 30 other populated places were taken yesterday as the Russians swept up the western side of the Karelian isthmus, the broadcast soviet bulletin recorded here announced.

In a midnight supplement to the regular communique the Russians said the Finns were putting up increasingly stubborn resistance, but the Red army was overcoming all obstacles. The Red air force was playing an increasingly larger role.

[CBS recorded a London broadcast that "the Russians have landed tanks by air behind the Finnish troops."]

20 Finnish Planes Downed.

Twenty Finnish planes were reported shot down.

Dispatches from Moscow said the Red army had seized several large railroad centers beyond the 1938 Russo-Finnish border and that Finnish casualties, heavy from the start, were increasing.

More enemy positions were being rolled up hourly by the Russians under Col. Gen. Leonid Govorov.

Among the points taken was Kuokkala, six miles east of Terijoki, where dispatches said the studio of the famous Russian painter, Ilya Repin, was found in ruins.

Armistice Hopes Blasted.

The Russian guns blasted the hopes of an armistice that the soviet union has been trying to negotiate since mid-February.

The Stockholm, Sweden, correspondent of a Finnish newspaper, the Helsingin Sanomats, reported United States-Finnish relations were growing worse since the Russian drive began and speculated that there might be a diplomatic break shortly.

United States Aid Returns.

Edmund D. Guillon, American charge d'affaires, returned to Helsinki after a visit with legation officials at Stockholm and is expected to make a first hand report on the situation in Finland.

A German high command spokesman said that the Karelian drive could not be considered the start of the Russian summer offensive and that the Red army had so far used only "several divisions."

Elsewhere on the eastern front, Berlin reported, the Russians made local attacks northwest of Iasi, in the forefield of the Carpathian mountains, and in the area southeast of Rostov, all of which were repulsed.

PRESS WIRELESS READY AT FRONT TO FLASH NEWS

Most Efficient Setup Ever Used.

New York, June 12 [Special].—With a crew of picked men and batteries of specially designed communications equipment, Press Wireless, Inc., world-wide communications system organized in 1929 by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and associated newspapers, is behind the European invasion front ready to speed by radio telegraph, radio telephone, radio pictures and facsimile, news of the allies' advance on Berlin, it became known today. Actual operations will start as soon as the theater command directs.

The Press Wireless unit, one of the first of its kind to be formed, and the only radio communications group sponsored by the press and especially keyed to its requirements, is coöperating with the board of war communications, the signal corps of the army of the United States, and other radio communications agencies to help supply the most efficient facilities for radio transmission of news ever employed in war or in any other activity.

First Press Service.

This is the first time in history that the press has had its own radio communications service directly behind the battle lines. The facilities operated by Press Wireless will be available night and day to the more than 450 war correspondents, representing more than 115 organizations, who have been accredited to report the present war from the European front and to other authorized agencies.

The company's special radio station is of the most modern type, capable of sending and receiving all varieties of radio traffic, including broadcast transmissions to the broadcasting networks of the United States.

To Follow Invaders.

In addition to equipment for a semi-permanent station, a truck with transmitting and receiving sets and a unit for generating electric power to operate them, have been fitted out to follow the invaders and flash special bulletins and other news items. Operations of the fixed and mobile units will be under the supervision of the war theater's command.

The truck unit has both radio telephone and radio telegraph transmission apparatus. They can be operated separately or simultaneously. It is expected that this mobile transmitter will be able to send messages directly to the eastern receiving terminal of Press Wireless in the United States as well as to the company's high speed channels in London.

F. D. R. CABLES CLARK, '5TH ARMY MADE U. S. PEOPLE VERY HAPPY'

ROME, June 12 (AP).—President Roosevelt, in a telegram of congratulation to Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark, said "the 5th army made the American people very happy." The President cabled the 5th army head, "My congratulations to you and all your officers and men for a grand job well done." Clark replied: "All members of the 5th army deeply appreciate your message of congratulation. It is an inspiration to us all. We reaffirm our pledge to unrelenting blows against the enemy until his final defeat."

CARRIER RAID ON MARIANAS GOES INTO SECOND DAY

Planes Pound Guam and Other Isles Again.

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, June 12 (AP).—The American carrier task force operating in Japan's Marianas Islands has carried its operations there into the second day, a Pacific fleet announcement disclosed today. Carrier aircraft struck Guam, Tinian, Saipan, and Rota yesterday.

This followed up an earlier announcement of a carrier borne aircraft attack on the first three islands on Saturday.

Guam, at the extreme southern tip of the Marianas group, was the former United States naval base captured by the Japanese within a week after the start of the war.

Truk and Ponape Hit.

The latest announcement also reported air attacks on the Truk atoll and other islands. Air fields at Param, Eten, Dublon, and Moen Islands were principal targets. Several fires were started.

Ponape Island was bombed by 7th army air force Liberators on the night of June 9. Ponape town and gun positions were hit. Ventura search planes bombed Ocean Island during daylight Friday, encountering moderate anti-aircraft fire. Two of the planes continued to Nauru to strafe small craft there.

[illegible] the 7th army air force Mitchells [illegible] force bombed Nauru [illegible] started fires visible 20 miles. Heavy anti-aircraft fire downed one Mitchell bomber. A Catalina search plane of fleet airwing two rescued the crew. Enemy positions in the Marshalls were bombed and strafed for three days.

Cleaning Up Biak Isle.

ADVANCED ALLIED HDQ., New Guinea, June 13 [Tuesday]—(AP).—Japanese are being cleaned from their strong positions on Biak Island west of Mokmer airstrip, headquarters announced today.

American infantry troops were advancing westward from captured Mokmer drome Sunday against enemy machine gun fire coming from bunkers.

Headquarters also disclosed that Palau and Truk again were bombed Saturday night. Palau's airstrip was hit and installations on Truk were attacked by planes from southwest Pacific bases. Truk and Palau are 1,000 miles apart in the Caroline Island group.

At Sarmi in Dutch New Guinea, patrols reported 173 more enemy dead Sunday and 223 more at Hollandia. Sarmi is on the New Guinea mainland opposite Wakde Island.

Many of the enemy dead were victims of starvation and disease. Headquarters announced known enemy casualties in the Sarmi-Maffin bay area now total 1,911, and in the Hollandia-Aitape sector 4,795, including 629 prisoners.

Washington, D. C., June 12 (AP).—The toll of Japanese ships sunk by American submarines rose today to 607 with a navy announcement that 18 more enemy vessels had been sent to the bottom. The ships included one tanker, one medium transport, six medium cargo transports, six medium cargo vessels, and four small cargo vessels.

The submarine fleet in the Pacific now has stepped its average of sinkings up to better than two a day, with 63 ships accounted for in communiques during the last 30 days.

SLAVS REMOVE ENVOY TO U. S. IN BOW TO TITO

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, June 12.—Another step to eliminate Serb Nationalist influences in the royal Yugoslav government—the dismissal of Ambassador Constantin Fotic in Washington, D. C.,—with a view to reaching an agreement with Marshal Josip [Tito] Broz was announced by the government headquarters in London today.

One of the principal reasons for the ambassador's discharge, a Yugoslav official said, was his heated disagreement with the Yugoslav committee in the United States headed by Louis Adamic, an American author who is, by birth, a Slovene.

Tito's Partisans have opened an offensive in Serbia and caused more than 400 German casualties in stiff fighting on other fronts, the free Yugoslav bulletin said tonight. A German broadcast acknowledged a Partisan drive on the Croat-Serbian frontier, but said it had been halted. Both sides reported violent fighting in eastern Bosnia. Partisans said two Nazi bases were in peril.

He entered the army in September, 1942, and had been overseas since September of last year. A brother, William D., 19, is with the army in Italy, and another brother, Edward W., 24, is a motor machinist mate in New Guinea.

JAPS ENCIRCLE CHANGSHA, BUT CHINESE HOLD ON

Battle at Its Height at Rail City.

CHUNGKING, China, June 12 (AP).—Invader troops are pu[illegible] cessantly at all sides [illegible] Changsha against h[illegible] sistance, and [illegible] outer de[illegible] "fi[illegible] Chinese re[illegible] battle around the [illegible] has reached its [illegible] proportions," a Chinese bulletin said tonight, indicating virtual encirclement of the Canton-Hankow rail city.

Far to the west, however, near the Burma border, Chinese troops were mopping up enemy remnants in the outer areas of Lungling, Yunnan province base whose fall was announced yesterday. The Japanese still held strongly fortified positions on three hills outside the town, and attempted an unsuccessful flank attack from the south, a bulletin said.

While American bombers and fighters blasted enemy troops, river craft and installations over the Hunan front, the Chinese were holding in the area 15 miles northwest of Changsha, while north of the city the Japanese were fought to a standstill, the high command said.

Six Miles Away on East.

The Japanese also were driving on Changsha from the east only six miles away, and fighting was reported in all these sectors, with casualties heavy.

At the same time a new Japanese drive was developing northward along the railway in what Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, United States 14th air force commander, called a new push to establish an impregnable defense in China. With this new thrust, he said, the Chinese war has been brought to its greatest pitch since 1938.

This southern Japanese drive advanced five to 10 miles, reaching Fengtsun on the railway 30 miles north of Canton and 325 miles south of Changsha. Chennault said that if the Japanese were successful in clearing the entire Canton-Hankow railway and building defensive positions on it, the war could be prolonged for years.

Planes Kill 1,000 Japs.

Fifty miles northwest of Changsha the Japanese were again beaten back in a drive against Yiyang, just below Tung Ting lake, the Chinese said.

Fourteenth air force and Chinese-American composite wing fighters and bombers, some armed with rocket guns, were thrown into the battle for Changsha. In one attack on enemy troop and supply boats north of Changsha, the pilots reported killing or drowning 1,000 Japanese.

DRIVE JAPS THRU INDIA ALMOST TO BURMA BORDER

SOUTHEAST ASIA HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, June 12 (AP).—British troops clearing the enemy out of India have driven to a point 24 miles east of Kohima, almost to the Burma border, where renewed resistance has been encountered, a bulletin from Adm. Mountbatten's headquarters said today.

The Japanese lost 21,650 men killed in India and Burma since the first of the year, excluding their losses on the north Burma front, an allied officer estimated today.

He said that during May alone 7,800 Japanese were killed—1,180 by Maj. Gen. W. D. A. Lentaigne's Chindits, 1,220 on the Arakan front, 3,300 at Imphal, and 2,100 on the Kohima front.

PARATROOPS SAY GERMANS SHOT CAPTURED YANKS

BY HOWARD WHITMAN.

AN INVASION PORT, June 9 [Delayed].—Germans slit the throats of American paratroopers who became caught in trees and executed other paratroopers they captured by shooting them point blank in the face with rifles.

I didn't believe the first reports of Nazi atrocities brought back by paratroops, flight officers, and air borne infantrymen evacuated to this port with minor wounds. I thought it was battle hysteria. But verification and substantiation came with each new boat load of evacuees.

Reports Corroborated.

I heard reports corroborated by no fewer than 75 American officers and men who had taken part in the air borne landings and obtained verification from members of the United States army public relations department who also talked to the evacuees as they arrived here. Here are a few of the stories they pleaded with me to tell:

Corp. Leonard Hicks of Los Angeles, who landed at 1:20 a. m. on D-Day—five hours before the first invasion forces hit the beaches—said he saw an American army medical corpsman kneel over a wounded German to give first aid. He was preparing bandages when the German with a quick thrust of his right hand whipped out a trench knife and slit the medic's throat. Several members of Hicks' regiment confirmed the story.

"Ghosts Over It."

"[illegible] you know the medic was [illegible] one paratrooper. [illegible] threat before [illegible] on him, [illegible] helpless.

"He slit the m[illegible] any of us could draw a [illegible] and gloated over it afterward[illegible] wanted to kill him with my bare hands, but the officer insisted we take him prisoner in the usual way."

Pvt. Victor Wilson of Long Island City, Long Island, related:

"One first aid man who jumped with us was caught in a tree and was hanging there helplessly. I saw a German rush up to him and climb the tree as if to help him down. When the German was within reach of the medic he motioned him to reach his hands down so he could get hold of them. The medic did so. The German grabbed him by one hand, holding the medic in a defenseless position. Then he pulled a bayonet out of his belt and cut the medic's throat."

Wilson said that when the dawn light came up on D-Day they found the bodies of several men draped over hedges, their faces blasted away. German prisoners taken by paratroops admitted these men had been executed. They'd been lined up in front of hedgerows and German executioners had placed rifle muzzles within eight inches of the paratroops' heads and shot them pointblank.

Michigan Officer's Story.

Flight Officers Samuel Derr of Bay City, Mich.; Primo Ceravolo of Toledo, O.; Jack Phillips of Oakland, Cal.; Wyatt Dodd of Lorain, O., and Vincent Lindquist of Avon, Mass., told of seeing medics who ran out to help a wounded sky trooper shot down by German sharpshooters, tho their Red Cross arm bands were clearly visible.

The flight officers also said German sharpshooters in trees had fired at medics in a first aid station that had been set up on the edge of a town tho the station "had red crosses painted all over it." "We saw them shoot down two medics as they came out of the doorway to aid wounded," a spokesman said.

LT. LEO P. HARTMAN, 24, WAUKEGAN PILOT, IS KILLED IN PACIFIC

Word that her son, 2d Lt. Leo P. Hartman, 24, was killed in action over Los Negros Island in the Southwest Pacific while co-piloting a B-24 Liberator bomber May 27 was received from the war department yesterday by Mrs. Maude Hartman of 610 Washington st., Waukegan.

Lt. Leo P. Hartman.

Mrs. Hartman only a few days ago received word from her son's commander that the lieutenant had been awarded the air medal.

Lt. Hartman was an expert swimmer and in March had saved the life of his navigator while the bomber crew was swimming off a South Pacific island. He had won medals in THE TRIBUNE's swimming contests in 1934 and 1935, and was on the swimming team at the University of Illinois prior to his graduation in June, 1942, and enlistment 10 days afterward. He won his wings at Pampa, Tex., Aug. 30, 1943.

REPORT TRIBUNE MAN MISSING ON RAID IN AUSTRIA

With 25 bomber missions to his credit since April 1, Sgt. Robert Freislinger, 23, employed for 18 months before his enlistment on Oct. 31, 1942, in the Tribune rotogravure pressroom, was reported missing in action yesterday. [illegible] war depart[illegible] his [illegible] parents, [illegible] Mrs. Julius Freis[illegible] linger of 56 E. [illegible] Chicago av., that the B-24 Liber[illegible] on which he was engineer-gunner did not return from a mission over Austria on May 24.

Mrs. Clara T. Freislinger, mother of the missing sergeant, said she received her last letter from him, dated May 23, only a few days ago.

In the letter, she said, he wrote he had just completed his 25th mission, adding he hoped the next 25 missions would be no more difficult. He was a member of the 721st squadron of the 15th air force. His mother said he had arrived in England last April 1.

SURVIVES SHIP SINKING ON WAY HOME FROM WAR

After nearly a year in the South Pacific, David H. Senger, 28, machinist's mate 2d class, survived fresh dangers when the Liberty ship Henry Bergh, on which he was returning to the United States on leave, broke up 38 miles off San Francisco harbor.

David H. Senger.

He told about it yesterday at the home of his mother, Mrs. G. T. Heile, 100 S. Harvey av., Oak Park. There was no loss of life, he said, but many soldiers and sailors aboard the ship lost souvenirs they were bringing home.

Senger was on a destroyer during the invasion of Tarawa. It was not until later that he discovered that his twin brother, Donald W. Senger, was among the marines making the landing. Senger entered the navy in November, 1942, and received his basic training at the Great Lakes Naval Training center. He received additional training at Purdue university.

F. D. R.'S COUSIN QUITS HIDEOUT IN ROMAN CONVENT

ROME, June 12 (AP).—Mrs. Margaret Roosevelt Pallavicini, cousin of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, who eluded Germans by hiding in a convent during the Nazi occupation of Rome, said today she once saw a German plane bomb a nearby hospital "apparently so it would be blamed on the Americans."

With her daughter, Julia, 6, Mrs. Pallavicini remained in the convent to avoid capture by the Germans, who knew she was related to President and Mrs. Roosevelt. She is the daughter of George Emlen Roosevelt of New York, a first cousin of Mrs. Roosevelt and a more distant cousin of the President.

Bombs Fall in Garden.

"The convent is near the Tiburtina railroad yards," she related, "and lots of bombs fell nearby. We usually ran thru the garden to an air raid shelter. One day in March I looked out and saw planes coming straight for us. We didn't have time to leave the convent and this was lucky, as seven bombs fell in the garden. It's a terrible thing to be bombed by your own people."

Relating the incident of the hospital bombing she said: "We always knew, of course, the Americans were aiming for military objectives and their bombing was as accurate as possible, I suppose, even tho a few bombs hit other places."

Mrs. Pallavicini was married to Alessandro Pallavicini, an Italian newsreel producer, in 1935, and has lived in Italy since. To avoid the Germans and fascists he entered Vatican City. They were reunited after the Americans entered Rome.

Princess Sees Battle.

Among other American women who lived under German terror in Rome are Princess Jeannie Perkins Colonna, formerly of New York, and her 72 year old mother, Mrs. Mary Beard Perkins. Miss Perkins married Prince Fabrizio Colonna of one of Rome's most distinguished families, in 1923.

[illegible] don't know what a thrill it [illegible] Americans came into [illegible] Rome," Princ[illegible] and the prince had [illegible] narrowest escape just as the [illegible] mericans entered. Upon hearing American Sherman tanks rumble into a square near their home, they ran out to greet them. A German armored car at the other end of the square opened fire which the American tanks returned. The prince and princess found themselves in the midst of a battle until the German car was knocked out.

Countess Also Safe.

Another American woman who spent the war in Rome is Countess Carolyn Di Robilant, who was Carolyn Kent of Asheville, N. C. She has two sisters in America, Mrs. Barbara Keller, wife of an attache in the Swiss legation in Washington, and Mrs. Weldon Williamson of Asheville.

All these American women had the same request—to send word to their relatives in America that they were safe. Most of them had no word from their families since Pearl Harbor. They were extremely happy over the arrival of American troops, but still hardly able to believe that they could walk about and say what they liked.

Other Women in Rome.

Among the other American women who passed the war in Rome were:

Countess Frances Sanders Del Balzo, formerly of St. Paul, Minn., whose husband is in Ankara, where he was assistant Italian military attache.

Countess Natalie Coe Vitetti, formerly of Long Island, N. Y.

Mrs. Lydia Macy Bodrero, formerly of San Francisco, Cal., and her 17 year old daughter, Edith Macy.

HIGHLAND PARK NAVIGATOR LOST IN AUSTRIA RAID

Mrs. Bette E. Hansen, civilian photographer at Great Lakes Naval Training center, yesterday was notified that her husband, Lt. Harry E. Hansen Jr., 25, navigator of a Liberator bomber, was reported missing in action over Austria on May 29.

They lived in Highland Park.

CHICAGO OPENS BOND DRIVE WITH HOME LINE PEP

100,000 Volunteers Act as Salespersons.

The curtain was raised yesterday on the biggest home front show in the nation since the beginning of World War II.—the 5th war loan drive to sell bonds to back the allied invasion of Europe. In Chicago and Cook county the campaign started in clockwork fashion as 100,000 volunteers set out on assignments.

Pep programs and bond rallies among employes in factories and business establishments, bond shows and other ceremonies in the loop, the dropping of a million leaflets from a transport plane, and a barrage balloon flying over Grant park marked initiation of the drive.

Confident of Reaching Goal.

Philip R. Clarke, general chairman of the campaign, reiterated his expression of confidence in the people of Chicago and Cook county and their ability to meet the quota of $894,104,000 between now and July 8 when the drive closes. Every penny in bond money will go into the national pot to buy guns and tanks, planes and ships and ammunition to bring the war against the axis to a successful and speedy conclusion, it was emphasized.

Typifying the spirit of the men in the armed services, Clarke's sons, both home on leaves from the army and navy, participated in a ceremony yesterday at war finance headquarters, 105 W. Adams st., where they each purchased a $1,000 bond from their father. They are Lt. Philip R. Clarke Jr., 30, of the navy, and Staff Sgt. Norman F. Clarke, 23, of the army.

Mayor Kelly Talks.

A thousand employes held a bond rally at the Scholl Manufacturing company, 213 W. Schiller st., where talks were given by Mayor Kelly and Sgt. Ralph Peck, marine veteran of 15 island attacks in the Southwest Pacific. Goldblatt Brothers, Inc., 333 S. State st., sponsored a bond show in State st., where members of the cast of "Alaskan Stampede" appeared.

The quota for Illinois in this drive is $1,107,000,000. Other state quotas include Indiana, $281,000,000, and Wisconsin, $298,000,00.

Kenilworth residents exceeded their $792,000 bond quota by buying more than $1,000,000 worth in a few hours last night. Mrs. Harry S. Demaree was chairman of the drive, aided by Mrs. Walter Marx and Mrs. John Nuveen Jr., co-chairmen, and 140 workers.

SENATE PASSES BILL TO PROVIDE VETS' BENEFITS

Washington, D. C., June 12 (AP).—The senate today passed and sent to the house a compromise version of the "G. I. bill of rights" embodying a comprehensive program of benefits for veterans of the present war.

Rep. George [D., Ga.], chairman of the finance committee, told his colleagues senate conferees had agreed to house insistence that benefits a veteran gets under the bill will be deducted from any bonus he may be voted.

Under the measure, a veteran would be entitled to unemployment compensation of $20 a week for 52 weeks should he or she be out of a job during the first two years after discharge. If his or her education was interrupted upon entering the service the veteran could get a year's schooling, and in some cases a complete college education, with the government paying $500 for a year's tuition, plus $50 a month for subsistence and another $25 for dependents.

The government would guarantee 50 per cent of private loans, at 4 per cent interest, up to a maximum of $2,000 to enable veterans to enter business or farming or to buy a home.

YOUNG OFFICER DIES IN FLORIDA PLANE ACCIDENT

Second Lt. John Ryan, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Ryan, 315 Cuttriss pl., Park Ridge, was killed yesterday in an airplane accident near Jacksonville, Fla., his parents were advised by the field commandant.

Lt. Ryan had been graduated as a naval pilot at Pensacola, Fla., and was selected to receive additional training in the marines. The message gave no details of the accident.

Lt. Ryan was graduated from Maine Township High school in 1941 and attended Dartmouth for two years. He enlisted in the naval aviation in Boston in October, 1942, and was called to active service in March, 1943.

U.S. WAR COSTS HIT 200 BILLION AND GET BIGGER

Morgenthau Outlines Expensive Operations

Texarkana, Ark., June 12 (AP).—The United States has spent $200,000,000,000 on the war so far and before the year is out another $95,000,000,000 will be spent, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said here tonight to officially open the fifth war loan drive.

"Gen. Marshall told me last Wednesday before he left for England that our war expenditure for the last three months of this year will be the highest yet and that we've just started," the treasury head said in a four network broadcast that opened the campaign for $16,000,000,000.

"To march from Naples to Rome cost $6,700,000,000. I leave it to you to imagine what it will cost to march from Rome to Berlin.

6 Billion for Marshalls.

"The cost of taking the Marshall Islands was $6,000,000,000. I leave it to you to imagine what it will cost us to go from the Marshall Islands to Tokyo."

Urging support of the fifth war loan drive, Morgenthau stated: "The harder we fight the sooner we're going to win. If our armed forces don't get the money they need—all the money they need—they can't fight as hard, and they can't win as soon. It's just as simple as that.

No Time to Relax.

"The war isn't over yet. Our military leaders and the men fighting under their command ardently hope and sincerely believe that there are no Americans who need to be told that this is the wrong time to relax.

"This is a time for reaffirming that faith by which we live—that fighting faith with which our country—together with all free countries—defends its life today—that marching faith by which free peoples are moving into the future."

PROBERS LEARN HUNDREDS VIEW CENSORED MAIL

BY PHILIP DODD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 12.—Four United States senators, a committee clerk, and Censorship Director Byron Price settled down this afternoon to hear from a procession of state department witnesses how that department guards the secrecy of its communications, including "intercepts" from censored foreign mail. They learned:

1. Hundreds of state department employes have access to excerpts from letters opened by the censorship office.

2. A $1,600 a year Negro file clerk opens envelopes from division chiefs, marked "to be destroyed," and goes thru them to see that no needed correspondence gets in by mistake.

3. The clerk dumps the "to be destroyed" matter in a basket, takes it on an elevator four floors down to the basement, and watches a caretaker toss the documents into an incinerator.

Delve Into Kellems Case.

These revelations came at a hearing before a senate postoffice subcommittee inquiring into the publication by Drew Pearson, newspaper gossip columnist and radio commentator, of censored letters between Miss Vivien Kellems, Bridgeport, Conn., business woman, and Frederick Karl von Zedlitz, a German industrial agent living in Argentina, who is on the state department commercial blacklist.

Under subpena, Price showed the committee the originals of the letters Miss Kellems wrote Von Zedlitz. He had refused to make them available at Saturday's hearing. The portions of the letters made public by Pearson on the radio and by Rep. Coffee [D., Wash.] in a recent house speech were read into the hearing record.

Price had indicated at previous hearings of the committee that the leak had been in the state department, where portions of the correspondence were sent for perusal.

The state department witnesses who testified told the committee that "every effort" was made to keep the correspondence from falling into unauthorized hands, but George P. Shaw, head of the foreign activities correlation division, admitted that "every one except the office boys and the charwomen" has a chance to see censored mail sent to the department.

Hundreds Handle Mail.

Shaw said "at least 100" persons in his division had access to the correspondence. Miss Ruth B. Shipley, chief of the passport division, said 220 persons in her division handled such mail. Raymond H. Geist, communications and records chief, to whom censored mail comes for filing or destruction, said there were 500 employes in his division.

After tracing the course of the censored mail thru various state department divisions, the committee learned from Geist about the final disposition of the letters—examination by the Negro file clerk and filing or destruction.

The envelopes marked "to be destroyed" are opened, Geist said, to determine whether any material consigned to the archives is included, and also because tightly packed envelopes do not burn readily. An armed guard accompanies the clerk to the basement incinerator, Geist said.

Geist said he could guarantee that the mail was destroyed as directed.

Deny Knowing Pearson.

"How do you know? When did you attend the last burning?" demanded Sen. McKellar [D., Tenn.].

"Two months ago," Geist said.

Sen. Reed [R., Kas.] asked each witness if he knew Drew Pearson. Each asserted he had never even seen the columnist, who has boasted in print of his wide knowledge of the state department.

Shaw attributed the wide distribution of the Kellems-Von Zedlitz correspondence in the state department to Miss Kellems' application for a passport to visit Brazil early in the war and to the fact that Von Zedlitz is regarded as "undesirable" by the department because of his connections with German business interests.

Francis H. Russel, chief of the department's division of world trade intelligence, said Von Zedlitz was put on the "proclaimed" list last Feb. 11. He said the list contains the names of 500,000 firms and individuals thruout the world suspected of trading with the enemy.

PREDICTS G.O.P. CONVENTION TO VOTE BY 3D DAY

Balloting at the Republican national convention, which opens here June 26, may start the third day, Walter S. Hallanan, arrangements committee chairman, said yesterday. The tentative program calls for the first session at 11 a. m. June 26. Work of the resolutions committee, winding up with adoption of the G. O. P. platform, will be concluded before the third day if all goes well. This committee meets June 22.

War bond speeches were added to the program yesterday. Hallanan announced that invitations to speak were sent to Sen. Brooks, Gov. Hickenlooper of Iowa, and Gov. Barton of Pennsylvania. Whether midwest G. O. P. leaders will regard this as a mere sop in their drive for substantial recognition could not be determined immediately. All convention officials and speakers had been selected from the east and west coasts.

A. A. Hoopengarner, chief of the Bricker publicity staff, arrived in Chicago yesterday and will remain thru the convention. T. H. Muenner of Omaha, Neb., president of the national string of Bricker for President clubs, also opened headquarters here to advance the candidacy of the Ohio governor.

SWISS HEAR REPORT NAZIS SHOT WEYGAND

LONDON, June 12 (AP).—French officers imprisoned at Koenigsberg were told by the Germans that Gen. Maxime Weygand, 77, former commander in chief of the French army, was "shot while attempting to escape, a Reuters dispatch from Zurich said today. Weygand commanded allied armies just before the fall of France, succeeding Gen. Gamelin after the German break-thru in May, 1940. Weygand disappeared after the Germans overran all of France following the allied landings in North Africa in November, 1942.

HOOSIER DOWNS NAZI PLAYING TAG IN PARIS

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 13 [Tuesday]—(AP).—Lt. Rupert M. Tumlin of Lafayette, Ind., who flew one of the fighter planes that swarmed over France today, made his first kill right in Paris. He got on the tail of a Messerschmitt 109 and the German ducked into the streets and tried to save himself by dodging around buildings.

Among other flyers credited with kills were Lt. James D. Ruscitto, 4242 Scoville av., Berwyn, Ill.; Lt. Glennon T. Moran, Granite City, Ill., and Lt. Lawrence E. McCarthy, Detroit, half a kill. Capt. Wallace Emmer of St. Louis bagged one to bring his total to 12. In action yesterday Lt. Peter White, 1018 N. State st., Chicago, and Capt. Mack Strohm, West Union, Ill., were credited with a kill each.

F. D. R. CHARGES LAST DITCH NAZI DRIVE ON JEWS

Washington, D. C., June 12 (AP).—President Roosevelt said today that the Nazis, facing defeat, are carrying on a "fiendish extermination campaign" against the oppressed peoples of Europe and added that this government is determined to punish "all participants in these acts of savagery."

"This nation is appalled by the systematic persecution of helpless minority groups," he said in a report to congress.

"As the hour of the final defeat of the Hitlerite forces draws closer the fury of their insane desire to wipe out the Jewish race in Europe continues undiminished. This is but one example; many Christian groups also are being murdered."

Termed Principle of War.

"Knowing that they have lost the war, the Nazis are determined to complete their program of mass extermination. This program is but one manifestation of Hitler's aim to salvage from military defeat victory for Nazi principles — the very principles which this war must destroy unless we shall have fought in vain."

The President reported in message to congress on work done by the United States to find temporary havens for refugees of the European war.

He explained that the nearly 1,000 refugees who will be cared for in a military camp near Oswego, N. Y., will be returned to their homeland in southern Italy as soon as possible after hostilities cease.

Questions F. D. R.'s Authority.

Mr. Roosevelt said the war refugee board—composed of the secretaries of state, treasury, and war—has "brought new hope to the oppressed peoples of Europe."

Sen. Holman [R., Ore.], questioned in the senate today the authority of President Roosevelt to provide a haven here for the refugees. He said he was "in sympathy with the humanitarian problem involved," but read into the senate record a section of the immigration statute providing penalties for persons aiding the entry of aliens who are not admissible under immigration quotas.

BRICKER SPURT AUGURS LIVELY G. O. P. CONCLAVE

First Ballot Selection Appears Unlikely.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 12.—Despite earlier contrary indications, all signs today point to one of the liveliest national conventions in the history of the Republican party. The convention will meet in Chicago two weeks from today.

It now looks as if the contest over the nomination for President is going to be a real battle. A few weeks ago most Republican leaders thought the nomination would go to Gov. Dewey of New York on a silver platter and on the first ballot. Such is the strength developed by Gov. Bricker of Ohio, however, that a first ballot nomination is now regarded as unlikely.

Bricker is waging a vigorous campaign, hammering at the internationalists with whom Dewey aligned himself in his New York speech by his advocacy of international cooperation to preserve peace without the stipulation that there must be no surrender of American sovereignty. The Ohio governor has denounced the internationalist schemes, including the super-state and an international police force in which American sovereignty would be submerged.

Challenges Dewey.

Also, without naming the New York governor, Bricker is challenging Dewey to throw off the cloak of silence and debate the issues of the hour. Dewey has ignored the challenge, continuing to maintain the position that he is not a candidate and is intent on finishing his term as governor in 1946, refusing to answer the while the question whether he would accept or reject the nomination.

No. 1 in the pro-Dewey arsenal of arguments is the contention that short of a landslide for either ticket New York will be the pivotal state in the election and that the incumbent governor is the best qualified to carry the state for the Republicans. In 1938, Dewey came within 65,000 votes of beating Gov. Lehman. In 1942 Dewey was elected governor by a majority of 244,000. In the election of a lieutenant governor in 1943 the contest was a showdown between President Roosevelt and Dewey, whose candidate, Joseph E. Hanley, won by a majority of 393,000.

Claims for Bricker.

Bricker is regarded by his partisans as equally well qualified to carry New York. They say that the reception he has received in his eastern speaking tours is the best evidence of his popularity in that region. If Bricker should be nominated he would have the unquestioned and unqualified support of Gov. Dewey and the Republican state organization that Dewey has built up. Moreover, New York continues to furnish evidence of a Republican trend that the New Deal has been unable to check. Only last week the 11th New York Congressional district that has always been Democratic elected a Republican congressman by a landslide. And Dewey did not figure in this election.

There may be a convention contest also over the nomination of a candidate for Vice President. If Dewey should win he unquestionably would pick Gov. Warren of California for his running mate, on the theory that California and Washington are doubtful states which Warren would be best equipped to carry for the Republicans. Warren, however, says he does not want the nomination and there would be potent reasons for naming a midwesterner, such as Gov. Bricker, Gov. Green of Illinois, or Gov. Hickenlooper of Iowa. If Bricker should be nominated, second place would go undoubtedly to the east coast or the west.

Platform Fight Likely.

The platform may produce a fight with plenty of fireworks. Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] is going to submit a foreign policy plank on behalf of the Republican post-war advisory council modeled on the Mackinac Island declaration. Nationalists, who regard the Mackinac formula weasel worded, will seek a thorogoing pronouncement safeguarding American sovereignty in international coöperation.

Republican National Chairman Spangler will reach the convention scene Thursday. According to a published report his retention as chairman after the convention will be strongly opposed. The fact is, of course, that, in accord with invariable practice, the Presidential nominee will select a new chairman as campaign manager, to whom Spangler will turn over his office after the convention.

'Day by Day on the Farm.

The FARM by Bob Becker

June 12, 1944.

In the south, the mocking bird may operate on a 24 hour singing schedule, which makes it tops as a songster, for we can think of few performances in the world of birds more delightful than the soft muted notes of a mocker in the middle of a balmy moonlit spring night. Birds that come north to spend the summer on the farm cannot compete with the mocking bird in nocturnal concert singing. Altho one cannot overlook the catbird, the brown thrasher, and the wood thrush, which are noted as skillful songsters, they are not addicted to staying awake nights to entertain country dwellers with their musical offerings.

Cuckoo Midnight Singer.

However, during the last few weeks one feathered resident on the farm did make itself heard in the middle of the night. It was the yellow billed cuckoo, the bird that has—but doesn't deserve—the ugly name of rain crow. If outdoor fans could have been on the farm, in the forest preserves, or in the wooded areas along the north shore on some of the warm moonlit nights that we had around the first of the month, they would have heard the cuckoo breaking out in song. During that spell of warm weather we checked one bird that was making itself heard between 12 p. m. and 1 a. m.

The song of the cuckoo is a series of notes without much variation in pitch. The night we listened for the cuckoo's singing, it repeated one phrase, "ko . . . ko . . . ko," several times.

An extremely useful bird on the farm because of the way it attacks hairy caterpillars, the cuckoo is a real friend of the agriculturist. Just as the bluebird is a harbinger of spring, so this streamlined unperturbed cuckoo is a harbinger of summer, for it always comes north when trees and shrubs have on their greenest finery.

Rain Crow a Shy Bird.

About the time the shooting stars appear and the wild geraniums are fading we can expect to see the yellow billed cuckoo slipping furtively thru the woods. It's a shy bird, so shy, in fact, that few country dwellers would ever know it was around if it were not for its peculiar song.

Many farmers know the cuckoo as the rain crow whose "chuck-a—ko—ko" song is supposed to predict the approach of rain. In some localities, it is known as the storm crow. We have heard some people speak of it as the chow-chow bird, which is a definite reference to its unusual song.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

GARDENERS who planted head lettuce from seed in April should be making their semi-final thinnings now. None of the thinnings should be discarded, because the young plants can be eaten as leaf lettuce or transplanted to other rows of the garden.

Heads of the standard varieties, such as Big Boston and New York, can be thinned to stand six to eight inches apart now, and later every other plant can be harvested and the remainder left to reach full maturity. The smaller types, especially the Bibb variety, can be thinned to stand four to five inches apart now; they need only 10 inches between plants to reach full size.

Head lettuce seedlings are easily transplanted. This job should be done after sundown and the plants well watered in their new location.

OHIOAN TO OFFER BRICKER'S NAME TO CONVENTION

Cincinnati Mayor Is a Notable Orator.

Maine Unpledged

Augusta, Me., June 12 (AP).—William S. Linnel, Republican national committeeman for Maine, said today Maine's 13 vote delegation to the Chicago national convention "will go wholly unpledged." United States Sen. White, was elected chairman of the delegation at an organization meeting.

Columbus, O., June 12 [Special].—Gov. Bricker of Ohio announced today the speech nominating him for President at the Republican convention in Chicago will be made by James Garfield Stewart, mayor of Cincinnati and Republican nominee for governor of Ohio.

Stewart, 64, is an attorney with a state-wide reputation as an orator. His selection recalled to persons familiar with Ohio history that Stewart's namesake, James A. Garfield, once made a celebrated nominating speech at a Republican convention which created such a favorable impression that it resulted in the nomination of the nominator rather than the nominee.

Grant-Blaine Deadlock.

Garfield went to the convention in 1880 and made a speech nominating John Sherman of Mansfield, O., who had been secretary of the treasury in the cabinet of President Hayes. The convention developed into a deadlock between former President Grant and James G. Blaine.

On the 34th ballot, it was recalled, Wisconsin cast its 16 votes for Garfield. Other delegates, remembering the Ohioan's moving speech, followed suit, precipitating a stampede which led to Garfield's nomination, followed by his election as President.

Mayor Stewart, portly and affable, is serving his third term as mayor of Cincinnati after five consecutive terms in the city council. He owes his name to the fact his father, James Eli Stewart, was treated for wounds in the battle of Shiloh by Garfield, then a young officer in the Union army.

Gov. Bricker said there will be four short "seconding" speeches and that he will announce later who will deliver them. Back from New York, where he made two radio talks last week, the governor said he plans to submit to the convention's resolutions committee on June 23 a report of the post-war committee on industry, enterprise, and employment of the governors' conference, of which he is chairman.

Paratroopers D-Day Cry Honored Wounded Pal

Instead of their yell, "Geronimo!" paratroopers landing in France on D-Day used a special battle cry, the official Army Hour has disclosed on its broadcast. The invasion war cry was "Bill Lee." It was given in tribute to the first paratrooper to become a battle casualty. Lee, it was disclosed, now is a patient in Walter Reed hospital in Washington. "Geronimo" was inspired by a fierce and ruthless Apache chief bearing that name.

TEXAS 4TH TERM BATTLE CARRIED TO STATE COURT

Suit Follows Setback to Roosevelt Backers.

Austin, Tex., June 12 [Special].—The Texas fight over Presidential electors was carried to the state Supreme court here today after the Democratic state executive committee, meeting in Dallas, refused by a 36 to 6 vote to sanction a move by pro-Roosevelt forces to have the selection of the party's Presidential electors made by popular vote at the state's primary July 22.

Three Supreme court justices took under advisement a petition filed by Alvin J. Wirtz, former undersecretary of the interior, as attorney for the pro-Roosevelt group, asking permission to apply for a writ of mandamus against the party's executive committee.

The application, Wirtz told the justices, will be for a writ compelling the committee to certify to the secretary of state a slate of Roosevelt-pledged electors for inclusion on the primary ballot. These electors were selected by a rump state convention of Roosevelt Democrats.

Committee Spurns Action.

The committee voted against taking such action at its Dallas meeting earlier this afternoon when it turned down a resolution to this effect.

Presidential electors in the past have been selected by state party conventions without being submitted to the voters in the primaries, and slates filed with the secretary of state by party committees have been voted on only in general elections, political observers said.

Wirtz explained that his lawsuit is based on a provision in the state law requiring all state officers to be nominated in popular primaries. He is contending that Presidential electors are state officers.

The Democratic state convention May 23 named a list of electors under instructions that under certain circumstances they need not vote for the party's candidate for President in the electoral college. This action percipitated a bolt from the convention by Roosevelt followers, who subsequently named their own slate of electors at a rump convention.

Must Try "Other Court."

In Washington, Sen. O'Daniel [D., Tex.] commented that the pro-Roosevelt faction in Texas would "have to go to some other Supreme court than in Texas" to get its Presidental electors on the primary ballot.

"They won't get any injustice there," he was quoted as saying. "They'll have to go to a higher court, and that's the Supreme court of the United States. It's stacked."

SAYS U.S. FACES LAST CHANCE TO KEEP FREE

Dr. Gleason Archer, chairman of the American Democratic National committee anti-fourth term organization, in a letter appealing to voters for funds yesterday said that the country is confronted by its last chance to "save America from foreign minded political wolves."

"You know the evil the New Deal has already done," said the letter. "You know it is 'sparked' by alien minded internationalists, striving to submerge us as a people in a world state—headed by some alien group—and to blot out forever our sovereignty as a nation.

"A fourth term for Mr. Roosevelt means four more years for his New Deal to communize the business and industry of the United States; poison American education; destroy every ideal bequeathed to us by the founders of the republic; wipe out human liberty; make robots of American citizens in some dreamy international setup, controled by aliens."

Friend of the Yanks' Kin

BY SALLY JOY BROWN

Mrs. D. T. writes: "Is there a limit on the letters which may be written to prisoners of war in Germany? Are prisoners restricted as to the number of letters they may write?"

ANSWER: Germany places no restrictions on the length of letters which prisoners of war may receive, but short letters, typed or printed, facilitate censorship. The number of letters which may be sent to a prisoner of war is not limited, but the number which a prisoner may write is determined by the detaining power. We have a new bulletin which provides complete information on communications to prisoners of war, which may be had by sending in a stamped, addressed envelope.

Mrs. O. S. writes: "I read recently that widows and children of veterans of World War II, with service connected disabilities, who die of other causes, are now entitled to dependents' pensions similar to those paid when death is due to a service connected disability. My husband saw service in this war and was given a medical discharge due to an injury. He died recently, but his death was not attributed to his injury. Is it possible that I can receive a pension for myself and the children?"

ANSWER: It is true that there has been legislation which provides dependents' pensions in cases such as yours. These, however, are in lesser amounts than would be paid if the death were due to a service connected disability. It would be best for you to contact the veterans' administration. When you write it is important that you remember to include all information concerning your husband. The veterans' administration has found that dependents do not understand the necessity of identifying the veterans in order to obtain prompt service. The master index now contains more than 19 million names of veterans, living and dead. Included in these are some 200,000 Smiths, of whom 12,000 have the given name of John. This demonstrates the difficulty involved in identifying the veteran unless specific information is supplied. To facilitate all correspondence the full name of the veteran, the date of his birth, his serial number, rank, and organization in service must be included.

G. O. P. TO ADD HOUSE SEAT IN ELECTION TODAY

Decatur, Ill., June 12 (AP).—With no contest in sight, the Republicans figure on picking up an additional seat in the national house of representatives tomorrow in a special congressional election in the 19th Illinois district.

The only name on the ballot is that of Republican Rolla C. McMillen, a Decatur attorney. No Democrat sought the nomination.

The Republicans now hold 211 seats in the house, compared with 216 for the Democrats. Minor parties have four and there are four vacancies.

COURT RESTRICTS QUIZ OF SEDITION TRIAL WITNESS

BY PHILIP WARDEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 12.—After admonishing a defense attorney three times for too lengthy cross-examination of a government witness in the sedition trial, Chief Justice Edward C. Eicher today ordered that the 20 defense attorneys yet to examine the witness be allowed only three minutes each for their examinations.

This step was taken by Justice Eicher to permit the witness, Henry J. Nord, deputy customs collector from Los Angeles, Cal., to catch a 5:30 p. m. train to California. Prosecutor Joseph W. Burns had advised the court that if Nord didn't catch this train he wouldn't be able to get another reservation to Los Angeles "for one month."

Justice Eicher directed that if at some later date defense attorneys presented "persuasive" evidence to him showing that they could not "safely" proceed without further testimony from Nord, he would have Nord recalled.

Identifies 14 Volumes.

Nord had been put on the stand to identify 14 volumes, of several hundred pages each, compiled under his direction, recording the names of persons to whom was addressed subversive, nonmailable foreign literature seized by the postoffice department in 1941 at the ports of Los Angeles and San Francisco.

While the prosecution had put Nord on the stand merely to identify the records, defense attorneys devoted the entire day to their cross-examination of him. Justice Eicher acted to expedite their examination after James J. Laughlin, attorney for two of the defendants, took what the court considered excessive time thumbing thru the volumes between questions.

Mrs. F. D. R. on List.

"It has been five minutes since your last question," Justice Eicher interposed at one point.

In the examination of the witness, it was disclosed that the documents seized by the government were subsequently destroyed by the postoffice department. Nord said the department had instructions to seize more than 2,000 foreign publications considered subversive and consequently nonmailable.

Among the persons to whom these publications were sent, it was disclosed in the cross-examination, were Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, who got the Japan Times weekly, from Tokyo; the late Sen. James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, the late Gen. Hugh Johnson, Supreme Court Justice Black, War Mobilization Director Byrnes, Sen. Smith [D., S. C.] and many others well known to the public.

COURT DECIDES WE DON'T BALLOT ON OUR RULERS

Washington, D. C., June 12 (AP).—The Supreme court today amended a sentence in its recent opinion that Negroes have the right to vote in Texas Democratic primaries.

The sentence read originally, "Under our Constitution the great privilege of choosing his rulers may not be denied a man by the state because of his color."

As amended today, "Under our Constitution the great privilege of the ballot may not be denied a man by the state because of his color."

DUNKIRK TO CHERBOURG.

Four years ago at this time in June the premier of France, Reynaud, escaping from Paris to Tours, called on Mr. Roosevelt, from whom he had reason to expect help, for clouds of airplanes. Clouds of aircraft were what the desperate French head of government had seen were necessary. If he did not know that Mr. Roosevelt, among his clouds, had none of the sort wanted, he was badly and unnecessarily deceived. Mr. Roosevelt had been thundering in the index for nearly three years.

Four years ago at this time Mr. Churchill made the disintegrating government of Reynaud his astonishing offer of joint citizenship in a political union of France and Great Britain if only France would continue in the fight. Mr. Churchill must now regard this as an error pardonable only because of the terrors of the period following the flight from Dunkirk. He must also think how fortunate he was not to have been taken up. Neither he nor his successor will have an incongruous political association to liquidate.

The clouds of airplanes are over France now in numbers the Germans never expected to see. Reynaud and some of his war government associates are languishing in jail. Their trial at Riom had to be broken up because it was getting out of hand and proving of more embarrassment to the prosecutors than to the accused. They may live to be liberated, to what sort of a reception no one can tell. The great mistakes of France covered a period of years and involved many men. If liberated France hunts for victims of retribution among Frenchmen the list may be a long one. Here in this country we do not know what Reynaud had been led to think he might get from the United States. Mr. Roosevelt had talked a great deal but had nothing to give except exhortations.

The delusions the Germans entertained when they entered Paris four years ago can be understood. In a campaign of two months they had defeated the French, British, Belgian, and Dutch armies. From the Arctic to the Mediterranean they had overrun western Europe. They had not met anything which could stand up against their methods of making war. Apparently they didn't know how demoralized England's defenses were. They probably couldn't have believed that their one surviving opponent was waiting for a shipment of a million rifles from America to arm the home guard. The Germans also had inherited an idea to which a military autocracy may be prone. That is the belief that because the United States does not have an army it cannot produce one. The 1917 Germans suffered from the same notion. The Japanese military had the delusion in more acute form.

Four years is a short time in peace and a long one in war. From Dunkirk to Cherbourg have been long years, in prospect impossible, in retrospect somehow endured.

A MOST UNUSUAL CASE.

Mr. Joseph P. Kennedy, former United States ambassador to England, came to Chicago last night to deliver an address on post-war monetary policy. There is nothing remarkable about that. Mr. Kennedy is a financier and a diplomat and is no doubt well prepared to discuss this difficult question.

What is remarkable is that he chose precisely the right audience. He delivered his message to the American Gastro-enterological association, composed, as the name of the society indicates, of the most eminent specialists on stomach-ache that this country can muster. He could list the symptoms, all of them painful. They could recommend the treatment.

We may hope that the learned doctors will send their prescriptions to Bretton Woods, N. H., before the international monetary conference meets there next month. And we hope, too, that there will be no repetition of the incident so feelingly reported by Mr. Belloc:

Physicians of the utmost fame
Were called at once, and when they came
They answered, as they took their fees,
"There is no cure for this disease."

The quotation is from memory and may be inaccurate here and there but no doubt serves to convey the idea.

A BASIS FOR FRIENDSHIP WITH RUSSIA.

Eric Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce took the occasion of a luncheon tendered him by soviet trade leaders in Moscow to give the Russians some blunt and well founded advice on their relations with the United States.

He ridiculed the recently dissolved Communist party in this country, asking his listeners how any organization can expect to make a proletarian revolution in the United States when the overwhelming majority of American workmen refuse to regard themselves as proletarians. He told how the American Communists have forfeited all respect in this country by their strict adherence to the party line of the Russian state, which time and again has forced them to ridiculous reversals of their stand.

Mr. Johnston appraised the three factors that can bring the United States and Russia closer together: The common enmity toward Hitler and fascism, the common passion for production, and the bridge of trade between the two nations. But, he said, Americans are as strongly wedded to a belief in the efficiency of private enterprise in producing a better standard of living and a fuller life as the Russians are wedded to a belief in state controled industry.

In pleading that "each of our countries be allowed to pursue its own economic experiment, unimpeded by the other," he has described the greatest single obstacle that exists today in the way of American-Russian friendship. That obstacle is the American Communist party, now masking as an educational society, which has never been anything but an organ of Russian state policy in the United States.

Communism started out as a world revolutionary movement. The only place where it ever got a permanent foothold was in Russia. The Communist international was retained by Stalin as a convenient instrument of Russian foreign policy, even after he had disposed of Trotsky, whose creed was world revolution. The international has been abandoned formally, but Communists thruout the world continue to serve as agents of Russian foreign policy. As Mr. Johnston told his Moscow audience, they sneeze when the Russians take snuff and belch when the Russians have indigestion.

No nation can tolerate the existence within its borders of an organized political group controled and directed by another nation. Today the Communists can claim control of the Democratic party in Michigan and Wisconsin and of the American Labor party in New York.

There is no fundamental cause of unfriendliness between this country and Russia in the fact that the Russians have a totalitarian government. If they want that kind of government, and it works for them, that is their own business. We may not admire their institutions, but we could still be friends with them to our mutual profit. But when the Russian government maintains in this country an organization frankly designed to destroy the kind of government that Americans want it prevents any friendly relations.

PROGRESS OF THE FOUR FREEDOMS.

Atty. Gen. Biddle has asked the state department to remove from the allied nations' "preferred list" the Yugoslav press agent whom Gen. Mihailovitch sent to this country.

It is not explained what the preferred list is, but it can be presumed that the removal would hamper, and is intended to hamper, the press agent in his representations to the American people on behalf of Mihailovitch. The action obviously flows from the Roosevelt administration's transfer of recognition from Mihailovitch to Tito, one of the prices it is paying for the support of the Communist dominated American Labor party.

Alien propagandists in the United States are entitled to no privileges on their own behalf. The only reason that can exist for tolerating them is that they may inform the American people of the views of their principals. Since that is the case, the people are entitled to get the stories of all factions and not merely the faction that has the favor of the administration.

Rep. Shafer of Michigan announces that he will make a personal investigation of a charge that the war department has forced the five leading newsreel companies to scrap their regular newsreel releases and substitute for them a propaganda reel. The editors of the newsreels, it is reported, resisted this order until the war department went over their heads to the Hollywood fellow travelers of the administration and forced the substitution.

The propaganda piece, entitled "Eve of Invasion," is understood to have been prepared in Britain, principally for consumption in that country and its colonies. The proposal of one newsreel editor to send both the propaganda reel and the regular newsreel to his exhibitors and to let the theater owners choose which they would run was vetoed.

The American Newspaper Publishers' association has filed a brief, as friend of the court, attacking Postmaster General Walker's order suspending the second class mailing privileges of the magazine Esquire. Walker sought to deny Esquire the use of the mails on the allegation that it fails "to make a special contribution to the public welfare." The A. N. P. A. contends, truthfully, that Walker's order is without authority and constitutes an interference with freedom of the press as guaranteed by the 1st amendment.

His "order," contends the A. N. P. A. brief, "constitutes a threat to all publications using the mail, because if upheld by the courts it subjects their editorial policy to the approval of the postmaster general."

Esquire's undraped females and night club humor may or may not be "a special contribution to the public welfare," but that is no business of Mr. Walker. If he believed the contents of the magazine to be obscene, he had legal authority to proceed against it on the ground of obscenity. This he failed to do.

Mr. Walker is former treasurer and chairman of the Democratic national committee. If a political official is permitted to take reprisals against publications because of their editorial content, it will be only a short time before the only publications permitted use of the mails will be those that devote themselves to panegyrics on Roosevelt and the fourth term.

All three of these incidents were reported in a single day's budget of the news. They reveal the boldness with which the Roosevelt gang is moving to impose authoritarian control on every form of expression in this country. Churchill has made it clear that the four freedoms are not to be applied to India. Roosevelt is making it clear that they are not to be applied in the United States if he can prevent it.

Meanwhile the battle moves steadily north and west out of the Eternal City. At a late hour today, however, our scouts on mountain tops had not sighted the dome of Il Duce.—Detroit News.

"FAIR STOOD THE WIND."

The great invasion was launched in nasty weather, but it has reminded us of a poem, celebrating another heroic Channel crossing, which begins, "Fair stood the wind for France." The other invasion was under the leadership of an English king, Henry V., and its first fruit was the victory of Agincourt, familiar to British patriots and American readers of Shakespeare.

* * *

Michael Drayton, an Elizabethan poet, wrote a ballad on the battle of Agincourt which has a permanent place in the anthologies. It gives a play-by-play account of the action, with almost bloodthirsty gusto, and ends with these lines:

O, when shall English men
With such acts fill a pen?
Or England breed again
Such a King Harry?

* * *

The landing was on the Norman coast at the mouth of the Seine, but the march was northward, away from the present scenes of fighting. The battlefield of Agincourt is in Picardy, and was fought over again in June, 1940, when Abbeville, a near-by town, was frequently mentioned in dispatches.

* * *

This victory was followed by the English occupation of a large part of France and a period of alien military rule which finally gave the distracted country its national martyr and saint, Joan of Arc. Agincourt was the third in the brilliant English feats of arms which were highlights in the Hundred Years' War. Its predecessors were Crécy and Poitiers, famous for establishing the superiority of English bowmen over mounted knights in armor. Toward the end of the scuffling, however, the French mastered the use of artillery and blew the English off their premises.

* * *

Michael Drayton, who put Agincourt into balladry, was a friend of Shakespeare. On the testimony of John Ward, vicar of Stratford-on-Avon, "Shakespeare, Drayton, and Ben Jonson had a merry meeting and, it seems, drank too hard, for Shakespeare died of a fever there contracted."

ROMAN HOLIDAY—1944.

"While stands the Colosseum, Rome shall stand;
When falls the Colosseum, Rome shall fall;
And when Rome falls—the World!" Could we recall
Lord Byron from the shadows, now the land
Of Rome, the city of his soul, that grand
Eternal City, is released from thrall,
He who loved Rome and freedom most of all
Would laud our victory by Tiber's strand.

Here Shelley wrote "Prometheus Unbound"
Beside the Baths of Caracalla. Here
Young Keats, in company with Severn, found
Escape through death from mundane ills and fear.
Shades of dead English poets, hover near,
Because you loved it, Rome is holy ground.

The Tie of Apron Strings.

Among our family institutions were mother's aprons.

There were the white ones, which were worn only on Sundays, if we had company. They were used when dinner was being served, and were tied in great white bows. They were extra fancy, had lace around the edges and around the little bibs, the tops of which were pinned to the dresses.

But the really homey aprons were the gay calico ones, which served so many purposes. Was there a bit of kindling wood to be brought in, the apron came into play, or perhaps a few corn cobs to start the fire in the morning for our coffee and toast. There was nothing like corn cob embers for toasting bread. The heat did not last long enough to warm the summer kitchen.

Was there a sudden shower, the corners of the calico apron were quickly gathered in the left hand, and mother would fly about rescuing from puddles half-drowned young chickens, geese, or ducks. Her apron full of barn yard youngsters, she would come dashing into the summer kitchen, kindle a fire in the cook stove, place her children in a basket on the drop oven door, dry them all out, and everything was all right.

What has happened to the summer kitchen, and to the charming half aprons women wore, which reached the ankles and were voluminous in size?

It's odd, isn't it, that then I wanted to live in the city, and resented it when people would say I was "tied to my mother's apron strings."

O, well, one's heart strings are long, and sometimes reach away back to the charm of apron string days.

STOOP TO CONQUER.

I couldn't make the flying force—
Too old for aviation;
Which was no alibi, of course,
For lowlier occupation.

And so I started in last year
At ground crew basic training;
I shed some dumbness, yet I fear
There's quite a lot remaining.

The exercise was tough at first;
I needed balms and ointments.
By now I hope I'm thru the worst
Of aches and disappointments.

And when I muse on Nips and Krauts,
My heart and soul swift harden
While toiling midst the shoots and sprouts
Within my victory garden.

HUNTINGTON'S CHOREA—A FAMILY AFFAIR.

WE are all familiar with chorea, or St. Vitus' dance, which is a manifestation of rheumatism, attacking children chiefly. In this malady, the heart may be injured and every effort is made to conserve the patient's strength and thus shorten the course of the disease.

But there is another form of chorea which afflicts adults and which is hereditary. It was first described by George Huntington in 1872. He found a number of families living on Long Island, the members of which had been studied by his father and grandfather [both physicians]. This variety of chorea did not originate in America. It has been traced to British immigrants who came to our shores as early as 1630. It was not until Huntington's description, however, that cases were recognized and reported by European clinics.

Fortunately, the disease is not common. Furthermore, manifestations will not appear routinely until the fourth or fifth decade. One investigator was able to follow the trail of the ailment thru 12 consecutive generations. It should be understood that it does not beset all the members of a given household. In six generations there were 400 progeny, 60 of whom in due time presented symptoms. In another series there were 19 sufferers in five generations. In other words, even tho the nervous defect exists in the strain, it will not disturb all alike.

Considerable effort is being made to work out tests which will foretell which of the offspring will be stricken in the course of time and which will escape. Thus far, nothing definite has been evolved.

Even those likely to become victims will develop the condition slowly. The patient will first exhibit "fidgets" which, in the early stages, may be controled reasonably well thru the use of sedatives. But with the passing of the years, jerking and twitching may increase, first involving the muscles of the face; later, the shoulders and upper limbs; still later, the remainder of the body.

Certain victims will display comparatively light seizures. In some, the only sign of trouble will be an occasional rhythmic nodding of the head. With others, the movements will be confined to the left side of the face in the vicinity of the eyes. The great majority will not smile or smirk regularly but will encounter episodes lasting from a few minutes to an hour or more, in which the twitchings will be characteristic.

We can derive comfort from the fact that progression is strikingly slow. One man who detected the first indication at 50 was—to all intents and purposes—as well as ever at 75. This does not mean that he recovered but that there was no further deterioration. As we would suspect, however, there are instances wherein the advance is rapid.

Only one person in a susceptible family which came under my observation recently has experienced even moderate choreic movements. This individual is now past 40. Inheritance, no doubt, came from the mother, who succumbed to pneumonia in her late 30s. Of the four children, three have remained perfectly healthy. It has been possible to prove that two other cases occurred on the mother's side of the house. The father is living and well.

While it may seem cruel, their physician has recommended that marriage be delayed until it seems reasonable to assume that the disorder will not present itself.

IRREGULAR EATING.

M. M. writes: Whenever my meals are delayed an hour or so, I develop a sinus headache. When I eat, however, the condition is not improved. Can you explain?

REPLY.

The chances are that your distress comes from some other cause—substandard nutrition or fatigue. There is a close nerve connection between the alimentary tract and various structures of the skull. An X-ray film would rule out the sinuses.

SOCKET.

M. O. writes: Quite frequently, when putting on a coat or fixing my hair, my arm turns in its socket. Each time I have to jerk it back into place. This is very painful. Can you tell me what causes this?

REPLY.

A tendency to dislocation at the shoulder joint. An X-ray may disclose a shallow socket. You should avoid movements which will bring on these slips.

TOO MUCH.

J. C. N. writes: Is it harmful to the system to drink the juice of a dozen oranges daily?

REPLY.

Not if you need alkalis. The vitamin C which you obtain is more than the body needs or can use. The quantity is excessive for a balanced diet.

KIDNEY TROUBLE.

P. C. writes: Is there such a thing as "positive albumin" of the urine?

REPLY.

It signifies kidney irritation from some cause. A skilled physician can help you to find the starter and supply the remedy.

INTENSIFIED.

Tale of an Old Man.

The marine sergeant had just finished his boot training at Parris Island. He is 35, and he said he felt like an old man when he went there, but when he came out he felt 25. In this state of physical exaltation and rejuvenation he went to Washington, where he was assigned quarters in the marine barracks.

One night as he lay on his bunk he began to thumb thru the Oxford Book of English Verse. A fellow marine, an old man of 17 or 18, peered over his shoulder. "What's that?" he demanded, pointing at the book. "Poetry," the sergeant said. "Whaddaya read that stuff for?" the 17 year old asked in disgust. "I like it," the sergeant said. "Hrrmph," snorted the 17 year old. "Let me see it." He riffled thru its pages and then said, in astonishment, "Gee, this is all right! Mind if I copy some of it?"

Then, night after night, as he sat and wrote to his girl, he copied one poem, assuring the girl he had composed it when thinking of her.

In this way a great friendship grew up between the 17 year old and the sergeant twice his age. The conversation, always offered by the younger marine, dealt with his girl. Night after night he wondered if she really loved him, but one night, as he sat reading her latest letter, a flood of happiness surged over his face.

"I'm crazy," he bemoaned. "All this time I've been worryin' whether she loved me. Now I know she does. Why," to the sergeant, "do you know when she says she writes to me? She writes every night after she's finished her home work!"

At that the marine sergeant, his false youth vanished forever, returned to the Oxford Book of English Verse.

Regulations.

It happened in Utah. A soldier at a camp passed a young lieutenant and neglected to salute. The lieutenant, piqued, ordered him to stand and salute 50 times. The soldier had been saluting briskly for some time when a colonel approached. "What's going on here?" he asked. The lieutenant informed him. "How many salutes has he given?" the colonel asked. "Forty-five, sir," the lieutenant said. "All right," the colonel said, "let him finish," and he stood nearby while the soldier rendered the additional five. "And now," the colonel continued, turning to the lieutenant, "you salute 50 times. Military regulations, as you surely know, demand that every salute be returned."

Invasion Night.

It was past midnight. Above an Illinois farm the June moon, full and golden, moved confidently across the star-strewn heaven like a seasoned hostess among her guests. Clear radiance fell as a benediction upon the farmstead. Elm and oak, maple and locust, stood reverent and motionless. Only the ancient nervous cottonwood twitched, as tho sensing the pain pressing upon humankind.

The farmwife, filled with forboding and unable to find comfort in her bed, looked out at the moon flooded vegetable garden. It seemed a sign. There she could tamp down fear by busying her hands. The odd part of it was, that she did not find it strange to be pulling onions and radishes and cutting lettuce by moonlight. Light for the task had been provided. Perhaps then, she thought, if the black night of despair were to be her portion, light again would be forthcoming so that she could see her way about.

This Strange World.

A young Guatemalan, now a student in Chicago, was shocked the other day when he visited the Brookfield zoo. He entered the bird house and there saw a beautiful specimen of the quezal. The quezal is the Guatemalan counterpart of the American eagle, and its likeness is stamped on the coin called the quezal.

"It is unthinkable," said the student. "Here in a zoo I find the quezal, the symbol of liberty, a bird that is free like the people of my native land—imprisoned in a cage in a foreign country."

He was furious about the indignity. "I shall write to my government," he said.

WHAT, NO GENTLEMEN?

Chicago, June 9.—Since the special role assigned to America in the brave new world appears to be that of supreme provider, it may be prudent to familiarize ourselves as promptly as possible with the functions of the position.

The primary duty is of course to supply the feast and pay the bill. But since this will be the permanent occupation of our lowest class, the taxpayers, whose obligations are hereditary and perpetual, we may leave this menial matter to them as we turn to the more delicate and far more fascinating problem of precedence—the seating and feeding of the guests in the order of their importance.

Precedence is primarily, of course, a British institution. Its tabulations are to be found in the Encyclopedia Britannica, which defines the institution itself as "priority of place or superiority of rank," pointing out that "the crown is the fountain of honor and has the undoubted prerogative to order such rank and place as to it may seem convenient."

At present the British empire recognizes 80 degrees of male and 69 degrees of female respectability ranging downward, somewhat precipitously, from the "fountain of honor," meaning Wallis Windsor's current husband's brother George, to the lowest stratum of social visibility, the "gentleman," who is one degree lower than an "esquire."

America, in the present imperfect stage of civilization, has, of course, no gentlemen in the British acceptance of the word; but changes undoubtedly will be undertaken as soon as the generous hospitality of the empire has been expanded to enclose the outer precincts of the brave new world. Perhaps it would not be overbold to hope that George will create for the more presentable Americans a rating just below that of gentleman. May we suggest that the fortunate members of such a group might be designated as "Gentlemen, [j. g.]?" HALIFAX GADLEY, II.

PRAYERS AND POLITICS.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 8.—Prayer must be spontaneous and individual to be sincere. The people of the United States are not accustomed to being told when they should pray and what they should say, like the Mohammedan, who looks to the caliph, as the representative of Mohammed, to appear on his minaret and call all to face Mecca. Even a caliph would not mix prayers at this time with politics and camouflaged self-praise. E. L. MESSLER.

SUCCESSFUL SEASON.

Chicago, June 7.—At the annual meeting of the board of trustees of the Sunday Evening club, a unanimous vote of thanks was tendered to The Chicago Tribune for the coverage which it gave to our meetings during the 37th season just closed—one of the best in the club's history.

CLIFFORD W. BARNES, President.

ANOTHER D-DAY.

Chicago, June 9.—In following the graphic account of the invasion, hour by hour, the thought has occurred to me that we have another D-day which must be religiously observed by every loyal American. D [deliverance] day should be Tuesday, Nov. 7. C. A. S.

LONESOME WHITE COLLAR GIRLS.

Chicago, June 8.—I'd like to add to the start made by M. S. in her "No Prince Charming" letter in today's Tribune on behalf of the white collar girl.

We surely are the forgotten people. Many of us have been on the job for years; we're still on it, and we're going to stay as long as we're needed. When our "boys" are called and the office gets empty and dead most of us step in and carry on. We take over their job, many times in addition to our own, and with no increase in salary. Our salary, of course, is frozen, but there's nothing frozen about the cost of our clothes, unless it's the saleslady's stare when we venture to suggest something "a little less expensive."

And for those of us so unfortunate as to be over 25 years of age there isn't a place in the U. S. O., on any soldier's mailing list, or much of any place else. That brings our prospects down pretty much to a peaceful spinsterhood and, eventually, a cozy corner in the old folks' home. H. A. B.

PARENTAL DELINQUENCY.

Chicago, June 6.—"Disillusioned Mother" is living up to her name, all right. Sure girls and boys from 14 up can get licenses. I'm 16 now and have had mine for more than a year, and have not been on a joy ride yet.

One reason, my father is not lenient with the car and he is not thinking of gas or tires, he's thinking of me. Secondly, in times like this we have more to think of than joy rides.

"Disillusioned Mother" is another parent pushing the blame of juvenile delinquency onto the "younger generation." She cannot stop her own daughter from going on rides. Could it be the behavior of the mother has led the daughter to think these escapades are right? There is the source of juvenile delinquency?

MARY MONTAGUE.

EVERYTHING BUT THAT HUNGRY LOOK.

Chicago, June 5.—Every Monday night I sit home and swoon over Attilio Baggiore. He's really got what it takes to set the hep 'uns soaring!

The least you could do is give us anxious swooners a picture of him. This suspense is killing me. I'm dying to get a good look at him, an', brudder, if he looks anything like he sounds, I mean a good look! Orchids 'n everything else to a really swell guy with a voice that makes us give with the "heart trouble" stuff every time my crowd hears him! M. D.

JACK OF ALL LANGUAGES.

Mount Vernon, Ill., June 8.—This nation is very fortunate in having a Vice President who speaks fluently in Spanish and to some extent in Russian. The only trouble seems to be that he doesn't make very good sense in English.

EXECUTOR'S FEE.

Chicago, June 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—To what percentage of an estate is the executor of a will entitled?

R. M.

There is no fixed percentage in Illinois statute. The allowance depends on the size of the estate, and on the extent and quality of the service.

GIANTS OF WAR DISPLAYED IN TRIBUNE SHOW

Tiny Jewels Also Play a Big Modern Role.

Visitors to the War Products show at the Tribune Tower find ample evidence that modern warfare is made up of the large and the small. Examples of this contrast are found in the displays of such war manufacturers as the International Harvester company, Chicago, the Austin-Western Road Machinery company, Aurora, and the Elgin National Watch company, Elgin.

The War Products show is sponsored by the United States treasury in coöperation with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and armament manufacturers. The exhibit, now in its first week, is open daily from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. and will continue thru July 9.

Fast Prime Mover.

International Harvester specializes in the heavy tools of war. On display is a 13 ton prime mover for heavy guns. This unit, mounted on tractor treads, is 16 feet long, 8 feet, 4 inches wide, and 8 feet, 8 inches high, but can move a big gun over rough terrain at speeds as high as 35 miles an hour.

The International prime mover, known officially as the M5 high speed tractor, was designed to answer the army's call for a vehicle that could haul either a 155 mm. or 105 mm. howitzer, or a 4.5 inch gun fast enough to meet the requirements of a war of movement. The M5 also carries nine men, including the gun crew, who ride in an inclosed cab.

New Anti-Tank Gun.

International Harvester also is exhibiting its new 57 mm. anti-tank gun. This weapon has proved effective against heavy German armor in North Africa, Sicily, and Italy. In the lobby of the Tribune Tower is an Oerlikon 20 mm. anti-aircraft cannon, described as one of the most effective of its type and used by the thousands thruout the world. International Harvester manufactures the steel mount for this gun.

Giant Road Grader.

Still on the ponderous side, visitors may see the giant road grader manufactured for the navy by the Austin-Western company. This machine is powered in all its four wheels, and has a four wheel steering mechanism. The heavy adjustable steel scraper blade digs into the earth to transform the roughest terrain into a smooth roadway.

Another feature of the War Products show is a variation of the bulldozer known as a "dozershovel." This newly developed military implement can be used to move earth and debris, unload supplies, or, by changing the big shovel for a blade, can go into action as a regular bulldozer. The tractor is made by International Harvester and the shovel by the Bucyrus-Erie company, South Milwaukee, Wis.

Minute Jewels Shown.

In THE TRIBUNE'S public service office are displayed examples of the tiny units that fit into the pattern of warfare. The Elgin National Watch company is showing the minute jewels, which appear to be no larger than grains of sand, used in the manufacture of all types of precision instruments. Two enlarged jewels, approximately 675,000 times actual size, show the structure of the small particles.

Elgin National Watch's display also includes mechanical time fuses for shells, a master navigation watch, a tank clock, the type of watch worn by pilots and navigators, an aircraft clock, a marine chronometer of the type used on warships, and an elapsed time clock which is a regular watch, stop watch, and calendar in one.

SENATE GROUP VOTES $500,000 FOR FEPC IN '45

Washington, D. C., June 12 (AP).—The latest move by southern Democrats to abolish President Roosevelt's fair employment practices committee failed today when the senate appropriations committee voted 14 to 6 to restore the committee's $500,000 appropriation for 1945.

The fund had been voted down by a senate subcommittee, after it was approved earlier by the house.

In addition, the appropriations group turned down, on a tie vote, a motion by Sen. Russell [D., Ga.] to prohibit the use of more than 25 per cent of the FEPC appropriation for salaries of Negro employes. Russell told reporters the FEPC now has 68 Negro and 48 white employes, and he wanted to give "fair treatment to white people."

To Continue Fight.

Russell said the opponents of FEPC would carry their fight to abolish the agency to the senate floor this week. The committee was established by an executive order of President Roosevelt last year to prevent racial discrimination in war industries and government employment.

The main controversy in the war agencies bill—carrying funds for 16 separate agencies—centered around the FEPC, which southern legislators have charged with fomenting rather than reducing racial discord. The southern group succeeded in one move—putting thru a recommendation to cut the salary of Malcolm Ross, FEPC chairman, from $10,000 to $8,000 a year.

Both the war agencies and lend-lease-UNRRA bills may come before the senate tomorrow.

In recommending a total of $1,027,618,667 for various war agencies, including the FEPC, the senate committee also concurred in the house's action in approving an increase of more than $20,000,000 in the 1945 appropriation for the office of war information.

3.4 Billion for Lend-Lease.

Besides approving all of the OWI funds voted by the house, the senate group recommended an additional $264,000 for the OWI domestic branch, which the house had cut by $502,000.

The committee made no change in the house figures of $450,000,000 in direct appropriations for UNRRA, and $3,450,570,000 for lend-lease.

THE QUESTION.

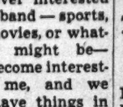
WHERE ASKED.

Insurance Exchange building, 175 W. Jackson blvd.

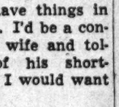
THE ANSWERS.

Loretta Brandenburg, clerk, 3831 Washington blvd.—I can't think of any reason why I wouldn't be an ideal wife. Besides being a good cook and a neat housekeeper and being good at sewing and pressing clothes, I think I'd be a nice companion. I get along with people and people get along with me.

Marge Richardson, file clerk, 4802 Princeton av.—Whatever interested my husband—sports, books, movies, or whatever it might be—would become interesting to me, and we would have things in common. I'd be a considerate wife and tolerant of his shortcomings. Most of all, I would want to trust my husband.



Myra Papia, typist, 3014 Flournoy st.—A man is just a boy at heart and I understand children. So I think I could be a patient, understanding, and forgiving wife. Whatever he wanted to do would be all right with me and I would let him think he was the boss. I would try to see things as he saw them.



Verdell Winkelman, secretary, 3 E. Hawthorne av., Arlington Heights.—The man who marries me won't be getting too bad a deal. I don't get angry easily and I have a sense of humor. I'd be a good companion and an understanding wife. If he brought his pay check to me, I'd give him a big allowance and not be extravagant.

G.O.P. IN INDIANA WILL SCRUTINIZE LYONS' ELECTION

Indianapolis, Ind., June 12 [Special].—Indiana's 29 delegates to the Republican national convention will meet here tomorrow to elect members of convention committees and to discuss the previous action in electing Robert W. Lyons as Indiana G. O. P. national committeeman.

The election of Lyons on June 2, immediately after conclusion of the Republican state convention here, has been challenged on the ground the call for the convention was without sufficient notice and was contrary to custom.

The elevation of Lyons to the office of national committeeman has been opposed because Lyons was an officer and organizer for the Ku Klux Klan about 20 years ago.

The meeting tomorrow will be conducted by Ernest M. Morris of South Bend, present national committeeman. The newly elected national committeeman and vice committeeman.

It is understood Lyons, who is an Indianapolis and Washington, D. C., attorney, will offer to resign when he meets the delegates.

Casselberrys' Son Is Wed at Navy Air Base

BY JUDITH CASS.

FROM Winter Park, Fla., comes news of the marriage last Friday of Miss Jane Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Williams, to Seaman 1st Class Leonard Casselberry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hibbard Casselberry of Winter Park, formerly of Winnetka. The wedding took place in the chapel of the naval air station at Beaufort, S. C., with Chaplain Harold M. Carlson officiating.

The bride, a native of Winter Park, has finished one year at Rollins college, at which she was majoring in art. Mr. Casselberry, whose family moved to Winter Park several years ago, attended the Bolles Military academy in Jacksonville, Fla., before enlisting in the navy in January, 1943. His brother, Mr. Casselberry Jr., enlisted in the coast guard Dec. 7, 1942, and is on active duty in the Atlantic.

Young Mr. Casselberry and his brother are grandsons of John R. Leonard of Winnetka and of Mrs. William E. Casselberry and the late Dr. Casselberry of Lake Forest. After a wedding trip to Bent Creek ranch at Asheville, N. C., Mr. Casselberry and his bride will be at home in Beaufort, where he is stationed as an aviation ordnance man.

Other Wedding News.

Now at home in his apartment in East Walton pl. are John T. Llewellyn and the former Gertrude M. Stephens of Moline, Ill., and Los Angeles, Cal., who were married last Saturday in Chicago. Mr. Llewellyn and his bride have been friends for many years.

Mrs. George S. Thomas of Woodstock announces the marriage last Saturday of her daughter, Margaret Hope, to Lt. [j. g.] Robert Armand Shiley. The wedding took place in Saints Faith, Hope, and Charity church in Winnetka, with the Rev. Joseph M. Egan of Woodstock officiating. A breakfast followed at the Indian Hill club. Dr. Emil Hauser gave his sister-in-law in marriage, and she was attended by her sister, Mrs. Harry Conley of Green Bay, Wis. Mr. Conley served as best man, and ushering were Louis E. Laflin and Weyland D. Sears. Lt. Shiley, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Shiley of Iowa City, Ia., and his bride have gone to Washington, D. C.

Announcements are being received of the marriage of Miss Zoé André Bakéeff to Edward Schmidt Petersen at 3 p. m. Sunday in St. Peter's church, Weston, Mass. The small ceremony was followed by a reception in the garden of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. André Bakéeff of Weston. Present at the wedding were the bridegroom's parents, Dr. and Mrs. William F. Petersen of Astor st.; Mrs. Petersen's aunt, Mrs. William Sherman Hay, and her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Sturgis of New York. William Otto Petersen, who was graduated last week from the Boys' Latin school, was his brother's best man. Mr. Petersen, who is a member of the army reserve, and his bride will live in Boston while he is completing his course at the Harvard medical school.

Here and There.

Old friends of Mrs. Charles C. Clark, mother of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark, will be welcoming her to Chicago this week-end. She will arrive Friday from Washington, D. C., to spend two or three weeks in Lake Forest with her sister, Mrs. John I. Marshall. Mrs. Marshall will entertain at cocktails Sunday for the visitor, whose son is so much in the news these days in connection with the Italian campaign. Mrs. Marshall just has returned from a trip to New Orleans and Biloxi, Miss., to see her son, Mr. Marshall Jr., who is serving as a warrant officer, junior grade, in the army air forces rescue service.

Dr. and Mrs. Paul H. Holinger [Julia Drake] became the parents of their second son, William Jacques, yesterday at St. Luke's hospital. The baby and his brother, Lauren, are grandchildren of the Lauren J.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Night Shift Soliloquy.

At 5 o'clock I watch the others go,
Their nights are free for pleasure and for fun.
For me the evening's passing will be slow;
Work lies ahead! Just half of it is done!

I'm eager and I'm young! Why do I stay
This orphan shift that no one cares to take?
For somewhere there is dancing; hearts are gay;
Why do I feel that youth I must forsake?

O, somewhere there is dancing . . . "somewhere" too
In black of night, thru murky mud and mire
My dear young brother keeps a rendezvous
Amid a rain of shells' incessant fire.

Altho I know at times I'm half inclined
To envy those whose work, with day, is done,
This other "somewhere" dwells within in mind—

Smoking in Offices.

I'm from one of those small offices where smoking for both men and women is restricted to restrooms. The reason for our rule is to keep desks clear and clean for business.

Most of the girls smoke, and everybody is free to go for a "puff" and a minute off duty. We like this freedom and believe the office is neater and the employes happier because of the time-out privilege. As far as tidiness is concerned, who said men are tidier than women about smoking? VOR.

Fuss and Gab.

What's all this fuss and gab about bosses bringing candy and other things to the office? How about having a practical boss like mine? He brings me green onions from his war garden. DELIGHTED.

Dis and Data.

In addition to Gen. Somervell's daughter, there is at least one more daughter of a general who is a WAC, according to a letter in the mail. She is Eunice Barzynski, longtime resident of Chicago and daughter of Brig. Gen. Joseph E. Barzynski, commanding general of Chicago's mammoth quartermaster depot. Eunice, now a WAC lieutenant, is stationed in Baltimore.

Anna Lord Strauss, new president of the League of Women Voters, has been serving as an industrial counselor after a long business and public career. She was elected president of the league just 96 years after her grandmother, Lucretia Coffin Mott, began the "woman's rights" movement at Seneca Falls, N. Y. . . . Rita E. Williams, who has taken over the editorship of "Gexaco News," employe publication of the General Electric X-Ray corporation, used to direct school publications at Englewood High school—and will now practice what she taught.

Chicago Asked to Aid Needy Thru Ice Fund

While much of Chicago hails summer weather and joyously purchases swim togs, embarks on suntan excursions, and enjoys cooling drinks and fresh salads at day's end, other Chicagoans, mothers of less fortunate families, peer sorrowfully into iceless iceboxes.

Rancid food greets their eyes. Spoiled sausage, wilted vegetables, soured milk, and liquid butter are the daily fare they may expect when sweltering temperatures arrive.

Today THE TRIBUNE announces its annual solicitation of contributions from readers for ice that will relieve such conditions. The aged, the ailing, and needy families of the city will benefit from the ice supplied by the United Charities thru funds contributed by Tribune readers.

A mother of the stock yards area, who is ill with heart trouble and diabetes, tries to provide for a family of four children by working irregularly in a factory. Her special diet calls for as much lean meat as she can obtain and injections of insulin. Ice must be had to preserve the meat and keep the insulin cold.

Janie, 14, is a "little mother" to her brothers and sisters, ages 11, 10, 6, 4, 2, and 8 months, while her mother works nights in a cafeteria. The father has disappeared. The mother buys in large quantities at the grocers, to save both time and money. Ice is necessary.

In a furnished room with a tiny gas plate, a west side mother, 23, has the care of her month old baby—alone. She is not well and does not know the whereabouts of her husband. The landlady has provided an icebox in which the infant's milk and food could be kept deliciously cool if there were ice. Other essentials are missing from this crowded home, but ice would buttress the mother's effort to feed her baby.

Joel D. Hunter, general superintendent of United Charities, remarked that because of the limited amount of new housing and modernization for several years, "families in industrial sections are more congested than ever and this seriously affects the health of babies and small children. Fresh food, which ice makes possible, helps to keep the tots well."

Last summer the contributions of Tribune readers, amounting to $1,067.30, purchased 397,206 pounds of ice for 198 families.

The contributions themselves tell a story of the kindliness and humanitarian instincts of people. Sometimes given in memory of a loved one, often sent in anonymously, they come from youngsters and oldsters, war workers and society organizations. They all are acknowledged gratefully in the columns of THE TRIBUNE. Donations are to be sent to the Ice Fund, Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., Tribune Tower.

Child's Talent May Emerge at Early Age

This little girl is at the age when many children begin to develop new talents and interests, such as the sketching in which she is absorbed. It also is a period of other changes which Mrs. Bevans discusses in her article today.

6,000 Women Sought by Salvation Army as Aids on Doughnut Day

A call for 6,000 women volunteers for the Salvation Army's annual Doughnut day drive was issued yesterday by Mrs. Charles S. Clark, women's division president. The volunteers are needed to collect citizens' contributions at street corners and busy points in the city and suburbs on June 20. Women who can give a few hours to sell doughnut emblems that day may register with Mrs. Helen Bolsum, room 849, 1 N. La Salle st. [Randolph 8980].

Those who are to serve as "captain" in the Doughnut day drive met yesterday at a tea in the USO center at 131 S. Wabash av. to plan the campaign.

Proceeds from the annual sale of the cardboard doughnuts help on the home front, financing the Salvation Army's homes, hospitals, emergency lodges and shelters, nurseries and vacation camps, and special services to the wives of service men. On fighting fronts thruout the world, the Salvation Army has mobile canteens in operation and offers spiritual guidance.

Parents Need to Understand Growing Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Today's article is one of several which will attempt to help parents understand the nature of their "in-between" children, and so, their behavior. For, as we said recently, this is not only an important period in a child's life, but it is one that brings with it special and perplexing problems. So let us look carefully at our children who may be anywhere from 6 or 7 to 10 or 11.

This is the age at which the outside world begins to exert an unceasing influence. Physical freedom and independence have been achieved, and the child's personality and character are reacted on more and more by these influences: the "gang," school, friendships, movies, sports, and books, not to mention radio. It often is at this age, too, that talents or interests are uncovered, which express themselves in crafts, hobbies, or the development of some artistic bent, such as music, modeling, sketching, writing, and so forth.

It is often, too, the time when interest in school work lessens, as the need for vigorous muscular activity increases; when dawdling reaches its peak. Heedlessness, dreaminess, and forgetfulness are other phases that some children go thru. Boys, particularly, will often become clumsy and mannerless, uncooperative, and argumentative! Girls will not show all these facets, but rebellion against authority or supervision is usual.

Of course all children at these ages do not go thru this or other difficult behavior. The temperament of the child often determines that, and the home treatment does, too. But there is a great difference in your child from 7 to 10, compared with what he was and what he will be later.

Surprisingly, however, parents often are entirely unprepared for these new developments in personality, and deeply perturbed by them. Their more docile, more easily controled, more dependent 5 and 6 year old children have quickly changed to a different type of person, and they are bewildered.

"WATERFRONT,"

A PRC picture, directed by Steve Sekely, featuring J. Carrol Naish and John Carradine, and presented at the Oriental.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

As you know, J. Carrol Naish and John Carradine are two of the slickest actors on the screen. When they play "heavies"—as they usually do—the blood runs cold. The Naish smile is so sweet and so deadly! . . . And long, lean—also smiling—Carradine is so sinisterly reminiscent of the wolf in "The Three Little Pigs!"

The two of them are relentless, Thoro! One of them would be a good strong dose for any picture. And in "Waterfront" you get 'em both!

Nope.

It's the story, you see. Just another of those spy things with the right answer written all over stuff that's supposed to keep you guessing, but Naish, Carradine, Marten Lamont, and several other competent players manage to allay boredom.

See you tomorrow.

Commissions Given 53 Salvation Army Cadets at Services

Fifty-three cadets of the Salvation Army training college, 700 Brompton pl., were commissioned last night at Orchestra hall. Lt. Commissioner John J. Allan of the central states presided, assisted by Col. Albert E. Chesham, secretary for this area. The opening prayer was delivered by Lt. Col. Bertram Rodda, and Col. Gordon Simpson, principal of the training college, gave the address.

Two awards for distinguished service were conferred by Commissioner Allan. In recognition of his many years' service to the advisory board, Frederick W. Moore received the Order of Honor, and the Order of the Founder was given to Mrs. Ida Lewis, 84, of Lincoln, Neb., for 50 years' work in the Nebraska state penitentiary. Representing the mothers of this "liberty" session class, Mrs. Edward Brown, custodian of the Salvation Army camp at Antioch, Ill., received the silver star.

The ceremonies closed with a benediction pronounced by Mrs. Donald McMillan, wife of Commissioner McMillan, national secretary of the Salvation Army. The cadets included 44 women and nine men.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 12.—Newcomer John Dall plays the boy in "The Corn Is Green" with Bette Davis. Warner Brothers officials already are calling him their "Big Dall." He played with Bill Eythe in "Eve of St. Mark" on Broadway. Say, those fellows are doing all right! . . . Dean Jagger finally gets the break he's been looking for. He'll take off for London as soon as air lanes are open, to play opposite Anna Neagle in a Herbert Wilcox production. . . . Paramount should test Edward Ingram, who works in its art department. He's had acting training, too, and has more personality than many of Paramount's stars. . . . Boy! Is Warners having trouble on "The Conspirators." . . . I understand that "Roughly Speaking" is well named. That's just how it's going. . . . When Lisette Verea, who's been doing "The Merry Widow" on Broadway, arrived here, two producers said, "Where's she been all our lives? . . . Mrs. Charles Lederer, former Mrs. Orson Welles, will leave June 20 for New York to consult her publishers. She has a comedy book coming out in which, while she doesn't name names, you'll be able to recognize her characters.

Preview of New Musical.

It developed during a visit on the "Music for Millions" set that Mary Parker's husband, Lt. Richard B. Dickson, used to be a beau of Mary's sister in Texas. Mary, who's been a dancer five years, plays a dramatic role and blows a trumpet, but doesn't know a note of music. What a rave she put on about Director Henry Koster! So did June Allyson. June plays the bass fiddle, Marsha Hunt the harp. The setting is a theatrical boarding house. Seven of the girls belong to the New York Symphony. The girls live together while their husbands are at war. Their real husbands' photographs will be used in the picture. When girls receive word that Allyson's husband has been killed in action, their task is to prevent her finding out about it till after her baby is born. . . . In one of the cutest scenes ever put on the screen, little Margaret O'Brien, who finds out about the coming baby and thinks June doesn't know it, lets her in on the big secret—that she [June] is going to have a baby.

Quick Change Artist.

Anne Revere, "Bernadette's" mother, is now "Crazy Mary" to Bill Powell in "The Thin Man Goes Home." Says she, "I've used everything on him but a sashweight." . . . Bill, enjoying one of his relaxed days, quipped, "Funny how the sun of Palm Springs seems more soothing than Culver City sun. I suppose it's because when you're down there they can't get you back on the sound stage." . . . Eddie Goulding is testing Eleanor Park for "Of Human Bondage." . . . Marianne O'Brien and Warners have settled her contract. She thought she should be a star overnight. . . . A Metro star complained to me about lack of good parts. I suggested she go to big boss, Papa Louis B. Mayer, and put on a crying act. She said, "I tried that once, but unfortunately he can outcry me!" . . . Peggy Fears' friends are dusting off the red carpet. She opens at the Clover club here June 21. . . . R. C. Sherriff and his mother are returning to England. He'll do his writing there for Alex Korda.

A Few More Jottings.

Harold Arlen tried out his beautiful new score for "The Bloomer Girl" at Lily Messenger's party, with Celeste Holm of "Oklahoma." fame singing it. I believe he wants Celeste for "Bloomer Girl" on Broadway. The music had Pan Bermans, Benny Thau, and "The Face" [Anita Colby] all clapping hands. . . . It was some party Arthur Freed gave to celebrate Judy Garland's birthday Saturday night. . . . Betty Lawford is returning here for the summer. . . . Remember the three stooges? They're backing their own independent production at Columbia. Their last appearance was in "My Sister Eileen." . . . A fan complains that she doesn't get enough news about Alan Ladd. He's her pin-up Ladd. . . . An Ingrid Bergman fan protests about her playing flamboyant Sarah Bernhardt. She writes from Springfield, Mass. "Ellen Terry, certainly, but not Bernhardt." . . . Another fan, Peter Windsor, wants Joan Fontaine to play James Barrie's "Mary Rose," and thinks after the war Walt Disney should do Don Marquis' "Archie and Mehitable" stories.

The Same Old Feeling.

Maj. Clark Gable is still in uniform. His release papers haven't arrived from Washington. When they do, he tells me he'll spend three months with tractor and plow, putting his ranch in order. He says it looks awful. After I'd been greeted by Clark in an affectionate manner, an extra girl came along and said, "Do you mind if I touch your hand—the hand that just touched Clark Gable?" . . . The VACS get all proceeds from the opening of "White Cliffs of Dover" June 20 at the Egyptian theater, which will be remodeled to the tune of $50,000. . . . Dusty Anderson got word from "Cover Girl" Susanne Shaw, wife of R. L. Foster, civilian flight instructor, that they have a new cover girl—a platinum blonde same as mama. . . . Warners may do "It Pays to Be Ignorant," that radio comedy quiz, as a series of shorts. . . . Elissa Landi hopes it's a boy. . . . Capt. William Crawford Jr.'s new thriller is titled "Gore and Glory." It will be on the stands next week.

INSTALMENT XXXVIII.

CRIMES DISCUSSED.

"Cockrill has been doing experiments," said Maj. Moon. "He seems to have proved to his own satisfaction that the cylinder must have been painted well before midnight, on the night before Higgins died, to have allowed it to dry in the time."

"Of course the theater's hot . . ." said Eden.

"He's allowed for all that. He says, definitely about 12 hours. That would bring it roughly 10 o'clock in the evening, or a bit later."

"Which couldn't be more significant," said Freddi.

"Significant? In what way?"

"Only that it proves all over again that it must be one of our lot," said Eden, interpreting Frederica's train of thought. "At 10 o'clock, or even 11, to be on the safe side, there were definitely only the six of us, and Bates, who could have known that the man was in the hospital. . . ."

They knew it, and yet their minds would not accept it. Not dear old Moon. Not Gervase, with his ugly charm, his bright intelligence, his impatient honesty. And not Barney! And not Esther, the gentle and dignified, or Freddi the exquisite, or Woody with her big, warm, generous, laughing heart. "What I can't make out," said Eden, drawing their attention away from these painful thoughts, "is how any one can have worked it out in the time. Dash it all, Higgins was only brought in at about half past nine. How can the murderer have made up his mind and evolved the whole plan, all in an hour or so. What gave him the idea?"

"O, it was the salvage tins, wasn't it?" said Freddi, as if this must, surely, have been obvious to all.

"The salvage tins? What are you talking about?"

"She's talking about Col. Beaton having had all the rubbish bins repainted," said Esther. "Ever since he came we've been tripping over tins of black and white paint in the hall and the corridors. He just took a tin and went into the theater with it, and then put it back where he'd found it."

"Or rather two tins, because of course an oxygen cylinder has a white collar so he must have used black and white. Well, I think that's brilliant of you, Freddi, to have thought of that, really I do!"

Woods filled Barney's cup and said, "The more you think of it, the more you see how easy it all was—if it came off. Higgins was second on the operating list. The murderer released some of the oxygen out of the cylinder on the trolley, so that there would be just about enough for one more operation—one long operation like a duodenal ulcer; and he knew we'd be bound to put in a fresh cylinder for the next case. He simply put the repainted one on the rack so that I would take that next; naturally I'd choose the one nearest to hand."

"How on earth could he know how much oxygen the duodenal ulcer would take?" said Barney. "I'd be very sorry to have to estimate it, myself."

"Well, he made a guess at it then; and it was a jolly good guess because I remember that the oxygen had run right down after the duodenal was finished."

"And we were all in and out of the theater between the two operations," pointed out Eden.

"Except Frederica," said Barnes.

"Wouldn't there have been one too many used oxygen cylinders, Woody?" said Eden; "and one too few carbon dioxides?"

"You can bet your life there weren't," said Barney, laughing at her startled face. "Cockrill checked the whole lot over next day, I expect a black one had been painted green, to tally."

"But there isn't any green paint anywhere," said Frederica.

"Well, then, the black paint may have been removed afterwards; before the empties were counted. Easy enough in a theater where there's lots of acetone and turpentine and things about; and the stuff wouldn't have hardened yet; it was only just dry."

"Not even quite dry," agreed Eden; "since it left a black mark on the front of Woody's overall."

"Wouldn't the turps have taken off the underneath paint as well?"

"No, it's that hard, shiney, baked-on enamel; it may have marked it a little bit, but those cylinders get awfully shabby and knocked about; nobody would ever notice it."

"So it couldn't have been me, anyway, Barney, could it?" said Frederica. "Because all the time the cylinder was being doctored, I was in the ward with my suffering patients."

"Any of the rest of us could have done it, tho," said Maj. Moon, reluctantly. "It was such a night, and nobody would be noticing what any one else was doing. Woody says she was sitting in the cottage; Esther says she joined her there as soon as she left the ward; Barney was out of the theater for half an hour or so, soon after Higgins came in; and Eden was doing his night rounds . . . I was in reception, but not solidly all the time."

"Any of us could have done the first murder," said Gervase impatiently; "[all right, Frederica, not you!] and any of us could have killed poor little Bates; but none of us could have tried to kill Freddie with gas, that day."

There was a short uncomfortable pause. Everybody remembered that Gervase had been seen coming out of the cottage that morning, and had never acknowledged his presence there; but nobody liked to put it openly into words. He went on, "The same applies for Barney and Moon—they might have done the other things, but they couldn't have tried to kill Freddi. I suppose Esther could have; but it was she who saved Freddi's life; and anyway, she obviously wouldn't have wanted to kill William, later on. As for Woody. . . ."

"What about Woody?" asked Woods, as he paused.

He glanced up at her with his quick smile. "Actually, you could have done them all," he pointed out, laughing.

"So I could," said Woods, equably.

"Could you, darling?" said Freddie, staring.

"Well, of course, I was sitting here all alone waiting for Esther to come off St. Elizabeth's while the oxygen cylinder was being got ready for Higgins, so I've got no alibi for that time; in any case, I'd have endless opportunities for mucking about in the theater by myself. I was alone while Sister Bates was being killed and I could easily have pretended to 'discover' her after she was dead. I knew all about the gas shortage on the morning that Frederica was put to sleep, and tho it's true that I did know Barney was taking her up to town, that day, I might have thought he would be too late to save her. As for William, I have lots of time for substituting repainted cylinders and seeing that they don't get used again and things like that. . . ."

"So you have," said Frederica.

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

Just as ground crews make possible the successful missions of army bombers and ordnance men maintain the efficiency of the tank corps, the volunteers on the clerical staff of the American Red Cross make it possible for that agency to perform the multiple services it is called upon to give in war time.

The hundreds of staff assistants now working for the Chicago chapter are not enough, Mrs. Farwell Winston, volunteer chairman of staff assistants, has announced. In every department of the chapter there must be a daily staff of clerical aids to keep records, do typing and filing, and maintain office routine.

At the blood donor center alone, staff assistants are on duty every day, manning desks, taking appointments from donors by mail and telephone, making up certificates, filing cards, and typing lists of 500 to 700 donors daily.

Former business women, or other women with stenographic skills, are urged by Mrs. Winston to sign up immediately at headquarters, 529 S. Wabash av., for the comprehensive, one-week training course to open June 21. There will be lecture sessions three days of that week, after which class members will receive an examination and assignments.

This is a busy month for the women who are members of the American Camp and Hospital Service, 540 Briar pl.

The organization, which performs services for men in uniform convalescing in military and naval hospitals, will have its second benefit card party of this season at 1 p. m. tomorrow at headquarters. Proceeds will go to the club's many war projects, one of which is providing 2,000 gifts a month for patients in five Chicago area military hospitals.

The organization will make a special event of Father's day for men in the Marine hospital, 4141 Clarendon av., and in the hospital at Fort Sheridan. Saturday a committee will go to both installations with gifts and refreshments for the patients, many of whom will have their fathers as visitors Sunday.

June 24 is the date members have set for a luncheon at 1 p. m. in the Latin Quarter restaurant, 23 W. Randolph st., ending the organization's earning fund drive.

The major project of the American Camp and Hospital Service has been the furnishing of recreation and sun rooms in the Marine and Fort Sheridan hospitals. One of the 24 solaria in the new Vaughan General hospital, Hines, also has been decorated by the organization, of which Mrs. Louis Green is president; Miss Matilda Spak, entertainment chairman, and Mrs. Mary Ashton, chairman of gift wrapping.

Mrs. George Hartford, president of the Chicago district unit of Bundles for America, has announced the moving of the organization's headquarters to 14 N. Michigan av., 2d floor, from 337 N. Michigan av.

The new address has been the site for some time of the unit's salvage sewing division, and now that increased demands are being placed on the division to supply reclaimed civilian clothes for medically discharged veterans, and also garments for their families, Bundles members decided to concentrate headquarters at the work center.

From the new offices Bundles also will distribute layettes, comfort kits, and service men's knitted garments. The kits will continue to be packed in the room at 75 E. Wacker dr.

Credit Women to Hear Report on U. S. Meeting

The Credit Women's Club of Chicago will hold a dinner meeting this evening in the Stevens building restaurant. Officers and delegates will report on the National Credit War congress, held last month in Omaha, Neb.

Kohn, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Edison Dick, recording secretary, and T. Philip Swift, treasurer.

Mrs. R. F. Binyel, Marshfield, Wis.—When metal waste baskets become rusty on the bottom and the enamel has chipped off, I cut a piece of oil cloth to fit the bottom exactly and glue it in securely.

Mrs. Ted F., Chicago — When washing any glass vessel in hot water, first dip the open end into the water. Sudden expansion can break the glass if the bottom is the first to touch the water.

Grace S., Lansing, Mich.—This last year I've found I can save time and work in laundering tasks if I see that no articles get heavily soiled.

Appetizing and nourishing sandwiches are the mainstay of the lunch box, and variety is an important contribution to their success. Plain breads, enriched white, rye, whole-wheat, and bran, always are good with meat, cheese, or egg fillings and nut and fruit breads are excellent with sweet spreads or those that have cream cheese as their foundation.

Vegetables have invaded the sandwich field, too, and garden sandwiches containing lettuce, shredded cabbage and carrot, tender raw spinach leaves or watercress, or finely diced cucumber, aren't new to lunch box toters.

Day-old bread is best for sandwiches, and butter or margarine should be softened for ease in spreading. Spread the butter to the outermost edges and corners of the bread to help keep the sandwich moist. Cut the sandwich into halves or quarters and wrap well in waxed paper.

Meat Sandwich Fillings.

1. One-half cup ground cooked meat, ½ cup grated carrots, ½ cup chopped celery, ¼ cup chopped sweet-sour pickle, 1 teaspoon grated onion, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup salad dressing, shredded lettuce.

2. One three ounce can deviled ham, ¼ cup finely chopped cucumber, 2 teaspoons grated onion, 1 tablespoons chopped sweet pickle, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise or cooked salad dressing.

3. One-half cup diced or ground roast beef, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon chili sauce, few drops of Worcestershire sauce, and 1 tablespoon mayonnaise.

4. One-half cup liver sausage, 2 teaspoons minced, cooked bacon, 2 teaspoons minced pimiento, and ½ teaspoon lemon juice.

Egg Sandwich Fillings.

1. One diced hard cooked egg, 2 tablespoons diced celery, 1 teaspoon chopped pimiento or green pepper, 1/16 teaspoon salt, mayonnaise to moisten.

2. One hard cooked egg, chopped, with 4 stuffed olives, sliced. Salad dressing to moisten.

3. One hard cooked egg chopped with ½ cup leftover meat, and 1 teaspoon sweet pickle relish.

4. One hard cooked egg, mashed with 2 tablespoons chopped crisp bacon, ¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, and mayonnaise to moisten.

Cheese Sandwich Fillings.

1. Slices of American, Swiss, or pimiento cheese spread with mustard butter. [For mustard butter, add 1½ teaspoons prepared or horseradish mustard to 2 tablespoons softened butter.]

2. One-half cup grated American cheese, 2 tablespoons grated raw carrot, 1 tablespoon grated onion, mayonnaise to moisten.

3. One-half cup creamed cottage cheese, ¼ cup chopped tomato, 2 tablespoons chopped cucumber, 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper, 1 teaspoon minced onion, ½ teaspoon salt, shredded lettuce.

Peanut Butter Sandwich Fillings.

1. One-quarter cup peanut butter, 2 tablespoons chopped, cooked bacon, 1 tablespoon chopped celery, mayonnaise or salad dressing.

2. One-quarter cup peanut butter, 2 tablespoons grated raw carrot, ½ teaspoon minced onion, mayonnaise to moisten.

3. One-quarter cup peanut butter, 2 tablespoons chopped dates, figs, prunes, or raisins, mayonnaise to moisten.

Directions for preparing many other lunch box sandwiches, dainty party sandwiches and sandwich loaves are included in "The New Sandwich Maker." Write to Mary Meade, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, for this booklet, inclosing 5 cents in stamps.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 diamond	2 diamonds	3 clubs	Pass
4 clubs	4 spades [final bid]

Despite his long and almost solid trump suit, South could not avoid the loss of two trumps, the heart ace, and one club, hence the contract was down one.

This was a rather severe loss in view of the fact that five hearts would have a laydown. North, of course, maintained that there had been no point at which he could have mentioned hearts without fatally misleading his partner. If he had bid three hearts freely over three clubs, he said, South would have visualized a stronger North hand—a heart suit headed by at least the ace—and would have contracted for an unmakable slam. By the same token, North could not dream of bidding five hearts over four spades.

I do not want to suggest that there was no logic in North's stand, but I must point out that it was extremely shortsighted. North's void in spades, the highest ranking suit, was a distinct danger signal that South would bid that suit, and surely it was worth some risk for North to suggest an alternative major suit contract. If South jumped to a slam he would have to produce more high card tricks, including aces, than he actually held.

Doctors Skilled as Artists, Too, Exhibit Proves

Four hundred and forty-one doctors demonstrated that they are as familiar with oil and water color as with scalpel and stethoscope at the opening yesterday of the seventh annual exhibition of the American Physicians Art association in the Stevens hotel. The exhibit, which will continue thru Friday, is being held in conjunction with the convention of the American Medical association.

The exhibiting physicians, who have made art a hobby, are represented by 1,039 pictures in more than 21 media. Entries are from all parts of the United States and from Honolulu, Alaska, and Canada. Twenty exhibitors are now in military service; 35 are Chicago doctors.

The exhibition covers a wide variety of subjects. Many of the pastoral scenes dated 1944 indicate a nostalgia for the languorous days of peace. There are street scenes blending sky and slum. Beauty and squalor are mingled in scenes of country, city, and desert. There are sultry windswept sands and sandswept shores. Many are good. Others have a basic, undeveloped quality. A few nudes, some sultry, others simply anatomical, are included.

Dr. Max Thorek of Chicago offers a series of diversified camera studies. Another Chicagoan, Dr. S. G. Cilella, is exhibiting a photographic series with a recent South Pacific background. In this group are a tranquil sunset on Henderson air field, Guadalcanal, and a serene looking P-T boat in the same island. Dr. George Marchmont-Robinson, also of Chicago, is showing oils that cover a lot of territory. He colorfully jumps from an Algiers bazar to a Hungarian horse fair.

Doctors' patients, altho seldom used as subjects, come in for some gentle ridicule. Dr. Hugh Robertson of Philadelphia, Pa., presents a humorous and graphic study of an irascible patient, made of bent wire in one continuous piece.

Ralph Magee, bishop of the Des Moines area and the Rock River conference of the Methodist church, will give the baccalaureate address in Cahn auditorium at 8 o'clock tonight.

Liberal arts school of the university will award 224 degrees; the graduate school, 112; education, 109; commerce, 91; music, 78; speech, 57; technological institute, 56; journalism, 37; medical, 14; dental, 12, and law, 7.

Thru the Looking Glass

It's not so much the years as the posture that makes early, flabby ruin of the average feminine neck and throat line. And we must say, in all honesty, that prevention is far more effective than attempts at cure after the damage has been done.

Throat and neck creams and oils serve a wonderful purpose. Every woman who's hit the 30 mark ought to own and use one, especially if her skin is the thin, dry kind that crinkles easily. The oiling properties of these preparations are valuable to the preservation of the skin's youthful texture. And the massage movements involved in their application are equally valuable; there is no denying that correct massage can help the wilting muscles retain some of their tone. Such massage comes under the heading of "passive exercise" for muscles that are difficult to keep in condition.

But it's a wise woman who never forgets that posture-habits, in the end, undermine the muscle structure of throat and neck—or preserve it beautifully far into old age. Holding the head properly at all times is what does it. If you sit on the end of your spine, as most of us do, you're bound to let your chin sag, and you're bound to have the neck crinkle up. The cumulative effect of years of this is just what you might expect—two chins instead of one, and a neck that is deeply wrinkled.

Sit straight, right on the hip bones; stand straight, with hips thrust under and spine in a straight line. Automatically the line of your head will right itself. You'll present a prettier picture all the time and, without a bit of effort on your part, you'll be preserving neck and chin contour.

On the Aisle By Claudia Cassidy

Gloria Swanson Coming.

Gloria Swanson, who has been flirting with the fringes of theater for a season or two, comes to the Blackstone Tuesday night, July 11, in a comedy called "A Goose for the Gander." This is something new, by Harold Kennedy, which has Ralph Forbes in a leading role, and also employs Choo Choo Johnson, who once replaced Gypsy Rose Lee in "Star and Garter."

Gloria Swanson.

Lila Lee to the Rescue.

Lila Lee, last here in "Claudia," goes into the cast of "Kiss and Tell" next Monday night to give Katharine Warren three weeks' vacation after a stretch of 58 weeks as Corliss Archer's harassed mama. This is only the first lap of Miss Lee's rescue tour. From the Harris she goes to Detroit to replace Violet Heming, then to New York to step in for Jessie Royce Landis. As reward, George Abbott gives her a company of her own in the fall.

Ballet Changes.

The Ballet Repertory has changed the order of its ballets in the three Eighth Street theater performances opening tonight. First on the bill is Nijinska's "Hitch Your Wagon to a Star," with André Eglevsky and Rosella Hightower added to the cast for the stellar roles; then comes Leonide Massine's new ballet, "Fantasie Poetique," followed by "Debutantes' Ball" and the new "Spanish Rhapsody."

"New Moon" Cast.

When "The New Moon" follows "Rose Marie" at the Civic Opera house June 23, Barbara Scully, who was a charming Kathie in "The Student Prince" about three seasons ago, will sing Marianne. Arthur Maxwell, Karen Conrad, Pittman Corry, and others are held over, while additional leading roles go to Ronnie Cunningham, Ruth Gillette, and William Marel. The last two were in "Blossom Time." "Rose Marie," meanwhile, reports that it has cut 45 minutes from opening night's running time, and now rings down at 11 o'clock.

Gossip.

Almost all the plans are completed for the free concerts at Grant park, and they will be announced in a few days. . . . Gov. Kerr of Oklahoma will be one of the most popular men at the Democratic convention, as well as its keynoter. He has reserved 250 seats for his favorite show. . . . On one of the hottest nights of our temperamental summer the neon sign at the Civic theater dropped some letters and horrified the management by blazoning "The Heater." . . . When Ethel Barrymore appears in "Emblezzled Heaven" next fall she will play a devout old peasant woman in a pre-war Czech setting, with a last act in papal audience at the Vatican. . . . Jan Kiepura and Marta Eggerth have decided to do Kalman's "Czardas Princess" next fall. . . . "Let's Face It," opening tonight at the Selwyn, plays a Wednesday matinée this week, then goes on an every night and Saturday matinée schedule.

Voters' League Council to Hold Policy Session

Mrs. Frank P. Hixon will open her home in Lake Forest today and tomorrow to the state council of the Illinois League of Women Voters. Policy making body of the league, the council is composed of state board members and the presidents of affiliated local leagues. It meets three times yearly.

Drakes and of Mrs. Jacques Holinger.

When Mrs. Samuel W. Bodman left last week for Los Angeles, Cal., to join Lt. Bodman at his army air force post, she took along their new son, Peter, who was adopted recently from the Cradle. Young Peter and his mother had a two week visit before their departure with his maternal grandparents, the Andrew McNallys of Evanston.

On the Calendar.

Members of the woman's board of the Travelers Aid society will meet for their annual spring luncheon and election of officers at noon today at the Glen View club. Mrs. Anita Tidball, executive secretary, will tell of the society's work here. Associate members of the organization, women who have helped with benefits and in other ways and who may become board members, also have been invited to the luncheon, and two former members who are back in Chicago, Mrs. Christopher Janus of Arlington, Va., and Mrs. Charles F. Cutter of Washington, D. C., will be there to greet old friends.

Mrs. Robert G. Walker and Mrs. William H. Sills III. will be absent as they are in the east visiting their husbands, who are naval officers. Also missing will be Mrs. Alvah Taylor Martin, the former Charlotte Righeimer, whose marriage to Lt. Comdr. Martin took place last Saturday afternoon in the River Forest residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Righeimer. Comdr. Martin and his bride have gone to the west coast, and she will return to Chicago when he goes to sea.

Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed and Miss Alice Roullier are entertaining at the opening of the Ballet Repertory company tonight at the Eighth Street theater. Mrs. Paul Walker, Mrs. Jack Spachner, Mrs. James G. Shakman, Mrs. Edward M. Whiting, Mrs. C. Mabie Lauritzen, Mrs. Edward A. Leight, Mrs. Gordon Thorne, and Mrs. James J. Callahan are others with seats for the opening performance. Other performances will be given tomorrow and Thursday nights, with Leonide Massine heading the list of guest artists from the Ballet theater and Metropolitan Opera company who will join the Chicago group.

Also enjoying one of the three ballet repertory performances will be newly elected officers of the Illinois Opera guild juniors, who will be guests of the senior organization's president, Mrs. James G. McMillan, at a box party. At the younger group's annual meeting Saturday at the Arts club Miss Mary Jane Brummel was elected president for the third time. Serving with her will be Mrs. William H. Spurgeon as senior adviser, Mrs. Robert B. Smythe and Miss Beth Coleman as vice presidents, Miss Mary Shepherd as treasurer, Miss Yvonne Hoskins, recording secretary, and Miss Mary Mertes, corresponding secretary. Miss Brummel will entertain the new board at luncheon next Tuesday.

Members of the board of the Margaret Etter creche will meet for luncheon today at the Edgewater Beach Golf club to discuss the outcome of their recent rummage sale, at which $1,700 was cleared. It will be the last meeting until September, altho the creche nursery school will be open all summer and members will continue their volunteer work there.

Year's Flower of Sentiment Is Stephanotis

BY REA SEEGER.

Fragrant news from the florists in time for June weddings concerns a romantic flower to rival lilies of the valley, now difficult to obtain for the profuse use common in other years. Stephanotis is the name of the flower. It has a haunting fragrance to recall sentimental memories of this June. It's not a new flower, for in novels of grandmother's day you'll read the name. Even then, susceptible women succumbed instantly to that sweet and romantic perfume. The flower itself is waxy white, has five petals [the usual bridal bouvardia is star shaped with four petals], and is surprisingly hardy compared to the fragile blooms of lilies of the valley or bouvardia.

Stephanotis combines exquisitely with gardenias, white roses, and with white or parma blue violets. Massed alone, they are exceptionally beautiful as a corsage. Usually they are wired to preserve their inimitable beauty and perfume thru any ceremony. But, whether carried or pinned as a corsage, they are the newest, latest, and most sentimental of bridal blooms.

Used for table decorations, for wedding dinners, or luncheons they are perfect, for their dainty petaled beauty is unrivaled as a small flower decoration. The waxy white flowers are redolent of feminine charm, and the tiny green stems and fine green leaves are decorative, either alone or with other flowers and foliage. As cut flowers delivered in a box, ready for vases and low glass bowls, they are just as effective as the beloved lilies of the valley, but they will last much longer.

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS FREE SPEECH IN WAR

U. S. Prosecutors Are Given Rebuke.

sented, conceding that "the right of free speech is vital" but insisting that Hartzel's mailing of the pamphlets to military officers gave the jury the right to infer he was attempting to cause insubordination among the troops.

"The first amendment to the Constitution preserves freedom of speech and of the press in war as well as in peace," the minority continued. "The right to criticize the government and the handling of the war is not questioned."

"But these pamphlets were distributed in 1942," the minority remarked. "The military situation was then nothing like so strong as now nor confidence in our strategy so uniform. A large segment of public opinion desired to concentrate against Japan, rather than Germany and Italy. It was an opportune time from the viewpoint of the German enemy to put pamphlets such as these in circulation. . . ."

Citizenship Is Restored.

The court's opinion, in the second case, was unanimous altho four justices took occasion to state their views separately from the majority opinion delivered by Justice Frankfurter.

The ruling in effect restored American citizenship to Carl Wilhelm Baumgartner, 49, of Kansas City, Mo., an electrical engineer. Born in Germany, Baumgartner came to the United States in 1927 and obtained naturalization papers in 1932. Almost 10 years later, the government brought suit to cancel his certificate of citizenship and won a decree which was set aside by today's action.

Baumgartner was accused of obtaining his citizenship by fraud in that he did not truly renounce his allegiance to Germany. The government presented evidence that he unfavorably compared President Roosevelt to Hitler, called American democracy "a farce," and inscribed anti-Semitic sentiments in a diary.

Uphold Right to Criticize.

"One of the prerogatives of American citizenship is the right to criticize public men and measures," the court opined, "and that means not only informed and responsible criticism but the freedom to speak foolishly and without moderation. . . . The expression of views which may collide with cherished American ideals does not necessarily prove want of devotion to the nation.

"Nothing that we are now deciding is intended to weaken in the slightest the alertness with which admission to American citizenship should be safeguarded. . . . The evidence affords insufficient proof to warrant the infliction of the grave consequences involved in making an alien out of a man 10 years after he was admitted to citizenship.

Evidence Not Sufficient.

"The evidence is not sufficiently compelling to require that we penalize a naturalized citizen for the expression of silly or even sinister sounding views which native born citizens utter with impunity."

In a concurring opinion, Justice Murphy noted that the rule of law governing naturalization proceedings was equally applicable to Communists, Nazis, or followers of any other political faith and added:

"The naturalized citizen does not lose the precious right of citizenship because he subsequently dares to criticize his adopted government in vituperative or defamatory terms."

The court thus wound up a session marked by bickering over constitutional interpretations and adjourned for a summer recess.

CUBS, SOX BATTLE LEAGUE LEADERS TODAY

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

THE young men on U. C. L. A.'s football team had best not snicker when Bronko Nagurski begins giving them instructions on forward passing. . . . The Bronk is hardly a novice at passing, despite his reputation as a line plunger, . . . Twenty-five per cent of his completions in his nine seasons in the National Football league went for touchdowns, which is a better record than Cecil Isbell, Sammy Baugh, or Sid Luckman compiled in the major league. . . . When Bob Steuber was detached from the Iowa Pre-Flight school yesterday he took with him the highest physical training average in the history of the station—a 3.8 based on a perfect 4.0. . . . This is determined on [1] instructional sports—swimming, gymnastics and tumbling, hand to hand fighting, basketball labor engineering, boxing, military track which includes grenade throwing and the obstacle course, wrestling, soccer, and football; [2] sports program competition including boxing, wrestling, football, and basketball; [3] the test battery including a pack test, jump reach, pushups, pullups, and speed agility. . . . A bulletin from Commissioner Landis' office put five clubs on the trail of Calvin McLish, 18 year Oklahoma Indian pitcher now with the Dodgers. . . . Landis' note resulted from reports of irregularities in an American league team's negotiations for the boy and all teams were warned to keep hands off until a certain date. . . . Four other clubs entered the bidding, with Brooklyn the winner. . . . The Wake in listing the race tracks coöperating with Chicago Tribune Charities in the presentation of a five day charity program yesterday inadvertently omitted the name of Hawthorne. . . . Hawthorne, as well as Lincoln Fields, Sportsman's Park, Washington Park and Arlington Park yielded a day of its regularly allotted dates to make the meeting possible.

Calvin McLish.

Bob Steuber.

The White Sox, it seems, always are chumps for one team in the league above all others, and they rarely swoon before a whirlwind club. . . . This year it's the Boston Red Sox. . . . The White Sox have won four out of six with the Yankees, five out of seven with the Senators, three out of five with the Athletics, and three out of five with the Indians. . . . They have beaten the Tigers repeatedly and entered the current series with a record of two victories in their last three games with the Browns after dropping the first series in St. Louis. . . . The Red Sox, tho, have whipped them seven out of seven, the only season sweep any team held over any other team as late as June 1. . . . The three other western clubs have defeated Boston a total of 14 times. . . . Ned Day, match game bowling champion, recently ran into a surprise in New Orleans where he was beaten by a left hander, Edison Boudoin, 586 pins to 455. . . . Boudoin took all three games. . . . Notre Dame and Navy had better get set. . . . West Point expects one of its greatest football teams next fall. . . . Harry Mehre of Mississippi has added Louis Johnson, former Tennessee lineman, to his coaching staff. . . . Capt. John Worban, former Illinois football player, has been awarded the oak leaf cluster, distinguished flying cross, and other honors for his missions against the Japs in the South Pacific. . . . Jim Thorpe, the famous old Indian athlete, arrived in Chicago yesterday to help publicize the fifth war loan drive.

Purely Personal.

But two requests have I to make of Life. . . .
The first that I be given strength to work
That I in turn might give my child and wife
The comforts I could not, were I to shirk.
The second of the two requests I make
Is that down every trouble laden mile
Life grant to me the courage it will take
—Michael H. Daily.

Romantic Counsel.

Do not become a hermit, dear,
While you are far away,
Just have a lot of fun, dear;
Slip out each night and play.

Have the girls around, dear;
They, too, must have their fling,
Be sure you treat them kind, dear;
Laugh and dance and sing.

Do anything you will, dear;
Pet and flirt and park—
With Mary, Grace, and Ann, dear;
Have fun after dark!

The years are all too few, dear,
Your chasin' 'round to check—
But should I find you do, dear,
I'll break your doggone neck!!!

No Points.

The perfume sweet of summer flowers,
The joyous note of bird that flies
The graceful curve of sea gull's wing—

College Comment.

After knowing and seeing the coaching staff at the University of Illinois in action, I'd like to make a long range prediction that after this war the Illini will be contenders for titles in all sports. This staff has the qualities most desired in sports—personality and ability.—Doc Richards, Minn. '25.

Farewell.

You stood there in the rain,
You laughed to hide the teardrops,

You spoke of things unworthy
Of such a time as this,

You tried to live a lifetime
Before the whistle's blow,
Like children grasping vainly
The melting flakes of snow.

Laughing in the rain.

SENATORS DEAL YANKEES SIXTH STRAIGHT LOSS

Washington Wins in 11th, 4-3.

Washington, D. C., June 12 (AP).—The Washington Senators scored a run in the 11th inning to beat New York, 4 to 3, before a crowd of 12,650 tonight. It was the sixth straight defeat for the Yankees.

MARTIAN TAKES LINCOLN FIELDS' OAK LAWN PURSE

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

Martian, the Happy Hour farm's 6 year old son of Sickle, took down the major end of the $1,800 Oak Lawn purse in a driving rain yesterday at Hawthorne as a crowd of 14,800 continued to add to the prosperity of the Lincoln Fields race meeting.

The mutuel handle was $747,370 and brought the total for the 23 days to $17,240,147.

The Oak Lawn, a mile and 70 yards event for 3 year olds and upward, was the feature event of an ordinary card which ushered in the last week of the spring session and gave Jackie Martin, the apprentice jockey, his second of tnree victories as he guided the big brown gelding over a sloppy track to win by four and a half lengths. J. V. Maggio's Whose, with Otto Grohs up, hung on to take the place from John Greener's Clarksville.

Ties Grohs, but Not for Long.

Jockey Martin previously had scored aboard Ben Fogelson's Vinum in the fourth race and then brought in J. E. Mahoney's Very True in the seventh. His three triumphs brought his total for the meeting to 23 and put him into a tie with Grohs for the leadership until Otto booted Mrs. W. R. Reid's Anonymous home in the last race.

Martin's first two winners were favorites, Vinum paying $5 and Martian $4.60, but Very True refunded $12.20 for a $2 ticket.

Good Day for Form Players.

Form players had a pleasant afternoon for after Gentle Savage had taken the opener at $18.60, five straight short priced horses entered the winner's circle. The second event went to J. M. Hutchins' Observer at $6.20, and a $67.20 daily double was the result. The third was a victory for Thomas Piatt's Come and Go which returned a $5.20 mutuel. Vinum's price was $5 in the fourth and the same refund was made on Marion Brink's Foreign Agent in the fifth.

Then came Martian in the sixth and the short price of $4.60, after which Very True captured the seventh at $12.20. The seventh race, by the way was the longest of the meeting, a mile and five furlongs affair for 4 year olds and up.

Altho beaten eight lengths by John Marsch's Valdina Foe in last Saturday's La Salle handicap, Howard Wells' Equifox has drawn top weight of 118 pounds for Lincoln Fields' closing feature Saturday, the $5,000 added Lincoln handicap at a mile and a quarter.

Valdina Foe, hard running 4 year old son of Sun Briar, which sired Sun Beau, the money-winning champion of the period between 1931 and 1940, will pick up seven pounds and carry 117 for the event at Hawthorne for which 20 thorobreds have been nominated.

The record of Mel Ott's home runs from 1937 to date shows that he has hit 137 of his 204 homers in the Polo Grounds, whose short right field fences provides an easy target. Last season he hit 18 homers, all in the Polo Grounds. Fifteen of his 16 homers this year have been made in New York, the other one in St. Louis. Ott's record, park by park, from 1937:

New York, June 12 (AP).—The New York Giants battered five Brooklyn pitchers for a 15 to 9 victory today, making 16 hits and getting help from the Dodger hurlers on nine bases on balls and two hit batsmen.

Mel Ott.

Mel Ott, manager of the Giants, hit two home runs and a double, increasing his total of extra base blows for his 19 years with the Giants to 1,001. Rogers Hornsby holds the National league mark at 1,011. The home runs were Ott's 15th and 16th of the season. Phil Weintraub, Giant first baseman, also punched out a pair of homers and drove in five runs.

Ralph Branca, less than a week out of New York university, was the best of the Dodger pitchers. He struck out the first three Giants to face him and yielded only two hits in three and two-thirds innings.

North Siders to Play Cards Under Lights

Stan's Due Today

STANLEY HACK, veteran third baseman of the Chicago Cubs, who recently decided to return to baseball, will arrive in the city this morning. Hack will remain in Chicago until the Cubs return from St. Louis and will make his first 1944 appearance Friday when the team meets the Cincinnati Reds in Wrigley field.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., June 12.—Charley Grimm's Cubs, who seem to be planning their own little D-day by which they'll escape from the National league's cellar apartment, now are about back to where their 1944 troubles originated.

They must give battle to the Cardinals tomorrow night as well as on the following afternoon, and it happens that the Chicagoans are in the maiden class so far as the league champions are concerned. The Cards have spanked them six straight times, which explains to some extent why the Cubs are languishing in the basement and why the Cardinals are lolling in the luxury of first place.

Chance for Even Break.

If the Cubs can do no better than win one of the pair here they'll go home with an even break for the road trip, not a bad record if allowance is made for the fact that in one stage of the tour they were beaten six times in succession.

Mr. Grimm's newest combination that sparkled yesterday by dealing a double shutout to the Pirates will be continued. This is the one that has Tony York at short instead of at third where he operated prior to suffering an injury. Because Roy Hughes has been doing a fair to middlin' job at the far corner there was no pressing need for York there and anyway he prefers the short-stopping assignment. He worked there for Grimm at Milwaukee last season, his companion around the middle of the infield being Don Johnson.

Passeau on Night Shift.

Claude Passeau, for the time being, is Grimm's night specialist and will be entrusted with tomorrow evening's electric light affair. The Mississippi farmer got himself on the night shift by that recent 2 to 1 decision over the Dodgers. He wasn't exactly a wonder that evening but at least he won by a low score. That's what fetched him the after dinner assignment last Friday in Pittsburgh and for the first time this season he looked like the real Passeau. Unfortunately his mates missed a double play in the eighth and it led to an unfinished tie.

Ed Hanyzewski, who has been idle for almost four weeks because of a muscle tear in his right arm, will seek advice tomorrow from Dr. Robert Hyland. If Ed is advised to resume pitching and work out the remaining soreness in that way he might be ready to take a turn by the end of the week. He can throw his fast ball even now and that's a fairly good indication that the inqury has just about healed.

Four May Be Available.

Grimm is still anxiously awaiting the time when he won't have to scratch the bottom of the barrel for a starting pitcher. Bob Chipman's five hitter in his debut yesterday indicated that he might be a real acquisition, especially for a team in bad need of a southpaw. Paul Erickson's two hitter in the front half of yesterday's twin bill showed what the kid can do when he has control.

If Hanyzewski and Passeau can get going, four will be available for regular work and with occasional assistance from Paul Derringer, Hank Wyse, Bill Fleming, and Hy Vanderberg, that should be enough.

ANDROFF DRAWS WITH MERRITT IN MARIGOLD BOUT

Frank Androff, Minneapolis heavyweight, and Dan Merritt, methodical Cleveland fighter, went eight rounds to a draw in Marigold Gardens last night.

Androff outmaneuvered and outpointed Dan in at least five of the eight rounds, so the decision was unpopular and was greeted with a series of boos. Referee Toomy Gilmore called the match even, Judge Carl Witt voted for Androff, while William O'Connell, the other judge, scored for Merritt.

Willie Edmonds, Grand Rapids welterweight, outpointed Gene Ward in a six round bout. Edmonds was one of four proteges of Wesley Ramey, former lightweight contender, to appear on the card.

The others were Georgie McCoy, 155 pounder; Doyle Hert, 138, and Eddy Lipsky, 168. McCoy beat Frankie Gaffney in four rounds, but Hert and Lipsky were defeated.

Morris Reif Knocks Out Bucky Taylor in Fourth

BROWNS NAME JACK KRAMER TO FACE LOPAT

Opener Rained Out in Third Inning.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The weather man was all by himself yesterday in responsibility for the failure of the White Sox and St. Louis Browns to reach a baseball decision in Comiskey park. The teams were in a two and one-half inning 1 to 1 tie when rain washed out the program—really flooded it into a future double header.

Ed Lopat.

Jack Kramer.

Thus Comiskey park's record of having not produced a single game afternoon performance since April 28, except on week-ends, remained intact.

Sox Tied for Third Place.

It was a good try, and not so welcome to the White Sox as the rainout on May 31. On that date the Athletics made two runs in the first inning—the game was called after three innings with the A's still leading, 2 to 0. Yesterday the Sox tied the score a half inning before the washout.

When last night's returns were all in the Sox had jumped from a fourth place tie with the Yankees to a third place deadlock with the Tigers.

The teams are scheduled to play a single game this afternoon and a night game tomorrow. If today's game is rained out, an effort will be made to play Thursday afternoon, an open date. This would necessitate the Browns canceling their scheduled game with the Great Lakes Bluejackets.

Browns Score on Error.

The ball game was begun after a 35 minute delay due to a shower. When things got started the Browns grabbed an unearned run in the first inning. Don Gutteridge was called out on strikes, but Al Zarilla and George McQuinn knocked singles, Vern Stephens' grounder bounced past Webb, Zarilla scoring. Gene Moore then forced Stephens and Milt Byrnes lined to Leroy Schalk. The Sox got runners on third and first as a result of a pass to Schalk and a single by Ralph Hodgin, but Eddie Carnett's fly ended the threat in their half of the inning.

After Grey Clarke and Mike Tresh had supplied easy outs in the Chicago end of the second, the score was tied by Webb, who singled to left and scored on Orval Grove's double to left center. Wally Moses was given an intentional pass and was forced by Schalk.

In the third, McQuinn walked with two out and was forced by Stephens. Then the heavens gave down.

'Tex Rickard of France' Killed in Air Battle

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 12.—The war department today listed Jeff Dickson, the Jackson, Miss., boy who was the Tex Rickard of France, as killed in action.

"I am very proud," said his widow, Mrs. Louise Dickson, who is staying at the Waldorf-Astoria with their 3 year old daughter, Christine Lee, "I would not have had it any other way."

Jeff—or Capt. Jefferson Davis Dickson Jr., 47—had been listed as missing since July 14, 1943, when the B-17 Flying Fortress in which he was serving as a photographic intelligence officer was shot down over Le Bourget field near Paris.

"He didn't have to go," Mrs. Dickson continued. "I'm sure he would have liked to have been in France to aid the invaders." Jeff served with distinction in the signal corps in the first World war and after a brief stay in the United States returned to Paris to show the French how to promote boxing.

Dickson was on Gen. Pershing's staff in 1918 and received several decorations from the French government. He established the Palais de Sports in Paris and later opened offices in Barcelona, Madrid, Brussels, and London as his promotional enterprises spread.

Jeff returned to the United States in the late '30s and founded the Natchez Historical association at Natchez, Miss., where he also completed a replica of an ancient fort and restored a 17th century village.

He returned to army service shortly after Pearl Harbor and was sent overseas in November, 1942.

MICKEY WALKER, EX-BOXER, SEEKS FAME WITH ART

Asks $1,500 for His 1st Painting, a Winter Mural

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Edward P. Walker, who used to practice the art of the prize ring as Mickey Walker, has exchanged his boxing gloves for paint and brush. Since he retired from the ring, Walker, former welterweight and middleweight champion, has become interested in art. Mickey's first important painting went on exhibition last night in the Club Women's bureau at Mandel Brothers along with scores of other portraits, still lifes, landscapes, and etchings submitted by 92 artists to the Chicago No-Jury Society of Artists, which is sponsoring the event.

Walker to Go Overseas.

Altho the contributors are some of the most proficent artists in the country and include Maude Philips Hutchins, wife of the president of the University of Chicago, and Wellington J. Reynolds, only American to be awarded the Prix de Rome, a medal the French previously had given exclusively to Europeans, Walker's exhibit potentially is the most expensive. The asking price for his winter mural is $1,500, Miss Jackie Rice, daughter of Violette Rice, president of the society, said last night.

Mickey's offering is called "Christmas Masquerade" and shows a youngster dressed as Santa Claus about to visit a home in a rural community, with snow covered roofs o. several wooden and brick buildings in the background.

Inspiration to Children.

Walker was unable to come to Chicago because he is preparing to leave soon with Earl Sande, the former jockey, and other members of a U. S. O. unit to entertain service men overseas.

His painting depicts strength of character and power, the same power Mickey displayed while beating such as Johnny Risko, Ace Hudkins, Tiger Flowers, Mike McTigue, Paul Berlenbach, and Jack Britton during a 16 year campaign which lasted from 1919 to 1935.

Mrs. Ella Pruss, one of the directors of the exhibition, said Walker's picture will be an inspiration to children everywhere and is likely to be purchased by some benefactor or philanthropist.

Anglers Set for D-Day on Bass Thursday

BY BOB BECKER.

The black bass in the northern zone of Illinois have to face "D-day," Thursday, which is the annual opening of the season on this game fish. Just how heavy an attack the fishermen will launch against this popular species in Illinois lakes isn't known, but the chances are that not as many fishermen will be on the water this year as in previous seasons.

Illinois is generous as far as its bass limits are concerned. The state says it's okay to take 10 bass per day, which is a higher daily limit than prevails in Michigan, Wisconsin or Minnesota. In those states the limits are under 10 per day.

Try Douglas Lake.

As a rule the majority of northern Illinois bass fishermen hit for the lake country around Fox Lake, Antioch, and other points in that general area where Grass, Petite, Pistakee, Fox, Marie, and other lakes are located. Grass lake with its big growth of aquatic vegetation is an especial favorite of the bass and pike fishermen who cast weedless lures. Downstate in the central zone are other spots where one can connect with bass altho Illinois doesn't have the big lake areas of Wisconsin and Minnesota which can count their fishing spots in the thousands.

If a northern Illinois fisherman wants to try his luck along the Illinois river Frank Bellrose, game technician of the Illinois Natural History Survey, says "Try Douglas lake at Chillicothe." Douglas is a 2,000 acre lake. There's a boat livery in town and it will tow fishermen to the fishing locations. Chillicothe can be reached by two railroads.

Have to Prove Claim.

In praising this lake as a good spot to connect for bass fishing, Bellrose contends that it's as good a stretch of water as we fished at Lake Chautauqua near Havana. That's praise enough for us, but the claim has to be proved before we accept it. We can't see how any lake down the river can produce any better bass fishing than we had June 1, when we fished the weeds along the east shore of Chautauqua.

TALBERT TAKES OPENING MATCH IN CLAY COURTS

Detroit, Mich., June 12 (AP).—Favorites, led by Doris Hart of Miami, Fla., and Billy Talbert of Indianapolis, dominated opening matches of the week-long national clay court meet today at the Detroit Tennis club.

Miss Hart, ranked behind the defending champion, Pauline Betz of Los Angeles, who did not play today, scored a 6-1, 6-2 triumph over Joanne Dunn of Des Moines, Ia., a little blonde who last year had the misfortune of drawing Miss Betz in the first round. Miss Hart meets Mary Lou Beyer of Detroit tomorrow.

Talbert Scores Shutout.

Talbert, 1943 runner-up to Seymour Greenberg of Chicago, who now is an army sergeant, took a 6-0, 6-0 decision over Edward Donovan of Detroit. Francisco [Pancho] Segura of Coral Gables, Fla., the favorite, will meet Mack Taylor of Detroit tomorrow.

Five other seeded players advanced in the women's division. Dorothy May Bundy of Santa Monica, Cal., beat Betty Ruth Hulbert of St. Louis, 6-2, 6-2, and Mary Arnold of Los Angeles defeated Josephine Smilka of Hamtramck, Mich., 6-0, 6-1.

Shirley Fry of Akron, O., whipped Helen Detwiler of Grosse Pointe, Mich., 6-1, 6-1; Catherine Wolf of Elkhart, Ind., beat Virginia Culton of Detroit, 6-2, 6-1, and Constance Clifton of Miami eliminated Hazel Browne of Detroit, 6-1, 6-1.

Gene Vash Triumphs.

One ranking player went out of the men's division when Richard Warner of Salt Lake City defaulted to Leonard Weiner of Detroit. Gene Vash of Chicago beat Robert Blumenfield of Detroit, 6-1, 6-1, to reach the second round.

Among other first round winners in the men's division was Frank Brody of Des Moines, who defeated William Byrnes of Detroit, 6-1, 6-1. Rex Norris of Lansing, Mich., ranked behind Segura and Talbert, was idle.

Miss Betz opens her title defense tomorrow against Ruth Miho, also of Los Angeles. Miss Betz, two time winner of the National lawn title, paid attention today to the smooth stroking of Miss Hart, who is ranked No. 3 nationally.

MILLION DOLLAR GAME.

Birmingham, Ala., June 12 [AP].—An estimated million dollars worth of war bonds were purchased by some 25,000 baseball fans for the game between the Birmingham Barons and a team from Camp Sibert here tonight. Admission was by bond only. About 12,000 actually turned out for the game, in which the visiting team came out on top by a score of 4 to 3.

PICK 5 PROS FOR VICTORY MEET

Grout and Huske Lead in District Trials.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Jack Grout of Greenacres, the handsome Texan, and Al Huske of Glen Oak, long one of the most durable swingers in the district, yesterday tied at the North Shore Country club for the first two places allotted to Illinois professionals in the Chicago Victory National golf tournament to be decided at the Edgewater Golf club June 28 to July 2.

A birdie three on the 429 yard final green of the 36 hole qualifying round enabled Grout to earn a deadlock with Huske, who took a five at that final hole. Jack had begun the morning 18 with a 37-38-75, and followed it up with a 35-38-73, one over par. Huske, in the meantime, put together a pair of 74s.

Dennison Takes Fifth Spot.

Jack and Al thus will lead the Illinois section's special qualifiers into the big show at Edgewater. Joining them, without benefit of extra effort, were George Smith of Onwentsia, with a brace of 76's and a 152, and Sam Bernardi of Old Elm, who assembled a 78 and 77 for his 155.

Tied at 156, after the rain ridden voyage over North Shore, were Charles [Red] Dennison, Midlothian's popular pro, and Johnny Gibson, the long hitter from Westmoreland. Red and John went into a late play-off for the fifth place in the main event at Edgewater, and after John had hit his second into a trap at the 451 yard second and failed to escape, the last role went to Dennison.

Change Plans for Next Year.

Thus Grout, Huske, Smith, Bernardi, and Dennison will join the exclusive set that will gather at Edgewater two weeks from tomorrow for the benefit of hospitalized service men in World War II. With them, representing the Chicago professional district thru exemptions, will be Tommy Armour, Ky Laffoon, Jock Hutchison, and Jim Foulis.

The need for a playoff in the 1945 tournament was eliminated last night with the decision of the Illinois P. G. A. to include the qualifying round for the show in its 1944 state championship event, escheduled for Sept. 10 and 11 at the Glen Flora Country club in Waukegan.

Other scores:

POSTPONE BOTH SEMI-FINALS IN PREP PLAY-OFFS

Heavy rain yesterday afternoon caused postponement of the two semi-final games in the City High School league's baseball play-offs. As a result, Crane and Amundsen will meet this afternoon on the University of Chicago's Greenwood field, while Lane and Harrison, which were scheduled to play in Wrigley field, postponed their contest until Thursday afternoon.

The Lane-Harrison game was not started yesterday, but Crane and Amundsen got in two scoreless innings before a downpour washed away all chances of completing the contest and also drenched 1,000 supporters of the two teams.

Unless inclement weather causes additional postponements of the semi-final games, the championship contest will be played in Comiskey park on Saturday as originally scheduled.

A.M.A. CONTENDS DRAFT POLICIES MENACE HEALTH

More Students Needed; Changes Demanded.

BY ROBERT HOWARD.

The American Medical association's house of delegates protested yesterday that selective service policies were cutting down on medical school enrollments and thus threatening "an over-all shortage of qualified physicians, with imminent danger to the health and well being of our citizens."

Immediate action by the president or congress is imperative, the delegates said in a resolution adopted after the association's 94th annual convention opened in the Palmer House. Dr. James E. Paullin of Atlanta, Ga., retiring president, said that while medical schools were supposed to graduate 6,000 students a year, of whom 1,200 would go into civilian practice, a draft regulation banning deferment of premedical students after July 1 would shut off the supply of desirable students.

Children's Bureau Condemned.

The children's bureau, an adjunct of the department of labor, was another federal agency condemned by the physicians. Suggesting that the bureau be transferred elsewhere, the report of the association's council on medical service and public relations complained that the bureau seemed to be chiefly interested in the socialization of medicine.

"We cannot countenance such propaganda," the report commented.

Particular exception was taken to a children's bureau circular advocating the general establishment of "well baby" clinics, open to the well-to-do as well as the poor, and saying that children would get better care in such clinics than in doctors' offices. A protest also was made that New Deal followers plan post-war continuation of the program thru which the federal government is paying for the maternity care of service men's wives.

Voluntary Insurance Advocated.

The A. M. A.'s platform was revised in the report of the council to assert that it favored voluntary prepayment hospital insurance and advocated action by state medical societies to set up insurance plans for the payment of medical bills. It insisted, however, that such insurance must be voluntary, rather than the compulsory program advocated by the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill, concerning which it said:

"It has not been established by any available evidence that a change in the system of medical practice which would substitute salaried government doctors for private practitioners subject to the control of public officials would in any way lower sickness and death rates. Compulsory sickness insurance in no instance has given as good a health record as the American system."

Progress in War on Malaria.

The physicians were advised that great progress in fighting malaria has been made in the Southwest Pacific battle areas.

Lt. Col. Francis R. Dieuaide, the army's top specialist on tropical diseases, reported that no drug had been found for the treatment of acute filariasis or mumu, a mosquito borne disease that in its final stages is known as elephantiasis. For shigellaosis, a diarrheal infection, the physicians were told by Dr. Albert V. Hardy of the public health service that sulfonamides had been effective in treatment.

Home Front Reassured.

The home front doctors, who anticipate experience with tropical diseases after the South Pacific veterans are mustered out of service, were assured that there was no danger, with proper precautions, from the diseases.

One of the convention exhibits showed that a diet of rice and fruit juices, supplemented by vitamins, had been successful in helping and in many cases curing high blood pressure. The tests were made at Duke university.

JITTERS OF WAR HELD A DANGER EVEN IN PEACE

War jitters will keep American physicians busy in the post-war era, said Dr. Sarah M. Jordan of Boston, Mass., president of the American Gastroenterological association, yesterday.

The association is holding its 95th convention at the Drake Hotel. Its members are chiefly interested in the human stomach, the digestive tract, and their related ailments, such as ulcers and cancer.

The digestive health of our nation in the post-war world will be the chief concern of physicians, asserted Dr. Jordan, first woman president of the association.

"Anxieties of the home front in war, such as the confusion in the operation of selective service, the financial burden of taxes, troubles of renegotiation, and adjustments to the ruling of ration boards and of the office of price administration will have their effects on civilian digestion," she warned.

JURY ACQUITS BUSCH HEIR OF DRAFT CHARGES

New York, June 12 (AP).—German-born Hans Von Gontard, grandson of the late Adolphus Busch, St. Louis Brewer, and three other defendants charged with conspiracy to evade the draft were acquitted tonight by a federal court jury.

The case went to the jury at 11:48 a. m.

Tried with Von Gontard were Dr. Arnold Hutschnecker, army Lt. Francis X. Grottano, and Michael Mangano, a uniform manufacturer. The doctor was accused of attempting to aid Von Gontard in procuring a medical deferment and the others of conspiring to get an occupational deferment for him.

ILLINOIS OPENS SCHOOL TO SPUR VETS' BENEFITS

Students Trained in U.S. Regulations.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Jacksonville, Ill., June 12—Illinois today became the first state to tackle on a broad and systematic basis the problem of training men and women to guide returning war veterans thru the maze of legislation and regulations which applies to them and to see to it they receive, with a minimum of difficulty and delay, every benefit to which they are entitled.

The Illinois service officers' school, sponsored by the governor's committee on veterans' rehabilitation and employment, opened a five day course at the Illinois School for the Deaf.

The American Legion, the Disabled American Veterans, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars are cooperating in the project.

475 Attend Sessions.

In attendance are representatives of the veterans' groups, state departments, church, and other organizations, and personnel men from business and industry. Approximately 475 persons are present.

"We're undertaking to train and keep informed men and women who can advise returned veterans intelligently," said Homer G. Bradney of Jacksonville, director of the committee's administrative office, in explaining the program. "We want such trained, informed people at every crossroads, if possible."

Instructors for the school are drawn from the Veterans' administration, the American Legion, the American Red Cross, the United States Employment Service, the Federal Civil Service, and from medical and personnel men in private industry.

Students to Get Certificates.

The students, who will receive certificates at the close of the course Friday night, will have heard explanations of the rights a veteran enjoys under federal and state law and will understand how he or his family best may go about obtaining these rights. Disabilities, death benefits, employment, education, and insurance will be among the subjects discussed.

Gov. Green is chairman of the committee and will address the school Friday evening. James P. Ringley of Chicago is vice chairman of the committee and chairman of its board of control.

Hosts for the course are Rodney H. Brandon, director of the department of public welfare; Wallace Clark, deputy director, and Daniel T. Cloud, superintendent of the School for the Deaf.

WE, THE MOTHERS DISCUSS PEACE AT CONVENTION

We, the Mothers Mobilize for America yesterday opened its first women's national peace convention in the Hamilton hotel. Mrs. L. E. Benge of the Mothers of Sons of Cincinnati, O., said the convention will form resolutions and implement them for peace in the Atlantic area.

Some 300 women, representatives of various mothers' organizations thruout the country, gathered to attend the opening session, which was marked by prayer, song, and an address by Mrs. Lyrl Clark Van Hyning, president of We, the Mothers.

"The meeting," she said, "is called on the premise that all wars are artificial, that there are no causes, that pretended causes are deliberately built up by certain interests. It is too late to stop future wars, after wars have ended. This one must be broken off in the middle." She urged the end of "whispering diplomats," asked that all countries know the commitments being made for them, that no three or four powers predominate, but that all nations, on an equal basis, discuss terms by which they can abide. All sessions of the convention are open only to delegates.

WLB DESCRIBES WARD CASE TEST OF JURISDICTION

Washington, D. C., June 12 (AP).—The war labor board told the senate judiciary committee today that if it had declined to assume jurisdiction over the Montgomery Ward labor dispute it would have eliminated itself from a field in which 15½ million persons are employed.

At the same time Atty. Gen. Biddle renewed his attack on a subcommittee report which condemned government seizure of Montgomery Ward's Chicago properties. He said, Senators McCarran [D., Nev.] and Revercomb [R., W. Va.], who signed the subcommittee report, took "an erroneous view of the law."

The WLB asserted that "no labor dispute in war time can be viewed in isolation." It said all labor controversies must be considered with the no-strike agreement in mind.

'MY MONEY PAID BILLS OF HOME,' HEIRESS SWEARS

Marriage to Capt. Alexis de Tarnowsky from her wedding day in Boston on June 16, 1928, until her Mexican divorce last fall was a perpetual pooling of resources in which she usually was the sole contributor, Alice Rand de Tarnowsky McIntosh, 37, testified yesterday for her defense in the captain's suit for custody of the couple's three children.

In the couple's first home, an apartment on Elm st., she said she did her own housework and used an allowance from her stepfather, the late Prof. George F. Swain of Harvard university, toward the household upkeep. After Swain's death in 1931, she used her inheritance to pay for household help and has consistently defrayed expenses in the couple's Barrington home, she asserted in Circuit court.

De Tarnowsky, in England with the army engineers, refuses to recognize a Mexican divorce, which followed the Barrington heiress' cross country jaunt with an A. W. O. L. soldier, Pvt. Charles L. F. McIntosh. De Tarnowsky also is suing for divorce on a charge of adultery, McIntosh and Alice were married a few days after the Mexican decree.

MRS. HEINEMAN ASKS JUSTICE FOR TEACHERS

Mrs. Walter F. Heineman of the board of education criticized again yesterday what she called lack of democracy in the administration of Chicago schools. She spoke at a meeting of the executive committee of the Woman's City club.

Mrs. Heineman mentioned no names, but apparently referred to the recent transfer of Dr. John J. De Boer from the Chicago Teachers college to Herzl Junior college when she declared the teachers were "living under arrogant injustice" and continued: "Any teacher should have the right, both moral and legal, to defend his educational beliefs without reprisals. Teachers in Chicago have not that right."

She said that for five of her six years on the board she had waited for the torch of democracy to be lighted in Chicago.

"If Chicago is willing to see democracy buried, I'll stay thru to the funeral," she said.

DRUGGIST SLAIN WHILE FILLING ORDER IN STORE

Benjamin Brussell, 50, part owner of the Benal Drug and Liquor store at 1658 Roosevelt rd., was shot in the back and killed in his store late last night by a gunman who escaped. A Negro seen leaving with a revolver in his hand is being sought. Two employes and six other persons were in the store, but no one saw the shooting. Robbery is the suspected motive.

Brussell was behind the prescription counter when he was shot. He cried out, "Call a doctor," then collapsed. A wrapped package of liquor and $2.50 was on the counter near him.

Brussell was shot in the leg by bandits in a drug store robbery in 1933. Last April 15, Jack Guzik, hoodlum, telephoned to friends from the Benal store after he was freed by kidnapers. Brussell lived at 817 Lakeside pl. He leaves his widow; a daughter, Mrs. Harriett Weiss, and a son, Gerald.

TELLER ADMITS THEFT OF $30,000 AT CICERO BANK

Edward Frank Muzik, 43, pleaded guilty yesterday before Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe to a charge of embezzling between $30,000 and $35,000 from the Cicero State bank, where he had been employed as a teller for 17 years. Judge Igoe referred the case to probation authorities for pre-sentence determination, and set July 1 for disposition. Muzik, who lives with his wife and 16 year old daughter in Downers Grove, was arrested Nov. 6 by federal bureau of investigation agents when bank examiners disclosed a system of record keeping thru which he allegedly juggled books.

COLUMBIA BROADCASTING.

Please let me have information on Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc., class A and B stock.—S. K.

Answer: Columbia operates one of the four nation-wide radio broadcasting systems, and owns eight of the 120 stations in the network. A subsidiary manufactures and distributes "Columbia" and "Okeh" phonograph records. The company also has been active in television development.

Gross revenues have increased rapidly, and in 1943 totaled $75,166,441, against $62,211,573 in 1942 and $21,417,183 in 1935. Net income for 1943 was $4,535,941, equal to $2.64 a share on combined A and B stocks, against $4,123,698, or $2.40 a share, for 1942. Per share earnings for other recent years were: 1941, $2.80; 1940, $2.92; 1939, $2.93; 1938, $2.07; 1937, $2.52.

For the 13 weeks ended April 1, 1944, net income was reported at $1,165,347, equal to 68 cents a share, against $1,031,671, or 60 cents a share, a year ago.

Capitalization consists of a $630,970 mortgage and 1,716,942 shares of $2.50 par value stock divided into class A and B shares, identical except as to voting rights.

Dividends were first paid in 1931 and have been continued without interruption. Payments for recent years were: 1943, $1.80; 1942, $1.50; 1940-'41, $2.00; 1939, $1.50; 1938, $1.25.

WHEAT FUTURES DIP; RYE FIRM IN QUIET TRADE

Wheat futures dipped again yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade, with all deliveries except the July contract selling at seasonal lows. Closing losses were ½ to 1⅜ cents a bushel. The rye market broke after early strength, but closed unchanged to ¼ cent higher. Oats were unchanged to ¼ lower and barley off ½ to ¾ cent.

Corn producers continued to sell liberally, with purchases to arrive estimated at nearly 300,000 bushels. Reports that the government plans to import 6 million bushels from Argentina during July and more later tended to offset an Iowa state crop report that the acreage would be less than expected, and that the condition of the crop was the poorest in several years.

HOG CONGESTION MOUNTS; STEADY PRICES ARE PAID

The congestion in the hog market at the Chicago Stock yards mounted yesterday as farmer shipped in the biggest Monday volume since mid-March in face of a carry-over of 5,000 market hogs from Saturday in addition to about a two day supply in packers' hands.

Steady prices were paid for cattle. Top steers reached $17.50, equaling the 26 year June peak established last week.

Week's Steel Operations Will Decrease Slightly

New York, June 12 (AP).—Steel operations this week will be at the rate of 97.1 per cent of capacity, compared with 97.8 per cent last week, the American Iron and Steel Institute estimated today.

STATE CONTROL OF INSURANCE HELD ESSENTIAL

Urges High Court Review Ruling.

Application to the United States Supreme court for a rehearing of the insurance case in which the court on June 5 held that the insurance business is subject to federal regulation under the commerce clause of the Constitution was urged yesterday by Thomas I. Parkinson of New York, president of the Equitable Life Assurance society. He said regulation of the insurance business should remain with the states, which he described as the "people's government."

T. I. Parkinson.

"The state insurance commissioners might well consider asking for a rehearing," Parkinson told the Chicago Association of Life Underwriters at its annual meeting in the La Salle hotel. The National Association of Insurance Commissioners will meet in Chicago this week.

State May Abandon Control.

"State supervision, under which the insurance business has been carried on, may now be abandoned because of the superior power over it declared by four of the nine justices," said Parkinson. "Two of the ablest members—Justices Roberts and Reed, did not participate."

Parkinson, who is a lawyer, listed grounds on which he believed a rehearing may be asked. "It is the first time the Supreme court of the United States has ever set aside a long standing precedent of the court by less than a majority," he said. "It is one of the very few times that the court has ever decided any constitutional question by less than a majority of the whole court."

Possibly the considerations which led two justices to refrain from participation may be removed and the court may then rehear the case with the benefit of their participation, Parkinson suggested.

"If insurance is commerce, as the four justices said, then a very important decision has been reached, not only for the companies and the state insurance departments, but one very fundamental to future government in this country," the Equitable president continued. "The decision involves what has been going on in this country for some time, the extension of the powers of the federal government at the expense of the states."

Insurance to Remain Private.

The decision making insurance subject to federal regulation does not mean that it may be nationalized, Parkinson explained. "In the regulation of business congress cannot do what is unreasonable," he said. "The due process of law clause means that there must be reasonable justification for what is done by way of regulation. Congress, moreover, does not show any great enthusiasm for taking over the insurance business, life or other."

He suggested that if the decision stands the states will be barred from passing discriminatory legislation favorable to insurance companies incorporated under their own laws.

Gallagher New Chairman of Standard Oil Co. (N.J.)

New York, June 12 (AP).—Ralph W. Gallagher, president of Standard Oil company [N. J.], today was elected board chairman to fill a post which had been vacant. Eugene Holman, vice president and director, was elected president to succeed Gallagher, who became president Jan. 6, 1943, after the death of William S. Farish.

Biggest Plant Builds Biggest Plane Motors

B-29 Super Fortresses, the world's largest fighting craft, are powered by big 18 cylinder engines being built on the southwest side of Chicago by several thousand former school girls, beauticians, bartenders, store clerks, and elderly men who have determined not to retire until the war is won.

The power plants are 2,200 horse power Wright airplane engines, and are manufactured in the Dodge Chicago plant of the Chrysler corporation, said to be the largest manufacturing plant in existence. The engines also are being produced elsewhere, but the Chicago plant was the first to make them, and it makes most of them.

Largest of Its Type.

The engine is the largest of its kind in volume production, with a total displacement of 3,348 cubic inches, and a piston displacement of 186 cubic inches per cylinder. Major parts are made of steel, aluminum, and magnesium.

Production began before the plant was completed, and construction still is proceeding. The production peak will not be reached until next year. Equipment was intalled before walls were up, in some instances, as work went ahead at forced speed.

Every engine is given a test run for six hours, then disassembled and every part examined for flaws. Air force officers remove engines from the assembly line for spot tests at irregular intervals, operating them 600 hours in a wind tunnel.

Meet Man Power Problem.

An almost total lack of skilled airplane engine workers confronted the Chrysler people when they took the army contract, but they have met the problem.

When buildings were only partially completed, the company began training a nucleus force of 1,000 mechanics, craftsmen, and engineers in the Chrysler plant in Detroit. They were transferred to the Chicago plant when equipment was installed.

To build up the employment force, the company hired practically everybody available, and trained them in their jobs.

Weinberg Back with WPB to Handle 'Special Work'

Washington, D. C., June 12 (AP).—Sidney J. Weinberg, New York investment banker, returned to the WPB today as a vice chairman. His duties were described as handling "special problems" for Chairman Nelson on a dollar a year basis. Unofficially it was said his major job would be finding persons in private industry who could be brought into WPB to fill executive positions. This was Weinberg's chief duty in his previous WPB service.

ALUMINUM MONOPOLY CASE SENT TO CIRCUIT COURT BY HIGH BENCH

Washington, D. C., June 12 (AP).—Unable for lack of a quorum to rule on the government's anti-trust suit against Aluminum Company of America, the Supreme court today sent the litigation to the 2d federal Circuit court for action under a bill signed Saturday by President Roosevelt which provides that the issue may be determined by the lower court.

Chief Justice Stone and Associate Justices Reed, Murphy and Jackson disqualified themselves in this case. Supreme court business must be transacted by at least six justices. Why Stone declared himself ineligible was not disclosed. Jackson and Murphy were attorneys general and Reed was solicitor general during the time the case has been prosecuted by the justice department.

The federal District court at New York, after a trail lasting 26 months, held that the justice department had failed to prove the aluminum company had violated the Sherman act by possessing a monopoly in the production and sale of aluminum.

ALLIED DRIVES LIFT STOCKS TO NEW WAR HIGHS

2¼ Million Shares Are Traded.

New York, June 12 (AP).—Heavy buying of low priced motors which spread to utility, automotive supplier, and other civilian manufacturing shares and then broadened to carry prices to the highest level since the war began gave the stock exchange its busiest day of the year today.

Allied advances in France and Italy, with their implication of a possibly earlier than expected European peace, led many speculators to bid up prices of their favorites by fractions to more than two points.

Steels Feature Rise.

Steels and other high priced favorites were prominent in the rise, altho the heavy volume resulted chiefly from large transfers of cheap motors and other shares under the $10 level.

At 2,236,780 shares, volume was the highest since Nov. 8, 1943, as compared with 849,257 Friday. The advance was one of the broadest of the year, with 696 issues higher, 161 unchanged, and only 106 lower of 963 dealt in. The Associated Press 60 stock average rose 0.7 to 53.7, highest since Oct. 25, 1939.

The quality of the stocks leading the rise improved as the rally advanced. United States Steel gained 1⅞, Bethlehem, 2¼; General Motors, 1⅝, and Chrysler, 2⅛, the last two setting new 1944 peaks.

CHICAGO PRICES, VOLUME RISE.

Prices rose on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday as volume increased to 55,000 shares. Of 117 issues traded, 89 advanced and 12 declined. Active issues included Chicago corporation which closed at 6, up ⅛, and Commonwealth Edison, which finished at a 1944 high of 27⅛, up ¼. Of 21 new highs, Chicago Flexible Shaft rose 6½ and General Motors gained 1⅛.

RAILS BUOY BOND PRICES.

New York, June 12 (AP).—Strong demand for reorganization railroad issues gave today's bond market a firm tone. Advances of fractions to a point or more were in the majority on sales of $9,017,100 against $9,976,800 Friday. Carrier strength was attributed to the move in congress to amend laws pertaining to railroad reorganizations.

BRAZIL OFFERS INVESTORS PLAN TO ADJUST DEBT

New York, June 12 (AP).—Brazil today offered holders of $286,065,654 of its external bonds a choice of retaining their securities with reduced interest rates or accepting new 3¾ per cent external dollar bonds of 1944 of reduced principal amount, plus varying cash payments.

The offer, affecting 30 different bonds, was made under a debt adjustment plan worked out by Brazilian officials in coöperation with the Foreign Bondholders' Protective council. Covered are all outstanding dollar bonds of the country, its states other than Ceara, and its municipalities. Ceara is offering to redeem the 8 per cent bonds of 1922 at 12 per cent of face value.

BILL APPROVED FOR ELK HILLS OIL CONTRACT

Washington, D. C., June 12 (AP).—The senate today passed a bill to allow a unit plan contract between the navy and Standard Oil Company of California for operation of the Elk Hills petroleum reserve. The senate also adopted a resolution authorizing an increase from 15,000 to 65,000 barrels in the daily production of crude oil from the reserve.

The bill is designed to end a controversy over operation of the 44,000 acre field which started with navy cancellation of a former contract with Standard termed by the justice department "illegal and invalid." It went back to the house for action on senate changes tightening condemnation provisions which independent oil producers had said would provide an opening wedge for government participation in the oil business.

C. E. Sorensen to Become President of Willys Soon

Toledo, O., June 12 (AP).—Charles E. Sorensen, Danish born veteran automobile executive formerly associated with Ford Motor company, has entered into a contract as chief executive officer of Willys-Overland Motors, Ward M. Canaday, Willys chairman, said today in confirming similar reports circulated last week. Canaday said Sorensen, 62, is to be elected president of the company soon. Sorensen, who last March ended 39 years' association with Henry Ford by resigning as vice-president, generally is regarded as originator of the automobile assembly line.

BROOKS ADVISES HOME BUILDING HELP FOR YANKS

Home ownership in America will get its greatest impetus when the war is over and fighting men come back to live the way they've been thinking about at the front, Sen. Brooks [R., Il.] told members of the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards at their annual meeting in the Morrison hotel yesterday.

"Returning soldiers will be the greatest advocates of home ownership we have," Brooks said. "We ought to make it possible for them to build a million homes a year when they come back. And we also ought to enable them to improve homes they own which need repairs."

Morgan Fitch, president of the Illinois realty group, and former president of the Chicago Real Estate board, outlined a plan for peace time living. He included orderly liquidation of the restrictions and controls imposed upon individuals; abolition of practically all of the recently formed government bureaus, and ending all subsidy systems in both real estate and commodities.

GROUP IS NAMED TO GUIDE LABOR TO VITAL AREAS

Washington, June 12 (AP).—The war man power commission today announced formation of a national man power priorities committee to guide inter-city shifts of workers to relieve labor shortages. The group will decide which areas and industries should have top priority in the recruiting of man power.

WMC Chairman McNutt invited on the group Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of the Navy Forrestal, Chairman Land of the maritime commission, WPB Chairman Nelson, Selective Service Director Hershey, C. E. Wilson, director of the aircraft production board, and Harry B. Mitchell, president of the civil service commission. The first meeting was set for Thursday.

COUNCIL GROUP GETS TRACTION PURCHASE PLAN

Law Would Create Operating Board.

The first draft of an ordinance authorizing the city of Chicago to acquire the surface and elevated lines and operate them as a merged unit under municipal ownership was presented to the council committee on local transportation yesterday.

The ordinance, a lengthy document written by Attorneys William H. Sexton and James J. Danaher, provides that after the purchase of the companies operations will be in charge of a five man transit board appointed by the mayor, and general supervisory authority over this board will be vested in a five man transit commission.

Board Salaries Are Provided.

Salaries [the amounts not determined] will be paid the board, but the commission members will serve without pay. The financial structure of the proposed company is elaborately detailed. It provides that when other prior claims, such as operating expense and interest on borrowed funds, have been paid, the city is to receive up to 2 million dollars for rent of the streets and the wholly owned subways.

Ald. Quinn [50th], the local transportation chairman, said that representatives of the bondholder groups of the two companies would meet the city's representatives in Mayor Kelly's office today and start consideration of the ordinance.

Price Is Not Mentioned.

No mention of the price to be paid was put in the ordinance. The city, however, has suggested that it will pay 75 millions for the surface lines' assets, including 27½ millions of cash in special funds, and 11 millions for the elevated lines. The L people have turned down this proposition and the surface lines have not accepted, altho it is possible they would take the so-called offer if they were certain the city could overcome the hurdles to municipal ownership.

These hurdles are many. The plan must be approved by referendum, it must be declared legal by the courts, and bankers must lend the 86 millions or more needed to close the deal. It is planned to sell revenue certificates at 3½ per cent interest to make the loan.

Judge Igoe of the federal District court has another plan involving the formulating of a unification plan under private ownership.

Think of U. S. in Peace Pact, Kennedy Says

Joseph P. Kennedy, former chairman of the securities and exchange commission and later United States ambassador to England, recommended yesterday a governmental policy of sensible financial aid to other nations and qualified participation in international affairs, including currency stabilization.

In a speech before the American Gastroenterological association in the Drake hotel, he said it would be cowardly to shrink from participation in the problem of straightening out "world wreckage," but that it would be "stupid in our generosity to forget ourselves." He said the United States should not commit itself to endless burdens, and altho this country should "preserve internationalism, it should serve America."

Resent Money's Improper Use.

Discussing the United States' role in stabilizing international conditions, he held United States citizens would resent improper use of their money and would withdraw their coöperation.

"People will watch for each sign in Europe and in Asia of vigorous and courageous grappling with reconstruction," he said. "They will watch jealously the efforts made on currency stabilization. If their funds are to be used as the New York Times stated 'to support the currencies of China, Ethiopia, and Iraq and thereby support the internal economic policies of those countries,' they are going to ask how long these burdens can be afforded by this country and why the same results cannot be attained by sound currency policies within each nation."

Take Plans to Peace Table.

Warning against premature peace table commitments, Kennedy recalled that he recently had advised that blueprints, but not contracts, should be in the brief cases of those who will meet in the peace conference. The contracts can be let after the designs have been carefully inspected for fundamental errors, he added.

Considering post-war employment prospects, he said normal business alone could not give full employment to 65 million people now in industry, on government pay rolls and in the services, and that no government can guarantee such employment if it depends upon unlimited expansion of the public debt.

Senate Sends Sugar Act Extension to White House

Washington, D. C., June 12 (AP).—The senate approved today by voice vote a two year extension, to Dec. 31, 1946, of the sugar act of 1937. Previously passed by the house, the bill goes to the White House.

ASKS CONGRESS TO ACT QUICKLY ON PEACE SHIFT

Post-War Tax Bill Urged by Byrnes.

Washington, D. C., June 12 (AP).—Senators seeking a way to ease the economic change-over from war to peace began perfecting demobilization legislation today after hearing War Mobilization Director Byrnes say it ought to be enacted promptly, but that he didn't want the job of directing reconversion.

James F. Byrnes.

Byrnes submitted several recommendations to members of a special senate committee and a military subcommittee, each of which is considering demobilization measures. One was that congress put in "spade work" now on a post-war tax bill because "war taxation should end with the end of the war."

Ready Before Week-End.

Chairman Murray [D., Mont.] of the military subcommittee said a demobilization bill would be ready for the full committee before the close of the week. He and Chairman George [D., Ga.] of the special post-war committee are joint authors of a demobilization plan and Sen. Kilgore [D., W. Va.] has introduced another.

All wish to create an office of war demobilization and post-war adjustment, and Byrnes indorsed that proposition. If President Roosevelt should offer him the directorship, Byrnes said, "I feel that at that time the mobilization situation will be such that I could decline to accept, and I would so decline."

He explained after the hearing that he gave up a place on the Supreme court to direct mobilization and that when mobilization was completed "I've got some other things I want to do in life."

Urges Termination Law.

Early house passage of a senate-approved war contract termination bill.

An inducement to states, in the form of federal financial help if necessary, to liberalize unemployment

AS he tops off a substantial K ration meal with vitamin-fortified candy, the U. S. Marine or Paratrooper may well thank the Chicago candy makers who prepared this energy-giving dessert.

This is just one more example of how thousands of Chicagoland industries are now converted to the production of unusual goods for war. Executives of such industries recognize the importance these days of commercial banking credit in their production plans.

Backed by years of experience in cooperating with large and small firms and corporations in and beyond the Chicago area, The Northern Trust Company continues as a valued source of commercial banking credit for current needs. Your inquiry is cordially invited.

CONGRESS ASKED TO ACT QUICKLY ON PEACE SHIFT

Unemployment compensation for federal industrial workers—such as those who work in navy yards and arsenals.

Seeks Employment Boost.

Many of Byrnes' proposals duplicated recommendations submitted to the senate today by George's special post-war committee. The committee devoted a large part of its report to the problem of employment, figuring full employment must be available at the end of the war for 54 to 56 million people. That is 8 to 10 million more than ever have been employed in peace time.

The committee listed 16 ways to help avoid "economic chaos." It mentioned, as did Byrnes, legislation in the fields of post-war taxes (perhaps with "drastically lower" rates) and unemployment compensation.

Also, it recommended surveys to determine how long price controls and rationing should last, how the floating of new, small security issues can be encouraged, how monopolies can be prevented, how overlapping in government can be eliminated, how foreign trade can be expanded and excessive delegation of congressional powers be checked.

SEEKS WIDER PROGRAM

Large investors are making plans to meet the post-war employment problem, but the program is still not broad enough to provide the 53 to 55 million jobs needed to guarantee full employment, A. F. Hinrichs, acting commissioner of the bureau of labor statistics, department of labor, said yesterday.

Hinrichs hoped that these plans would be enlarged, but added: "Up to the present I don't see evidence of a sufficiently firm guarantee that between 53 and 55 million will be employed in the post-war period." If present plans are not changed, the country will not be "adequately equipped for the post-war period," he said.

One reason investment capital may be wary of post-war conditions is the threat of post-war unemployment which would make the businessman reluctant to make long-term financial arrangements, he said.

COUNTRY BANKS ADVISED TO BUY U. S. SECURITIES

Country banks were urged yesterday to keep their funds fully invested in government securities and to seek war loan deposit accounts, as a means of increasing their income. The recommendations were made by the American Bankers' association's commission on country bank operations in a study entitled, "The Country Bank's Portfolio of United States Government Securities."

The commission said present conditions have created unusual investment problems for the country bank because of a doubling of deposits since early 1940 and a substantial decrease in loans. With United States government securities available in sufficient variety to provide practically any desired liquidity or maturity, banks with idle cash have an opportunity to employ them without undue risk, the commission declared.

Uptown National Votes Capital Stock Increase

Stockholders of Uptown National bank yesterday authorized an increase in the bank's capital from $300,000 to $600,000 thru the sale of 12,000 shares at $35 a share. Par value is $25. After approval of the plan by the controler of the currency, warrants will be mailed to stockholders of record yesterday giving them the privilege of subscribing to the new shares before Aug. 1 in the ratio of one share for each share held.

TELLS OF BUYING STOLEN POINTS FROM BOARD AID

Dealer Says He Acquired Total of 250,000.

Bert Behnke, who conducts a ship provisioning business at 3128 E. 92d st., testified at an office of price administration hearing yesterday that he purchased two stolen rationing certificates, totalling 250,000 points, from John J. Rewers, 34, former chairman of the food price panel of ration board 8 at 7915 Cottage Grove av.

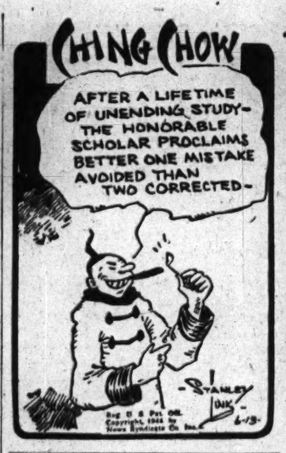
Behnke was before John R. Allen, OPA hearing commissioner, to show cause why he should not be suspended from dealing in rationed foods because of alleged illegal possession and use of ration points.



Behnke testified that Rewers, a coffee salesman, whom he had known for years, sold him the certificates for $425 in Behnke's store last March 27. One certificate was for 200,000 blue points. The other was for 50,000 red points.

Identified as Stolen.

Behnke deposited the certificates in his ration bank account and proceeded to draw against them. When the certificates were returned to the OPA by the bank, they were identified as two of 37 certificates stolen from board 8.

Allen asked Behnke why, if he needed additional points, he did not apply to the OPA.

"The OPA doesn't know anything about my business," said Behnke. "It is different from all others. The army, navy, and coast guard owe me 150,000 points, and 90 per cent of my other customers have offices in other cities and are slow in remitting points for provisions sold and delivered here."

He testified that at the time he purchased the certificates from Rewers, the ore fleet was waiting to start service on the lake, and the ships had to be provisioned.

Total of 10 Million Points.

Paul A. H. Shults, acting area director for OPA, said the theft of the certificates, 31 of which have been recovered, is under investigation by the OPA, Eugene Devitt and Homer Clay, OPA attorneys, estimated that the 37 stolen certificates represent approximately 10,000,000 ration points.

Other persons in whose possession the stolen certificates were found have testified that they bought them from a man they knew as Jack Craig. In one previous hearing, Mrs. Margaret C. Mullen, chief clerk of board 8, identified handwriting on a stolen certificate as that of Rewers.

Decision on Behnke's suspension order was deferred for two weeks by Allen, pending further investigation.

SUES BROTHER FOR ACCOUNTING OF OIL MILLIONS

Suit for an accounting of royalties paid on a patented oil cracking process was filed in Superior court yesterday against Carbon Petroleum Dubbs, 1004 Michigan av., Wilmette, and the Universal Oil Products company by Dubbs' brother, Leland, of Torrence, Cal.

Leland Dubbs estimates he should have received $2,490,209 as his share of royalties which he reported have been paid to his brother since 1917. The suit charges breach of trust involving an oral agreement in which Dubbs claims he was promised 20 per cent of the proceeds of the sale of the cracking patent to the Universal Oil company, 310 S. Michigan av.

Dubbs stated that the cracking process was invented by his father, and that he, Leland, perfected improvements before the patent was sold to Universal.

APPEALS COURT BLOCKS FREEING LIFER ON WRIT

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday reversed a ruling by Federal Judge John P. Barnes last September which had released George Foley, 53, from the Illinois state penitentiary in Joliet, on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus. Foley had been serving a life sentence.

Yesterday's decision was regarded as a blow to the hopes of hundreds of inmates of state penal institutions who are seeking their freedom thru the federal District court, or who contemplate such action.

Based on High Court Edict.

The Appeals court ruling, by Judge J. Earl Major, indicated that the decision had been inspired by a recent United States Supreme court ruling that "any application for a writ of habeas corpus by one detained by state court judgment of conviction of a crime will be entertained by a federal court only after all state remedies available, including all appellate remedies [state], and in this [United States Supreme] court by appeal or writ of certiorari, have been exhausted."

The impact of the Appeals court ruling was evident yesterday in the District court of Judge Barnes, where five Stateville inmates appeared in a move to gain their freedom thru habeas corpus writs.

After asking four of the petitioners whether they had carried their pleas to the United States Supreme court, and receiving negative replies, the court informed them there was nothing that he could do for them.

Order on Warden Dropped.

He then sustained motions of Assistant Atty. Gen. Ben Schwartz to dismiss an order on Warden Joseph Ragen of the Stateville prison to show why writs should not be issued. The four were John Gawron, James Neal, Oliver Bradford, and Joseph Maciong. The case of a fifth convict, George Sougan, who has filed a pauper's petition before the United States Supreme court, was continued for two weeks.

Judge Barnes said he would continue to hear applications for freedom, at the rate of five a day, filled by 25 convicts in state prisons, as he announced Friday. Approximately 100 petitions for habeas corpus writs are on file in the federal courts here, Judge Barnes said.

7 MILLION PAIRS OF SHOES WILL BE RATION FREE

Seven million pairs of men's, women's boys' and youth's shoes will be made ration free at retail between July 10 and 29, and will sell at 25 per cent below their normal prices, the office of price administration said yesterday.

All classifications except children's, misses', and little boys' shoes, which were made ration free during the first three weeks of May, were included in the order, which the OPA said was issued so dealers could clear out odd lots and broken lines.

The OPA also said that despite anticipated reductions in fuel oil supplies for next winter, householders again will be able to get oil, on application, for cooking stoves and hot water heaters. It urged those who burn oil for heat to fill their tanks this summer as soon as they receive their coupons.

Savings to housewives of 1 to 3 cents a pound on fresh fish and shrimps will result from wholesale reductions ordered yesterday and effected Saturday, the OPA announced.

Hotels, schools, restaurants and other institutional users will be able to buy to 20 to 25 per cent more sugar because of increased supplies, the OPA announced. The increase is applicable to current May-June allotments and subsequent periods.
